Earthquakes Jolt Lebanon Second Day; 132 Perish

BEIRUT, Lebanon, March 17—UP—Earthquakes jolted Lebanon Saturday for the second day in a series of tremblors that left at least 132 persons dead, 30 missing and 200 injured.

Authorities reported the death toll mounting in hard-hit southern Lebanese villages as rescue squads probed into the debris of crumpled buildings.

At least 20,000 persons were homeless.

Shocks jolted parts of the country including the capital city of Beirut again Saturday, but the main damage and casualties appeared to be confined to the areas hit Friday.

The count of dead and injured was made in 26 villages, mostly in the south Lebanon and Chouf regions of the country. The village of Chaheem in the Chouf district counted 30 victims.

Sixteen bodies were recovered from collapsed buildings in the village of Kfarhetta and scores of other villagers still are buried, dispatches from the area said.

Jezzine, another south Lebanese village, reported one dead and several homes damaged.

Authorities in Beirut said many other small communities were badly damaged by the series of rolling shocks. They said "large numbers" of victims may still be buried in the ruins.

The quakes jolted other areas of the Middle East. Israel reported shocks throughout its length

Truman Rejects Possible Draft At Demo Convention

By UNITED PRESS

Former President Harry S. Truman ruled himself out Saturday as a possible "draftee" if the Democratic national convention deadlocks over a presidential candidate.

Mr. Truman, en route to Scranton, Pa., to deliver a St. Patrick's Day speech, answered with a flat "no" when a United Press reporter asked if he would allow himself to be drafted.

Sen. Barry M. Goldwater (R-Ariz.) has been taunting the Democrats with repeated challenges to re-nominate Mr. Truman. Goldwater says Mr. Truman made the record on which the Democrats must run, and hence should be the candidate.

But the 71-year-old former President said he intends to do his politicking this year "from the outside."

Renowned Woman Scientist Curie Dies Of Cancer

PARIS, March 17 —UP—Irene Joliot-Curie died Saturday of blood cancer, a victim as her famous father was before her, of her researches into the mysterious radioactive rays which both kill and cure mankind.

The Nobel Prize-winning daughter of the discoverers of radium was 58. Doctors said death was caused by progressive leukemia incurred by the radiations to which she had exposed herself in her work on artificial radioactivity.

Her father had died the same way, as a result of his experiments.

Mme. Joliot Curie was the wife of physicist Frederick Joliot-Curie who was fired from his post as high commissioner of the atomic energy commission of France on grounds of Communist sympathies.

The daughter of Pierre and Marie Curie, who discovered radium in 1898, died in the hospital named in honor of her parents shortly after midnight. Hospital officials at first refused to disclose the cause of death.

Her husband and two grown children were at her side when she died.

Mme. Joliot-Curie was one of the most noted women scientists of the 20th Century. But she was refused membership in the American Chemical Society in 1954 because of her pro-Communist leanings.

In 1948, she was detained overnight on Ellis Island by U. S. immigration officials when she flew to New York for a lecture tour sponsored by the leftwing Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee.

In 1925 she met Frederick Joliot, who was working as an assistant in the Curie laboratory.

Ellender Warns South Against Race Violence

'Reconstruction' Repetition Seen As Alternative

WASHINGTON, March 17 —UP—Sen. Allen J. Ellender said Saturday night the south must avoid lawlessness and violence on the race issue if it wants to escape a "repetition of the Reconstruction regimes" that followed the Civil War.

The Louisiana Democrat, one of 101 signers of a "declaration of constitutional principles" by Southern lawmakers denouncing the Supreme Court's school desegregation ruling, said any breakdown of governmental authority in the Southern states would "open our gates to an invasion by a new and even hungrier breed of carpet-baggers."

Ellender made the statements in a radio broadcast for Louisiana stations.

Since the court's 1954 ruling, he said, racial relations in the South have deteriorated and threaten to get worse. But the declaration was necessary, he said, to show that the "people of the South, both white and Negro, are not going to be used as either whipping boys or political pawns in order to fulfill the Supreme Court's new doctrine of sociological justice."

As a result of the ruling, he said, "outside agitators who seek the subjugation of both the white and Negro races in the South are hovering like greedy vultures for the time when racial antagonisms lead to chaos."

The South, he said, has been invaded by "unprincipled, power-hungry, self-seeking, outside agitators, primarily "the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People."

"But it is important for the South

Cyprus Violence

Troops Surround Seven Villages In Search For Rebels

NICOSIA, Cyprus, March 17 (AP)—Troops cordoned off seven villages with barbed wire in the snow-covered Troodos Mountains today and began a systematic search for a band which ambushed a British patrol and wounded five soldiers.

Doctors fought tonight to save the lives of two of the five British Commandos who were wounded in the ambush. Emergency operations were performed.

The bitterness of Greek-speaking Cypriots in their campaign for union with Greece has grown deeper since the deportation of their leader, Archbishop Makarios last week. Their terroristic tactics have taken the lives of 18 British servicemen in a year.

The ambush today was laid on a hairpin curve in the 6,400-foot high Troodos Mountains, 59 miles southeast of Nicosia. As a commando patrol was turning the bend, guerrillas threw bombs into their ranks and followed up with fire from automatic weapons.

The patrol quickly returned the fire. Four bombs and an automatic gun were found beside the

MAYOR JOHN E. COON

Re-Election Bid Is Announced By Mayor John Coon

Monroe's Mayor John E. Coon yesterday announced that he will seek re-election in the city Democratic primary to be held May 22.

He will file a formal declaration of his candidacy with the city Democratic executive committee at its meeting Monday, when it is to call for an election, Coon said, and a formal statement of a platform will be made when he legally qualified before the committee.

Qualifying dates are the 10 days following the committee meeting, which will be March 20 through March 29.

Mayor Coon, in his first announcement, said, "The city of Monroe has experienced a phenomenal growth in the last four years. Its needs and requirements exceed by far the estimates and recommendations made by a competent engineering firm a few years ago.

"The increase in population, the added consumers of electricity and water, the opening of quite a number of residential subdivisions, and the building of many homes have made necessary the expansion of our utilities, the opening and improvement of streets, increased fire and police protection, (we have efficient police and fire departments but they will have to be further expanded), increased sewage disposal, and the taking of other measures to meet the needs of our people.

"These and other imperative and increasing needs have posed for us many troublesome problems, made all the more difficult of solution because of the city's limited operating revenues available over and above fixed charges for such necessary services. What has been done has been done without the imposition of one cent of additional taxes.

"One of the most perplexing municipal problems is our municipally owned electric and water system. In searching for an answer I have sought the advice and counsel of an advisory committee which I appointed to study the question. This

Negro Attorney Relieved Of Duties

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., March 17—UP—Gov. LeRoy Collins relieved a Negro assistant state attorney of his duties Saturday for allegedly boasting that his Miami office was integrated and white stenographers took his dictation.

Brautigam in Miami ordering him to relieve Henry Arrington, the Negro aide, pending a full investigation of charges he is guilty of "breach of confidence and misconduct." The governor said he would suspend Arrington if the charges are proven.

The issue of Arrington's alleged statements, said to have been made in a radio interview, was brought up Wednesday in a campaign speech by Sumter Lowry, who is running for governor on a pro-segregation platform.

Belated Report Tells Of Rioting Inside Russia

Georgians Protest Kremlin Policy To Denounce Stalin

MOSCOW, March 17 —UP—Demonstrations broke out in Tiflis, Georgia, after the March 5 ceremonies marking the third anniversary of the death of Josef Stalin, it was reported Saturday.

(Moscow reports of outbreaks in Tiflis, coincided with other reports from Washington and London which told of bloody rioting in the Georgian capital as an aftermath to harsh denunciations of Stalin at the Communist party congress in Moscow last month).

The Communist party newspaper in Georgia demanded editorially Saturday that the courts "crush" violation of law and order in Georgia, the republic in which Stalin was born.

The newspaper made no reference to the reported March 5 outbreaks, but called for "the exposure of all kinds of provocateurs, hooligan and hostile elements—all who violate Socialist law, order and the rights of Soviet citizens.

"The courts must thoroughly crush the smallest manifestation of lawlessness and arbitrariness, the party paper Zaria Voscoka said in an editorial.

Tiflis was the sold capital of all the Soviet republics where the anniversary of Stalin's death was observed with memorial meetings.

Georgia is known for its warm climate and the hotheadedness of some of its citizens.

Reports that could not be confirmed from Soviet sources in Moscow circulated Saturday among the Western diplomatic corps that a closed session of the party congress was held March 4 with foreign guests absent.

Khrushchev probably made a confidential statement to the delegates present, but the substance of it could not be confirmed here by Soviet sources.

It was reported that abbreviated versions of the Khrushchev statement were read and discussed at party meetings throughout the country.

"The Tiflis party reminded its Georgian readers Saturday that it is the duty of the Communist party to "put up a decisive struggle against offenders who violate

Juvenile Delinquency

Idleness And Child Labor Laws Assailed As Factors

NEW ORLEANS, March 17 (AP)—Idleness enforced on young boys by laws is the root of the growing juvenile problem in the United States, a Shreveport newspaperman said here today.

M. D. Nicholson, circulation director of the Shreveport Times and Journal, told the Louisiana Daily Newspaper Publishers Assn. persons who blame "parents, broken homes and lack of recreation" as the major cause of juvenile delinquency, aren't facing the facts.

Every boy, when he reaches eight or 10 years of age, has a natural desire to do something for himself, Nicholson said, to earn something through his own knowledge and effort.

"Denied this privilege," he continued, "the boy will get his money some other way and usually the wrong way."

Nicholson described a plan for salesmanship lessons, behavior competition and junior business activity which he proposed to sponsor in Shreveport for boys between 10 and 14 years old.

He said the plan has been deferred because the state's labor law prohibits boys from making house calls to effect sales.

Nicholson quoted Judge William G. Long of Seattle superior court, who for 20 years presided in juvenile courts, as having said, "In my experience as a judge, I have yet to see a youthful serious offender whose trouble was not caused to a large extend by idleness."

In addition to hearing Nicholson, the publishers discussed newsprint shortages and other problems of their industry.

W. H. Shearman of the Lake Charles American Press, presided.

Details Of Khrushchev Talk Leak Out

All-Out Kremlin Policy To Discredit Stalin May Be Backfiring On Moscow

WASHINGTON, March 17—UP—The Kremlin's new leaders are spreading the word throughout Russia that the once-idolized Josef Stalin was actually a power-drunk dictator, driven by paranoid fears of treachery, who weakened Russia for the Nazi onslaught by murdering 5,000 of the Red Army's officers.

Diplomatic sources reported Saturday that these and other sensational charges, signalling the start of an all-out campaign to discredit Stalin, were made by Communist Party Secretary Nikita S. Khrushchev in a secret speech to the Communist party congress in Moscow on Feb. 24.

They said a summary of Khrushchev's glory allegations is now being distributed to Communist leaders throughout Russia, to be passed on to the people.

This campaign to knock Stalin from his self-prepared pedestal apparently backfired in the late dictator's home state of Georgia near the Turkish border. Officials said reports have reached here of widespread rioting in Georgia following the March 5 anniversary of Stalin's death.

Information available here was that the situation in Georgia is now under control. But experts on Russia said it was highly significant that a large group of people in the Soviet Union had dared to challenge Khrushchev's regime and openly declare their continued reverence of Stalin.

These reports said it was bound to have an unsettling effect inside Russia when Khrushchev, by depicting Stalin as a bloodthirsty tyrant, confirmed what the West had been saying about the Soviet dictator for years.

The State Department refused to comment beyond saying it had heard rumors about the Khrushchev speech and Georgia rioting. But Allied diplomats, piecing together information from a variety of sources, gave a detailed account of the highly emotional, and at

Farm Measure

Democrats, GOP On Delay Of Bill Exchange Attacks

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP) — Republicans and Democrats accused each other today of delaying Senate action on the election-year farm bill.

Sen. Cotton (R-NH) said "some Democrats are trying to delay and sabotage this bill" and added:

"There is a very definite and calculated conspiracy to prolong consideration. The Democrats realize that the one weak spot for attack on the administration in this year's campaign is in the farm belt."

Sen. Ellender (D-La) replied in a separate interview that "much of the delay is the direct responsibility of the Republicans."

"I wanted to get this bill on President Eisenhower's desk by Feb. 15th," Ellender said. "The Republicans insisted on a 10-day recess between Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays to make political speeches before taking it up."

Ellender said he agrees with Cotton that the longer Congress delays approval of the soil bank program and its offer of $1,200,000,000 in payments, the fewer farmers will participate.

Many farmers already have completed plans for this year's crops and in Southern areas plowing and planting are well under way.

Senators took a weekend recess because many of them had political engagements for St. Patrick's Day.

Several Ships Washed Ashore By High Winds

Highways Clogged With Snowdrifts Up To 10-Feet Deep

Deaths totaled 40 in New England, six in Ohio, five in New York, four in Pennsylvania and five in New Jersey.

Officials called the blockbuster blizzard the "wildest" storms in a generation.

Four Navy vessels and a freighter ran aground. Hundreds of stranded motorists were trapped in their cars for hours or were forced to take refuge in hotels and shelters. The Coast Guard sent amphibious ducks to rescue 33 persons from their homes on Nantucket Island, off Cape Cod, when high tides flooded the streets of Brant Point.

The bodies of three sailors were found in an open whaleboat cast ashore at the entrance to Newport, R. I., harbor. Five persons died in a fire that destroyed a Westbrook, Me., home at the height of the blizzard.

Mollet Acts Swiftly

French Armored Divisions Ordered To Algerian Front

PARIS, March 17 (AP)—Premier Guy Mollet's government put its new emergency powers into swift effect tonight, ordering two mechanized divisions airlifted to Algeria to fight the Nationalist revolt.

All available aircraft were directed to the emergency airlift of crack troops from West Germany to the fighting front.

Naval vessels were ordered to give the air force a hand. The Mediterranean fleet was put on a warlike footing to help guard Algerian coastal cities.

The swift action was taken under the emergency powers bill authorizing stern military, economic and administrative measures in strife-torn Algeria.

The National Assembly approved the drastic legislation in four thumping votes of confidence for Mollet Monday. The Council of the Republic (Senate) added its overwhelming approval Thursday.

In an action-packed five-hour Cabinet session, Mollet and his minister for Algerian affairs, Robert Lacoste, pushed through a series of decrees under the emergency law.

The Cabinet dodged an immediate decision on the touchy problem of 86 Nationalist guerrillas who have been captured, tried and condemned to death. They have appealed for clemency.

The French and European community of Algeria has threatened a massive "strike" or demonstration if the sentences are not carried out within a week. Nationalists warn that execution will touch off a merciless campaign against French settlers.

Costello Leads Irish In Parade

NEW YORK, March 17—UP—Ireland's Premier John A. Costello led the way for 175,000 Irish-American marchers Saturday in a St. Patrick's Day parade down Fifth Avenue.

The temperature was freezing, but the sky was clear and the sun shone brightly. The weather was a sharp contrast to the blizzard that swept the city throughout the night, piling snow on the streets.

Costello flew here from Washington to participate in the nation's biggest and most boisterous St. Patrick's Day celebration. Also here were 300 other Irishmen who arrived only Saturday morning by ship.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., March 17—UP—Gov. LeRoy Collins relieved a Negro assistant state attorney of his duties Saturday for allegedly boasting that his Miami office was integrated and white stenographers took his dictation.

Collins sent a telegram to State Attorney General George A. Brautigam in Miami ordering him to relieve Henry Arrington, the Negro aide, pending a full investigation of charges he is guilty of "breach of confidence and misconduct." The governor said he would suspend Arrington if the charges are proven.

The issue of Arrington's alleged statements, said to have been made in a radio interview, was brought up Wednesday in a campaign speech by Sumter Lowry, who is running for governor on a pro-segregation platform.

Belated Report Tells Of Rioting Inside Russia

Georgians Protest Kremlin Policy To Denounce Stalin

MOSCOW, March 17—UP—Demonstrations broke out in Tiflis, Georgia, after the March 5 ceremonies marking the third anniversary of the death of Josef Stalin, it was reported Saturday.

(Moscow reports of outbreaks in Tiflis, coincided with other reports from Washington and London which told of bloody rioting in the Georgian capital as an aftermath to harsh denunciations of Stalin at the Communist party congress in Moscow last month).

The Communist party newspaper in Georgia demanded editorially Saturday that the courts "crush" violation of law and order in Georgia, the republic in which Stalin was born.

The newspaper made no reference to the reported March 5 outbreaks, but called for "the exposure of all kinds of provocateurs, hooligan and hostile elements—all who violate Socialist law, order and the rights of Soviet citizens.

"The courts must thoroughly crush the smallest manifestation of lawlessness and arbitrariness, the party paper Zaria Voscoka said in an editorial.

Tiflis was the sold capital of all the Soviet republics where the anniversary of Stalin's death was observed with memorial meetings.

Georgia is known for its warm climate and the hotheadedness of some of its citizens.

Reports that could not be confirmed from Soviet sources in Moscow circulated Saturday among the Western diplomatic corps that a closed session of the party congress was held March 4 with foreign guests absent.

Khrushchev probably made a confidential statement to the delegates present, but the substance of it could not be confirmed here by Soviet sources.

It was reported that abbreviated versions of the Khrushchev statement were read and discussed at party meetings throughout the country.

The Tiflis party reminded its Georgian readers Saturday that it is the duty of the Communist party to "put up a decisive struggle against offenders who violate

Juvenile Delinquency

Idleness And Child Labor Laws Assailed As Factors

NEW ORLEANS, March 17—UP—Idleness enforced on young boys by laws is the root of the growing juvenile problem in the United States, a Shreveport newspaperman said here today.

M. D. Nicholson, circulation director of the Shreveport Times and Journal, told the Louisiana Daily Newspaper Publishers Assn. persons who blame "parents, broken homes and lack of recreation" as the major cause of juvenile delinquency, aren't facing the facts.

Every boy, when he reaches eight or 10 years of age, has a natural desire to do something for himself, Nicholson said, to earn something through his own knowledge and effort.

Nicholson described a plan for salesmanship lessons, behavior competition and junior business activity which he proposed to sponsor in Shreveport for boys between 10 and 14 years old.

He said the plan has been deferred because the state's labor law prohibits boys from making house calls to effect sales.

Nicholson quoted Judge William G. Long of Seattle superior court, who for 20 years presided in juvenile courts, as having said, "In my experience as a judge, I have yet to see a youthful serious offender whose trouble was not caused to a large extend by idleness."

In addition to hearing Nicholson, the publishers discussed newsprint shortages and other problems of the profession.

W. H. Shearman of the Lake Charles American Press, presided.

Details Of Khrushchev Talk Leak Out

All-Out Kremlin Policy To Discredit Stalin May Be Backfiring On Moscow

WASHINGTON, March 17—UP—The Kremlin's new leaders are spreading the word throughout Russia that the once-idolized Josef Stalin was actually a power-drunk dictator, driven by paranoid fears of treachery, who weakened Russia for the Nazi onslaught by murdering 5,000 of the Red Army's officers.

Diplomatic sources reported Saturday that these and other sensational charges, signalling the start of an all-out campaign to discredit Stalin, were made by Communist Party Secretary Nikita S. Khrushchev in a secret speech to the Communist party congress in Moscow on Feb. 24.

They said a summary of Khrushchev's glory allegations is now being distributed to Communist leaders throughout Russia, to be passed on to the people.

This campaign to knock Stalin from his self-prepared pedestal apparently backfired in the late dictator's home state of Georgia near the Turkish border. Officials said reports have reached here of widespread rioting in Georgia following the March 5 anniversary of Stalin's death.

Information available here was that the situation in Georgia is now under control. But experts on Russia said it was highly significant that a large group of people in the Soviet Union had dared to challenge Khrushchev's regime and openly declare their continued reverence of Stalin.

These reports said it was bound to have an unsettling effect inside Russia when Khrushchev, by depicting Stalin as a bloodthirsty tyrant, confirmed what the West had been saying about the Soviet dictator for years.

The State Department refused to comment beyond saying it had heard rumors about the Khrushchev speech and Georgia rioting. But Allied diplomats, piecing together information from a variety of sources, gave a detailed account of the highly emotional, and at

Democrats, GOP On Delay Of Bill Exchange Attacks

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP)—Republicans and Democrats accused each other today of delaying Senate action on the election-year farm bill.

Sen. Cotton (R-NH) said "some Democrats are trying to delay and sabotage this bill" and added:

"There is a very definite and calculated conspiracy to prolong consideration. The Democrats realize that the one weak spot for attack on the administration in this year's campaign is in the farm belt."

Sen. Ellender (D-La) replied in a separate interview that "much of the delay is the direct responsibility of the Republicans."

"I wanted to get this bill on President Eisenhower's desk by Feb. 15th," Ellender said. "The Republicans insisted on a 10-day recess between Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays to make political speeches before taking it up on the floor."

Ellender said he agrees with Cotton that the longer Congress delays approval of the soil bank program and its offer of $1,200,000,000 in payments, the fewer farmers will participate.

Many farmers already have completed plans for this year's crops and in Southern areas plowing and planting are well under way.

Several Ships Washed Ashore By High Winds

Highways Clogged With Snowdrifts Up To 10-Feet Deep

At least 60 persons died along the storm path from Ohio to Maine. Deaths totaled 40 in New England, six in Ohio, five in New York, four in Pennsylvania and five in New Jersey.

Officials called the blockbuster blizzard the "wildest" storms in a generation.

Four Navy vessels and a freighter ran aground. Hundreds of stranded motorists were trapped in their cars for hours or were forced to take refuge in hotels and shelters. The Coast Guard sent amphibious ducks to rescue 33 persons from their homes on Nantucket Island, off Cape Cod, when high tides flooded the streets of Brant Point.

The bodies of three sailors were found in an open whaleboat cast ashore at the entrance to Newport, R. I., harbor. Five persons died in a fire that destroyed a Westbrook, Me., home at the height of the blizzard.

Mollet Acts Swiftly

French Armored Divisions Ordered To Algerian Front

PARIS, March 17 (AP)—Premier Guy Mollet's government put its new emergency powers into swift effect tonight, ordering two mechanized divisions airlifted to Algeria to fight the Nationalist revolt.

All available aircraft were directed to the emergency airlift of crack troops from West Germany to the fighting front.

Naval vessels were ordered to give the air force a hand. The Mediterranean fleet was put on a warlike footing to help guard Algerian coastal cities.

The swift action was taken under the emergency powers bill authorizing stern military, economic and administrative measures in strife-torn Algeria.

The National Assembly approved the drastic legislation in four thumping votes of confidence for Mollet Monday. The Council of the Republic (Senate) added its overwhelming approval Thursday.

In an action-packed five-hour Cabinet session, Mollet and his minister for Algerian affairs, Robert Lacoste, pushed through a series of decrees under the emergency law.

The Cabinet dodged an immediate decision on the touchy problem of 86 Nationalist guerrillas who have been captured, tried and condemned to death. They have appealed for clemency.

The French and European community of Algeria has threatened a massive "strike" or demonstration if the sentences are not carried out within a week. Nationalists warn that execution will touch off a merciless campaign against French settlers.

Costello Leads Irish In Parade

NEW YORK, March 17—UP—Ireland's Premier John A. Costello led the way for 175,000 Irish-American marchers Saturday in a St. Patrick's Day parade down Fifth Avenue.

An estimated 750,000 spectators greeted the visitor and the marchers with a storm of cheers and applause.

The temperature was freezing, but the sky was clear and the sun shone brightly. The weather was a sharp contrast to the blizzard that swept the city throughout the night, piling snow on the streets.

Costello flew here from Washington to participate in the nation's biggest and most boisterous St. Patrick's Day celebration. Also here were 300 other Irishmen who arrived only Saturday morning by ship.

also are dim. Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex) got agreement to put the farm bill aside Monday to consider 194 other bills now on the calendar for passage by unanimous consent.

Chairman Ellender held the Agriculture Committee in several day and night sessions to report the bill to the Senate Feb. 16. It has been the main Senate business since Feb. 22, with debate limited since March 8 in an effort to force voting and passage.

"Every day of delay means that President Eisenhower's soil bank proposal will be of less help this year to farmers," Cotton said. "We are now in the fourth week of a farm bill filibuster."

He contended some Democrats "want to foozle up the farm program because it is the only peg they can hang their hats on" in the coming elections.

Cotton said that except for farm areas the Republicans "have a campaign advantage because of the President's great popularity and his record of peace, prosperity and high employment."

Ellender replied that Cotton and other Republicans "are entitled to voice their opinions but anyone who has listened to Senate farm bill debate knows they have been doing plenty of talking."

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) said a one-year restoration of mandatory rigid supports on basic farm crops may be put in the bill by a Senate-House conference.

So far the Senate has defeated efforts to junk the flexible and lower price supports won by the administration in 1954.

Sen. Aiken (R-Vt) and other flexible price supporters predict a veto by Eisenhower if rigid supports are nailed into the omnibus bill.

Disputing this, Humphrey said "I don't think Mr. Eisenhower is going to veto any bill that will increase farm income, because that's the big problem we all face this year."

Reinforcements were summoned by radio and helped to disperse the rebels, who numbered at least 12.

The seven villages in the area were cordoned off and teams of Commandoes began a search for the guerrillas and their weapons. Troops allowed only authorized persons to leave.

Security forces lifted restrictions on Nicosia's "terror area," which for three days has been isolated and combed. They emptied 10 households and closed 18 shops in a drive to root out the incubating places of 21 murders or attempted murders which have been committed in the zone since last October.

The search of the area uncovered five large bombs, 35 shotgun shells, a cartridge manufacturing kit and bundles of Communist literature and leaflets of Eoka, the rebel organization.

Gov. Sir John Harding, originally ordered 20 shops in the area to be closed. Two were exempted after a further check had revealed they were not connected with killings.

Families ordered out of their houses made a glum departure, taking their belongings in taxis and light vans. Several went to the already overcrowded homes of relatives, but others had nowhere to go. They were being punished as a group because residents of the area would give no information about who killed a British constable.

The curfew was lifted at the port of Limassol, where 20,000 people had been under virtual house detention since yesterday morning.

to avoid "violence, lawlessness and bloodshed," Ellender added.

The "declaration of constitutional principles," presented to Congress last Monday by Sen. Walter F. George (D-Ga.) and Rep. Howard W. Smith (D-Va.) kicked up storms of debate in the capital.

At his mid-week news conference, President Eisenhower pleaded for moderation by "extremists" on both sides in the segregation issue. But his remarks drew the fire of some northern Democratic liberals who called for him to speak out more firmly.

Membership Meet For West Monroe Chamber Is Set

A West Monroe chamber of commerce membership - at- large meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Monday in the city hall court room, A. Olin Evans, temporary chairman, said.

Evans said that about 300 memberships have been acquired so far and that anyone else in West Monroe is interested is asked to attend the Monday night meeting.

Officers will be selected at the meeting, he said, as well as naming a board of directors and other business.

The chairman said, "After installation of the board of directors and officers, we expect to employ a full time secretary manager and begin functioning immediately as a team. There are many things concerning all of West Monroe which we expect to work on this year."

Sen. Long Urges 12-Year Term For Supreme Justices

LAKE CHARLES, La. March 17 —UP—Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana said today that he thought U. S. Supreme Court justices should face Senate confirmation for reappointment every 12 years.

Long also said he favors a ruling requiring each justice to have at least six years of experience as a judge on a court of record. He said he was considering seeking an amendment covering the two proposals.

The junior Louisiana senator said the court's decision on segregation was the culmination of many moves in which the Supreme Court has usurped power not intended. But he pointed out, however, that his recommendations are not a direct result of the decision on segregation.

Gold Star Local Chapter Sought

Efforts will be made Tuesday to establish a local chapter of the American Gold Star Mothers, according to Mrs. Joseph B. Wrenn, secretary of the Louisiana department.

Mrs. Bessie Vandenboore, president of the Louisiana department, will be at the Frances Hotel Tuesday to receive any mothers who are interested in the forming of a local chapter.

Mrs. Wrenn said, "The organization is one that devotes its time to helping and caring for the sick veterans confined to hospitals around the country. It is also a fine way for mothers who have suffered the same experience to be together."

The clubs are composed of women who have all experienced the same grief and therefore, understand and appreciate the opportunity of keeping the light of freedom burning anywhere she may be, Mrs. Wrenn said.

Mrs. Vandenboore will be at the local hotel from 12 noon Tuesday until 6 p.m., Mrs. Wrenn said.

also are dim. Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex) got agreement to put the farm bill aside Monday to consider 194 other bills now on the calendar for passage by unanimous consent.

President Eisenhower urged speedy approval of the soil bank and other aids to farmers in a special message to Congress Jan. 9.

Chairman Ellender held the Agriculture Committee in several day and night sessions to report the bill to the Senate Feb. 16. It has been the main Senate business since Feb. 22, with debate limited since March 8 in an effort to force voting and passage.

"Every day of delay means that President Eisenhower's soil bank proposal will be of less help this year to farmers," Cotton said. "We are now in the fourth week of a farm bill filibuster."

He contended some Democrats "want to foozle up the farm program because it is the only peg they can hang their hats on" in the coming elections.

Cotton said that except for farm areas the Republicans "have a campaign advantage because of the President's great popularity and his record of peace, prosperity and high employment."

Ellender replied that Cotton and other Republicans "are entitled to voice their opinions but anyone who has listened to Senate farm bill debate knows they have been doing plenty of talking."

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) said a one-year restoration of mandatory rigid supports on basic farm crops may be put in the bill by a Senate-House conference.

So far the Senate has defeated efforts to junk the flexible and lower price supports won by the administration in 1954.

Sen. Aiken (R-Vt) and other flexible price supporters predict a veto by Eisenhower if rigid supports are nailed into the omnibus bill.

Disputing this, Humphrey said "I don't think Mr. Eisenhower is going to veto any bill that will increase farm income, because that's the big problem we all face this year."

body of the rebel who was killed.

Reinforcements were summoned by radio and helped to disperse the rebels, who numbered at least 12.

The seven villages in the area were cordoned off and teams of Commandoes began a search for the guerrillas and their weapons. Troops allowed only authorized persons to leave.

Security forces lifted restrictions on Nicosia's "terror area," which for three days has been isolated and combed. They emptied 10 households and closed 18 shops in a drive to root out the incubating places of 21 murders or attempted murders which have been committed in the zone since last October.

The search of the area uncovered five large bombs, 35 shotgun shells, a cartridge manufacturing kit and bundles of Communist literature and leaflets of Eoka, the rebel organization.

Gov. Sir John Harding, originally ordered 20 shops in the area to be closed. Two were exempted after a further check had revealed they were not connected with killings.

Families ordered out of their houses made a glum departure, taking their belongings in taxis and light vans. Several went to the already overcrowded homes of relatives, but others had nowhere to go. They were being punished as a group because residents of the area would give no information about who killed a British constable.

The curfew was lifted at the port of Limassol, where 20,000 people had been under virtual house detention since yesterday morning.

to avoid "violence, lawlessness and bloodshed," Ellender added.

The "declaration of constitutional principles," presented to Congress last Monday by Sen. Walter F. George (D-Ga.) and Rep. Howard W. Smith (D-Va.) kicked up storms of debate in the capital.

At his mid-week news conference, President Eisenhower pleaded for moderation by "extremists" on both sides in the segregation issue. But his remarks drew the fire of some northern Democratic liberals who called for him to speak out more firmly.

Sen. Long Urges 12-Year Term For Supreme Justices

LAKE CHARLES, La. March 17 —UP—Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana said today that he thought U. S. Supreme Court justices should face Senate confirmation for reappointment every 12 years.

Long also said he favors a ruling requiring each justice to have at least six years of experience as a judge on a court of record. He said he was considering seeking an amendment covering the two proposals.

The junior Louisiana senator said the court's decision on segregation was the culmination of many moves in which the Supreme Court has usurped power not intended. But he pointed out, however, that his recommendations are not a direct result of the decision on segregation.

Gold Star Local Chapter Sought

Efforts will be made Tuesday to establish a local chapter of the American Gold Star Mothers, according to Mrs. Joseph B. Wrenn, secretary of the Louisiana department.

Mrs. Bessie Vandenboore, president of the Louisiana department, will be at the Frances Hotel Tuesday to receive any mothers who are interested in the forming of a local chapter.

Mrs. Wrenn said, "The organization is one that devotes its time to helping and caring for the sick veterans confined to hospitals around the country. It is also a fine way for mothers who have suffered the same experience to be together."

The clubs are composed of women who have all experienced the same grief and therefore, understand and appreciate the opportunity of keeping the light of freedom burning anywhere she may be, Mrs. Wrenn said.

Mrs. Vandenboore will be at the local hotel from 12 noon Tuesday until 6 p.m., Mrs. Wrenn said.

GEORGE M. ROREX

Rorex Is Named Cancer Crusade Drive Chairman

George M. Rorex, vice president of Ouachita National Bank, Monroe, has been named April Cancer Crusade chairman for Ouachita Parish, Joel L. Fletcher, president of S.L.I., Lafayette, state chairman for the April drive in Louisiana, has announced.

The campaign goal in Louisiana for this year is $275,000 and to alert residents to the importance of regular physical checkups as their best cancer insurance.

Rorex has appointed chairman for the various phases of the drive and plans are under way for enthusiastic participation in the state division's April drive for funds. He stated that in Louisiana approximately $81,400 will go for research, $79,200 for public and professional education, $72,600 for service to cancer patients, $27,500 for administration and $14,300 for fund raising.

Last year's public opinion survey carried out by American Cancer Society volunteers nationally, revealed that 85 per cent of the people will contribute to the American Cancer Society when approached personally by a volunteer worker. 53 per cent were asked last year, which means that the remaining 32 per cent should be contacted during the 1956 Crusade.

Rorex said that the April Crusade in Ouachita Parish would consist of solicitation of special donors and solicitation of residents through the Neighbor-to-Neighbor drive.

The Ouachita Cancer Crusade will begin officially on Monday, April 9, Rorex announced.

Two Prisoners Are Flown To Angola

Ouachita Parish Sheriff Bailey Grant has announced the transfer of two more convicted prisoners to the state penitentiary at Angola from Ouachita pairsh.

The two prisoners were Billy Dean, 19, who received a three-year sentence for burglary, and Nemi Foggy, 41, Negro, who was sentenced to five years for burglary.

They were flown to the prison by Deputy Sheriff Dick Bell.

Annual Meeting Of State Press Association Ends

NEW ORLEANS, March 17 (AP)—The Louisiana Press Assn. closed its annual meeting today with the election of officers.

New board members include Robert W. Wagner, Jena, immediate past president; George Larson, Winnfield; John Gordon, Houma; and Roland Huson, Zachary.

Robert Angers of Franklin, said weekly newspapers should get together and discuss their newsprint problems with officials of the Valentine Paper and Pulp Co. plant at Lockport.

It has been proved that newsprint can be made from sugar cane bagasse, he said. The "bugs" can be worked out of the process to make the product more attractive to publishers if the producer would be given some incentive to produce newsprint in quantity to satisfy newspapers, especially small town dailies and weeklies, in the state.

Angers said it might be to the advantage of Louisiana publishers to talk things over with Valentine Co. officials.

Small newspapers in every state can get more national advertising through services by organizations like the Audit Bureau of Circulation and Weekly News Representatives; Inc.

In a panel discussion, C P. Liter of Baton Rouge, said newspapers should support the LPA's legislative committee. Such committees have been called by other names, Liter said, but they are "democracy at work."

He said newspapers can tell their stories to legislators not with pressure but with facts.

New members elected to the board of Community Newspaper Representatives, Louisiana weekly newspaper advertising representative, are John Harrah, Crowley; Nathan Bolton, Bastrop; Harold Anthony, Mansfield; Joe Silverberg, Thibodaux, and Angers.

The delegates went on a conducted motor tour of the city this afternoon, and attended a dance aboard a river steamer tonight.

Man's Struggle To Preserve His Soul

The supreme struggle raging in the world today is the struggle of the individual to preserve his individuality against conformist pressures of society and the state.

This epic battle is not new—and, in fact, it has ebbed and flowed through all the pages of recorded history; and, in likelihood, back to the days of the cavemen, our ancient ancestors, and beyond.

Nobody knows how long man has inhabited the earth, but the present trend of scientific thinking, based on new methods and discoveries, is to ascribe to him a far greater age than has hitherto been supposed.

Nobody knows how long man has been a gregarious animal; or whether, during geological ages of the past, our ancestors dwelt in communities or in pairs and families. We do know that the cavemen of Europe were community dwellers, with established taboos and government of a rude sort. Yet they may have been very late-comers on the scene. The origin of man, and his most ancient history back to the beginning, still is shrouded in doubt and mystery that may be solved by further discoveries and patient investigation.

In the present state of our knowledge, it would appear that the main distinguishing characteristic between man and lesser primates was the development of individual will and judgment, based on intelligence.

Instinct, which rules the animate world in all categories except that of man, is a form of intelligence exercised on a collective or mass basis. The sabre-toothed tiger, a formidable fighting beast, roamed the forests and plains alone, or at best in pairs—never en masse. Yet his instinct was a collective thing, based on promptings of his ancestry and what little he learned from his environment. It was never based on individual will or judgment, in the sense that man's actions are. The tiger reacted according to instinct. He did what his ancestors had done, perhaps improving on their methods in an evolutionary process. He lacked intelligence, and eventually, with changing conditions, disappeared from the earth.

Yet man's development of individual will and judgment based on intelligence at once labeled him as a non-conformist, an individualist, thinking for himself, fearful of the pressures exerted against him to "conform." Man became the eternal rebel—and he still is just that. At the same time, the pressure to conform in a collectivist society grew and grew; so that man, the rebel, and man the collectivist, were in constant warfare—and they are in such fundamental warfare today.

From sun worship, man evolved religions; and, strange as it might appear, most of these religions have been on the side of the individualist against the conformist and the possible tyranny of slavish systems hatched by the state. The great religions, including Christianity as a supreme example of beauty and spiritual grandeur, and eternal hope, with its divine inspiration, stress the direct individual relationship between man and his creator.

Marxism as a religion now sweeping portions of the world is based on man's supposed subservience to the state, and the supremacy of the state. It denies to man an individual conscience or soul, or any relationship with Deity, which it disavows and scorns. It would shrink man into the pitiful figure of a faceless toiler, soulless and sodden, an insect without hope or courage or faith, endlessly working to glorify fat bureaucrats who live in Oriental luxury and vice and looted splendor.

On all fronts, all over the world, the struggle of the individual to preserve his individuality against conformist pressures of society and the state continues day by day.

The question it poses is this: Shall man be an individual with a soul, or an ant in an ant-heap?

The FBI In Counter-Intelligence

The Federal Bureau of Investigation headed by J. Edgar Hoover, a fabulous police chief surpassing the fictional concepts of such masters as Edgar Allen Poe and Arthur Conyan Doyle, usually has its fingers in any game of insurrection hatching in America.

The game may be thick and deep, but in most instances the FBI is there, with a representative.

A subcommittee of the House Un-American Activities Committee, holding hearings in Charlotte, North Carolina, ferreting out Communist agents and influences attempting to destroy this country, heard a number of witnesses who invoked amendments.

It also heard two witnesses, Charles B. Childs and Odis R. Reavis, one 21 and the other 31, who unknown to one another were agents of the FBI planted in Communist cells, reporting on the nefarious activities of these organizations.

Winston-Salem was the main hotspot of the Communist network in North Carolina. Another hotspot was High Point.

Childs, 21 years old, with a crew-cut haircut had entered the Communist Party in 1950, as a student and laboratory instructor in the University of North Carolina.

Reavis, 31 years old, soft spoken but deadly, a man that would "kill you at the drop of a hat", dated back to 1948 in Detroit where he hooked up with the Reds.

Both, strangely paired, were patriots, in the employ of the FBI.They had reported against each other, and against the Communist cells and their personnel.

At the committee hearing, revealing their true affiliations for the first time in years, they laughed and talked together.

This is an instance of counter-espionage on the home front, nailing down Communist spies and subversives, where two secret agents of the FBI, from different points, were thrown together and yet worked independantly, neither realizing the identity of the other.

Such instances are rare, yet reassuring to all patriotic Americans.

Here were Communist cells doubly cased by secret agents of the FBI—brave men, taking their lives in their hands, enduring indignity and opprobrium from relatives and friends and society in general, unable to speak in their own defense—counter-espionage agents.

There are many Communist cells in America today; and no doubt secret agents of the FBI rooted in their midst, reporting everything that happens.

'Brotherly Love'

Ruston, La.

Editor, Morning World:

The following words were spoken by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover: "To me, one of the most unbelieveable and unexplainable phenomena in the fight on Communism is the manner in which otherwise respectable seemingly intelligent persons, perhaps unknowingly, aid the Communist cause more effectively than the Communists themselves."

Mr. Hoover was talking to Daughters of the American Revolution (Apr. 22-54) but his accusations were no doubt directed toward our ministers and religious leaders. After several years of painstaking, the Communists have made dupes of certain of our ministers and their assistants. The Communists know that if they can brainwash the minister of a neighborhood, they can take your boy or girl from you.

It is now axiomatic that the Communists are firmly behind this drive to integrate our schools and churches. This, the Communists are positive, will result in a revolution or mongrelization. Part of the Communist "religion" is to "Sow hatred among the masses who disagree with us" and to "Divide and conquor."

Some of our ministers and religious leaders have evidently accepted the Red propaganda of "Brotherly love" and "Segregation is un-Christian" which is just a ruse to integrate our churches. We can show our brotherly love for our colored people without the aftermath of a mongrel race. Segregation is not un-Christian. It is the law of God. He is the author of segregation. If He had been desirous of one race of people, one color, He would have made it so. If you should turn some scrub cattle into a rancher's thoroughbred breed he would shoot you with an A-bomb. This is similar to what some of our ministers are doing to God's human race.

Opposed To School Move

Monroe, La.

Editor, Morning World:

There is a move underway within the Parish School Board, to turn the present High School Building into a Grammar and Junior High School and to build a High School out at Spanish City.

I have talked to a number of parents in this area and none of them are in favor of this plan. The present high school is centrally located and we do not see the need of building out where our children would have to travel one of the busiest highways in the South to get to school and back.

The School Board has an option on some land on this side of town, and we believe that it should be bought for a Grammar and Junior High School, as was the original plan, and that the High School should be left right where it is.

I am speaking as the mother of three children who will attend this High School — one of them in the next year.

I don't think we should sit down and let our High School be taken away from us. Let's hear from some more of you parents on the South side-do you want your children to have to go to Spanish City to High School?

The Females Interrupt

Someone got a portable television machine and during the period that I am a shut-in, it is suggested that I look at it. So to please those who want to make life on 1,500 calories cheerful, I do have a look and it is most distressing because the advertisements are so numerous and so dumb. Apparently it is difficult to make television pay and therefore the advertisements are more numerous than on radio. Certainly they interfere more with the sequence of what one is looking at, particularly if it is a good murder. Plop right in the middle comes a female who is trying to sell something that I shall undoubtedly never buy but maybe somebody else will.

It seemed to me on the third or fourth day of looking at television that the commercials consumed more time and more of my energy than was warranted and interfered with the entertainment and I returned to a book which, good or bad, did not have any female saleswomen, all talking the same way, with the same intonations, and all selling things that certainly no man would want like stuff to keep the hair in place. It used to be rumored that there were such men in the State Department but Scott McLeod is supposed to have got rid of them. Put it as you will, I do not thrill to these females. When I want to see a murder, let me have it without being interrupted by stuff to make my skin soft or to take care of my viscera.

Presumably this is a big problem because if privately-owned television is to continue, it must depend upon excessive advertising and also it must have every program interrupted several times. It would seem that the cost of a program is so high that they have to have two or three sponsors. All of a sudden, I am told to drink beer, but beer was never my drink. Personally, I prefer wine and principally a distinguished Bordeaux.

I am concentrating on a story. Not a bad story, at that. The murderer is played very well but I am sure that virtue will triumph in the end. But no! I suddenly come out of my trance. I am being interested in beer a dry beer, I am told. Who wants a dry beer? If I drink at all, I want my drink wet—very wet. This is no play on words: it is a response to stupid advertising.

When an advertisement runs in a newspaper, the reader is never startled by a jingle sung in dissonanse. The advantage to the advertiser is that nobody asks why they sing out of tune or why their voices are so queer, or who wrote the text of a diverting jingle. It is possible to read the advertisement without diversion. There is a coffee whose jingle I like, but it has not influenced me to drink the coffee because all I can think about when I hear it is that the lady singer would do well in a church choir. Then I forget the name of the coffee.

The trouble with husksters is that once they get into a pattern, they cannot get out of it. When the jingles started, they were novel and even interesting, but by now we have had them and they have become tiresome and repetitious.

Another fault I find with television is that it is absorbing like adolescent love. You have to go steady with the darn thing. For instance, I can listen to radio and read something, but with television it is different. If you look at it, you must concentrate. So the hours fly. Maybe there are millions of people who have a yearning for what is called passing the time. For them, this machine is just the right thing. They can use up hours to little advantage but pleasantly and go to bed with a clear conscience because they have not wasted their time in idle conversation as to whether Nixon will or should be the next Vice President, as futile a discussion as whether the communist 20th Congress changed anything.

Somehow, I have missed any intellectual programs. They must come at hours when I am not available. I shall search some out to discover how a profound discussion is interrupted by a female selling a mattress.

Discuss Compromise Plan For Electoral Reform

WASHINGTON —Agreement is being sought this week on a compromise plan for electoral college reform, a move that could increase the average voter's voice in the selection of the President.

Senators are trying to iron out differences before the floor debate, scheduled for March 19, begins. No final understandisg has been reached, but this is the plan under discussion:

1—The electoral vote of each state would be divided among the three leading candidates in that state, according to their share of the popular vote, unless

2—The state legislature decided to give one electoral vote to the leading candidate in each Congressional district and the rest of the state's electoral votes to the candidate with a statewide plurality.

3—High man in the nation would win, but if no candidate received a majority of the electoral vote, Senators and Representatives, sitting jointly but voting as individuals, would pick the President from the two men with the largest electoral vote. A majority of the combined votes of the Senate and House would be needed to elect.

Under the existing system, the leading candidate in a state receives all its electoral votes, and a majority of the national electoral vote is needed for election. If no candidate receives a majority, the House of Representatives, voting by state and with each state having one vote, chooses the President from the three leading nominees.

The compromise plan includes elements of three proposals submitted separately to the Senate. The first clause is the old Lodge-Gossett plan, presented this year by Sens. Price Daniel (D. Texas) and Estes Kefauver (D. Tenn.). The suggestion that only the leading three candidates in a state share its electoral vote came from Sen. Strom Thurmond (D. S. C.).

Clause Two, the alternate voting method, is the Mundt-Coudert plan, backed by Sen. Karl E. Mundt (R. S. D.) and Rep. Frederic R. Coudert (R. N. Y.).

Requiring a majority of the national electoral vote is a concession to Mundt and Thurmond by Daniel, who originally favored a 40 per cent minimum for election. The voting method in Congress, however, is that suggested by Daniel and Mundt. Thurmond wanted the contest decided by the House of Representatives, with balloting by states, each state to have one vote. Under the compromise both Mundt and Thurmond would accept Daniel's suggestion that the voting in Congress be limited to the top two candidates, rather than three, as they had originally proposed.

If the compromise is not agreed to, the Thurmond, Mundt-Coudert and Kefauver - Daniel plans probably will be considered separately. The odds against any legislation's passing would be increased.

Two other proposals also are slated for Senate consideration. Sen. William Langer (R., N. D.) will urge direct, popular election of the President. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.) has a plan to divide 435 electoral votes on the basis of the candidates' share of the national popular vote, giving two electoral votes to the man with a plurality in each state. Neither scheme is given much chance of passage.

Congress has been debating plans to reform the electoral college since the early 1800's. There has been general agreement that the existing system has serious flaws. But attempts to repair them have seemed to jeopardize the delicate balance between big states and little states, urban and rural areas, North and South, Democrats and Republicans, federal and state sovereignty, major and minor parties, the President and Congress.

Nor would the consequences be entirely in the realm of theory. Mr. Eisenhower's 1952 margin could have varied from 219 to 41 votes, depending on which electoral reform system was in effect. Some of the plans would have thrown the 1948 election into the House of Representatives.

The last time electoral reform came up, in 1950, the Senate approved a measure identical with the Kefauver - Daniel plan, 64-27. But the bill was bottled up in the House Rules Committee and a move to bring it to the floor failed, 134-210.

If the Senate approves legislation this year, the House is liable to be a bottleneck again. Chairman Emanuel Celler of the House Judiciary Committee (D., N. Y.) says, "I doubt very much if we can get successful action on electoral reform this session."

Revamping the electoral college will require a constitutional amendment, which must be approved by to two-thirds vote in the House and Senate and then passed by 36 state legislatures. Even if reform legislation clears Congress this year, it would not affect the count of the 1956 election.

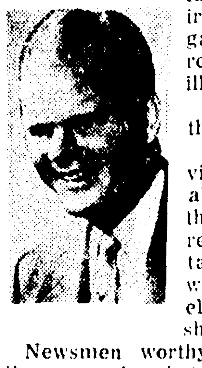
Hit And Run Cowards

Any politician, amateur or professional, who comes out waving his arms and denouncing any status quo, has an irrefutable obligation to offer a remedy for the ill he criticizes.



This goes for the lot of them.

A private individual may be able to afford the luxury of irresponsible attack, but the men who want to be elected should show cause why.

Newsmen worthy of the tradition recognize that obligation. It is not written into any of the rule books or the union contracts but it is burned into the background of ethical editors that they don't just tilt with windmills.

Yet politicians seem too often to consider themselves exempt from this basic moral law.

I'm talking about the ones who beat their breasts about foreign policy, without suggesting a better one. . .

The charlatans who denounce the disposition of a problem by some Alabama university officials without spelling out a practical solution to that problem. . .

This includes the sob sisters who say we should not punish juvenile criminals, but fail to say what we should do. . .

These people who scream disturbing questions without satisfactory answers are hit-and-run moral cowards.

As I say, a private individual whose opinions are his own responsibility may criticize to his heart's content. I mistrust the integrity of anybody who complains too persistently. Constructive criticism makes sense. But just plain criticism is generally an outward manifestation of some personal frustration.

Or, as Shakespeare puts it less kindly, "The loud mouth oft bespeaks the vacant mind."

But where such idle oratory may be permissible in the cocktail bar or the bridge club or the club car, it is not an acceptable practice on the part of someone who is asking you to send him to the capitol.

In a Republic, our elected representatives do our thinking for us. The politician is asking you to trust him to do your thinking for you. In important decisions!

What can he possibly accomplish in high office if his only excuse for being there is that he's anti-everything?

This goes for the "statesman" who preaches that taxes are too high, but fails to spell out where he would cut them. . .

It includes the windbag who blasts the present farm program, but can't rectify it.

Equally guilty is the fraud who says he's for our Constitution and he's also for the Communists who would shoot holes in it.

It includes the spook who is against "big business" or against "big labor" without spelling out his personal plan for limiting their size.

It goes for the would-be mayor who charges that the police force is corrupt, but can't explain where he's going to get enough saints to serve at these prices.

If the politicians would limit their criticism to something they know something about. . .and can do something about. . .we'd all listen more attentively and elect more wisely.

Maybe that's what they're afraid of.

It came as no surprise to the reporters covering The European Beat that Margaret Truman fell hard for Daniel. . . . His confreres report that "E. C." had been the champ among American heartbreakers abroad for nearly 15 years. . . . The list of women who have been in love with him can be found by turning the pages of the Almanac de Gotha, the screen mags and Dun & Bradstreet's.

Daniel's biggest previous romance came during the war years in London when he was expected to marry the Countess of Jersey, who used to be Virginia Cherrill of Hollywood. . . . Daniel was rated the most social of the foreign correspondents. . . . The marriageable daughters of scores of noble families were simply mad about him. . . . And so were their mothers.

When the N. Y. Times assigned him to Moscow, the top quip around Fleet Street (London) was that the mystery of Anastasia, daughter of the Czar, would soon be solved. "If she was alive—she'd be lunching with E. C. at the Metropole!"

Daniel, his fellows say, was social but he wasn't high-hat as a newspaperman. When a big story broke he could run as fast as the next guy. . . . His betrothal to Margaret will do no good to Anglo-American relations. They'll be hanging out the crepe on a lot of stately homes of England.

"My Fair Lady," the musical version of G. B. Shaw's "Pygmalion," arrives tonight. It is already Broadway's Favorite Girl. It has a Fort Knox advance sale plus Tiffany bids from Hollywood. . . . The Messrs. Shubert lost this goldmine because they wouldn't guarantee the producer a theater. The Shuberts obviously need a manager. . . . Arthur Kennedy is the only actor in a Broadway play up for an Oscar because of his lawyer role in the movie, "Trial." By way of coincidence, he plays a lawyer in the Theater Guild's hit, "Time Limit!" . . . One of the sketches in the next edition of "New Faces" will deal with Elsa Maxwell. Another will satirize the elaborate plans for building a modern palace atop the Pennsy Station. . . . Looks like the Democrats are in for a peculiar year. A wedding in Independence and a Wake in Washington.

Startling statistic — among the more than 2,000 tickets handed out to New Yorkers last week end not one was for drunken driving . . . Richard Llewellyn's next thriller novel (due next month) is based on the Maclean - Burgess spy case. The title: "Mr. Hamish Gleave" . . . Nifty word coinage in a foreign paper: Refer to juvenile girls as "Jean-Agers" . . . Billy Moore of New York's Dinty Moore's has taken over Palm Beach's No. 1 spot, The Taboo. His pod'na is Jim Peterson . . . "Time Limit," a Broadway - bound play, was cheered by audiences at Pittsburgh and Washington . . . Red Buttons and his wife shudder when he gets teevee offers. He has three spectacs to do — then hopes for a film or show . . . Wm. Powell, Jr. is beaumancing Candy Lawrence, an Arthur Murray eyeful . . . Drama critic Walter Kerr's wife Jean (she wrote "King of Hearts") will do the musical version of Cleveland Amory's "The Last Resorts" . . . Lindsay & Crouse and Irving Berlin tried it and gave up.

Bostonian Mint Herbert Cole's pet cole slaw is publicist Betty Lee Hunt. Intimates expect them to marry . . . Movie exec Lowell Benedict's next bride will be a Hollywidow . . . Rose Franken's lawyer-son Paul has a case on socialite Kerry Smith . . . Pat Matthews, the lark, and Ron Ascher, the shoe giant, didn't keep it any secret from the Bob Olin's crowd . . .

It is not often that a Policeman gets any thought at all from the general public such as the editorial in your paper and it gives me a great feeling to know that we do have a fine paper such as the Monroe Morning World who will make statements of a policeman in the respective manner as you did yesterday in your paper.

Being a peace officer myself the editorial was felt by me deeply in my heart as it did all other officers that saw the paper and I would like to take this means to express my appreciation to you and your staff for the outstanding remarks about the Peace Officer.

Should it ever come your duty to call on me in any manner do not hesitate as I would be more than glad to serve you in any way.

'Brotherly Love'

Ruston, La.

Editor, Morning World:

The following words were spoken by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover: "To me, one of the most unbelieveable and unexplainable phenomena in the fight on Communism is the manner in which otherwise respectable seemingly intelligent persons, perhaps unknowingly, aid the Communist cause more effectively than the Communists themselves."

Mr. Hoover was talking to Daughters of the American Revolution (Apr. 22-54) but his accusations were no doubt directed toward our ministers and religious leaders. After several years of painstaking, the Communists have made dupes of certain of our ministers and their assistants. The Communists know that if they can brainwash the minister of a neighborhood, they can take your boy or girl from you.

It is now axiomatic that the Communists are firmly behind this drive to integrate our schools and churches. This, the Communists are positive, will result in a revolution or mongrelization. Part of the Communist "religion" is to "Sow hatred among the masses who disagree with us" and to "Divide and conquor."

Some of our ministers and religious leaders have evidently accepted the Red propaganda of "Brotherly love" and "Segregation is un-Christian" which is just a ruse to integrate our churches. We can show our brotherly love for our colored people without the aftermath of a mongrel race. Segregation is not un-Christian. It is the law of God. He is the author of segregation. If He had been desirous of one race of people, one color, He would have made it so. If you should turn some scrub cattle into a rancher's thoroughbred breed he would shoot you with an A-bomb. This is similar to what some of our ministers are doing to God's human race.

Opposed To School Move

Monroe, La.

Editor, Morning World:

There is a move underway within the Parish School Board, to turn the present High School Building into a Grammar and Junior High School and to build a High School out at Spanish City.

I have talked to a number of parents in this area and none of them are in favor of this plan. The present high school is centrally located and we do not see the need of building out where our children would have to travel one of the busiest highways in the South to get to school and back.

The School Board has an option on some land on this side of town, and we believe that it should be bought for a Grammar and Junior High School, as was the original plan, and that the High School should be left right where it is.

I am speaking as the mother of three children who will attend this High School — one of them in the next year.

I don't think we should sit down and let our High School be taken away from us. Let's hear from some more of you parer's on the South side-do you want your children to have to go to Spanish City to High School?

The Females Interrupt

Someone got a portable television machine and during the period that I am a shut-in, it is suggested that I look at it. So to please those who want to make life on 1,500 calories cheerful, I do have a look and it is most distressing because the advertisements are so numerous and so dumb. Apparently it is difficult to make television pay and therefore the advertisements are more numerous than on radio. Certainly they interfere more with the sequence of what one is looking at, particularly if it is a good murder. Plop right in the middle comes a female who is trying to sell something that I shall undoubtedly never buy but maybe somebody else will.

It seemed to me on the third or fourth day of looking at television that the commercials consumed more time and more of my energy than was warranted and interfered with the entertainment and I returned to a book which, good or bad, did not have any female saleswomen, all talking the same way, with the same intonations, and all selling things that certainly no man would want iike stuff to keep the hair in place. It used to be rumored that there were such men in the State Department but Scott McLeod is supposed to have got rid of them. Put it as you will, I do not thrill to these females. When I want to see a murder, let me have it without being interrupted by stuff to make my skin soft or to take care of my viscera.

Presumably this is a big problem because if privately-owned television is to continue, it must depend upon excessive advertising and also it must have every program interrupted several times. It would seem that the cost of a program is so high that they have to have two or three sponsors. All of a sudden, I am told to drink beer, but beer was never my drink. Personally, I prefer wine and principally a distinguished Bordeaux.

I am concentrating on a story. Not a bad story, at that. The murderer is played very well but I am sure that virtue will triumph in the end. But no! I suddenly come out of my trance. I am being interested in beer a dry beer, I am told. Who wants a dry beer? If I drink at all, I want my drink wet—very wet. This is no play on words: it is a response to stupid advertising.

When an advertisement runs in a newspaper, the reader is never startled by a jingle sung in dissonanse. The advantage to the advertiser is that nobody asks why they sing out of tune or why their voices are so queer, or who wrote the text of a diverting jingle. It is possible to read the advertisement without diversion. There is a coffee whose jingle I like, but it has not influenced me to drink the coffee because all I can think about when I hear it is that the lady singer would do well in a church choir. Then I forget the name of the coffee.

The trouble with husksters is that once they get into a pattern, they cannot get out of it. When the jingles started, they were novel and even interesting, but by now we have had them and they have become tiresome and repetitious.

Another fault I find with television is that it is absorbing like adolescent love. You have to go steady with the darn thing. For instance, I can listen to radio and read something, but with television it is different. If you look at it, you must concentrate. So the hours fly. Maybe there are millions of people who have a yearning for what is called passing the time. For them, this machine is just the right thing. They can use up hours to little advantage but pleasantly and go to bed with a clear conscience because they have not wasted their time in idle conversation as to whether Nixon will or should be the next Vice President, as futile a discussion as whether the communist 20th Congress changed anything.

Somehow, I have missed any intellectual programs. They must come at hours when I am not available. I shall search some out to discover how a profound discussion is interrupted by a female selling a mattress.

Discuss Compromise Plan For Electoral Reform

WASHINGTON —Agreement is being sought this week on a compromise plan for electoral college reform, a move that could increase the average voter's voice in the selection of the President.

Senators are trying to iron out differences before the floor debate, scheduled for March 19, begins. No final understandisg has been reached, but this is the plan under discussion:

1—The electoral vote of each state would be divided among the three leading candidates in that state, according to their share of the popular vote, unless

2—The state legislature decided to give one electoral vote to the leading candidate in each Congressional district and the rest of the state's electoral votes to the candidate with a statewide plurality.

3—High man in the nation would win, but if no candidate received a majority of the electoral vote, Senators and Representatives, sitting jointly but voting as individuals, would pick the President from the two men with the largest electoral vote. A majority of the combined votes of the Senate and House would be needed to elect.

Under the existing system, the leading candidate in a state receives all its electoral votes, and a majority of the national electoral vote is needed for election. If no candidate receives a majority, the House of Representatives, voting by state and with each state having one vote, chooses the President from the three leading nominees.

The compromise plan includes elements of three proposals submitted separately to the Senate. The first clause is the old Lodge-Gossett plan, presented this year by Sens. Price Daniel (D. Texas) and Estes Kefauver (D. Tenn.). The suggestion that only the leading three candidates in a state share its electoral vote came from Sen. Strom Thurmond (D. S. C.).

Requiring a majority of the national electoral vote is a concession to Mundt and Thurmond by Daniel, who originally favored a 40 per cent minimum for election. The voting method in Congress, however, is that suggested by Daniel and Mundt. Thurmond wanted the contest decided by the House of Representatives, with balloting by states, each state to have one vote. Under the compromise both Mundt and Thurmond would accept Daniel's suggestion that the voting in Congress be limited to the top two candidates, rather than three, as they had originally proposed.

If the compromise is not agreed to, the Thurmond, Mundt-Coudert and Kefauver - Daniel plans probably will be considered separately. The odds against any legislation's passing would be increased.

Two other proposals also are slated for Senate consideration. Sen. William Langer (R., N. D.) will urge direct, popular election of the President. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.) has a plan to divide 435 electoral votes on the basis of the candidates' share of the national popular vote, giving two electoral votes to the man with a plurality in each state. Neither scheme is given much chance of passage.

Congress has been debating plans to reform the electoral college since the early 1800's. There has been general agreement that the existing system has serious flaws. But attempts to repair them have seemed to jeopardize the delicate balance between big states and little states, urban and rural areas, North and South, Democrats and Republicans, federal and state sovereignty, major and minor parties, the President and Congress.

Nor would the consequences be entirely in the realm of theory. Mr. Eisenhower's 1952 margin could have varied from 219 to 41 votes, depending on which electoral reform system was in effect. Some of the plans would have thrown the 1948 election into the House of Representatives.

The last time electoral reform came up, in 1950, the Senate approved a measure identical with the Kefauver - Daniel plan, 64-27. But the bill was bottled up in the House Rules Committee and a move to bring it to the floor failed, 134-210.

If the Senate approves legislation this year, the House is liable to be a bottleneck again. Chairman Emanuel Celler of the House Judiciary Committee (D., N. Y.) says, "I doubt very much if we can get successful action on electoral reform this session."

Revamping the electoral college will require a constitutional amendment, which must be approved by to two-thirds vote in the House and Senate and then passed by 36 state legislatures. Even if reform legislation clears Congress this year, it would not affect the count of the 1956 election.

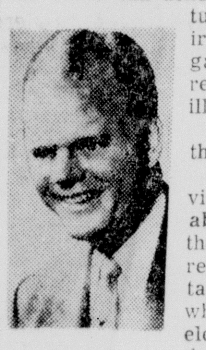
Hit And Run Cowards

Any politician, amateur or professional, who comes out waving his arms and denouncing any status quo, has an irrefutable obligation to offer a remedy for the ill he criticizes.



This goes for the lot of them.

A private individual may be able to afford the luxury of irresponsible attack, but the men who want to be elected should show cause why.

Newsmen worthy of the tradition recognize that obligation. It is not written into any of the rule books or the union contracts but it is burned into the background of ethical editors that they don't just tilt with windmills.

Yet politicians seem too often to consider themselves exempt from this basic moral law.

I'm talking about the ones who beat their breasts about foreign policy, without suggesting a better one. . .

The charlatans who denounce the disposition of a problem by some Alabama university officials without spelling out a practical solution to that problem. . .

This includes the sob sisters who say we should not punish juvenile criminals, but fail to say what we should do. . .

These people who scream disturbing questions without satisfactory answers are hit-and-run moral cowards.

As I say, a private individual whose opinions are his own responsibility may criticize to his heart's content. I mistrust the integrity of anybody who complains too persistently. Constructive criticism makes sense. But just plain criticism is generally an outward manifestation of some personal frustration.

Or, as Shakespeare puts it less kindly, "The loud mouth oft bespeaks the vacant mind."

But where such idle oratory may be permissible in the cocktail bar or the bridge club or the club car, it is not an acceptable practice on the part of someone who is asking you to send him to the capitol.

In a Republic, our elected representatives do our thinking for us. The politician is asking you to trust him to do your thinking for you. In important decisions!

What can he possibly accomplish in high office if his only excuse for being there is that he's anti-everything?

This goes for the "statesman" who preaches that taxes are too high, but fails to spell out where he would cut them. . .

It includes the windbag who blasts the present farm program, but can't rectify it.

Equally guilty is the fraud who says he's for our Constitution and he's also for the Communists who would shoot holes in it.

It includes the spook who is against "big business" or against "big labor" without spelling out his personal plan for limiting their size.

It goes for the would-be mayor who charges that the police force is corrupt, but can't explain where he's going to get enough saints to serve at these prices.

If the politicians would limit their criticism to something they know something about. . .and can do something about. . .we'd all listen more attentively and elect more wisely.

Lights Over Broadway

It came as no surprise to the reporters covering The European Beat that Margaret Truman fell hard for Daniel. . . . His confreres report that "E. C." had been the champ among American heartbreakers abroad for nearly 15 years. . . . The list of women who have been in love with him can be found by turning the pages of the Almanac de Gotha, the screen mags and Dun & Bradstreet's.

Daniel's biggest previous romance came during the war years in London when he was expected to marry the Countess of Jersey, who used to be Virginia Cherrill of Hollywood. . . . Daniel was rated the most social of the foreign correspondents. . . . The marriageable daughters of scores of noble families were simply mad about him. . . . And so were their mothers.

When the N. Y. Times assigned him to Moscow, the top quip around Fleet Street (London) was that the mystery of Anastasia, daughter of the Czar, would soon be solved. "If she was alive—she'd be lunching with E. C. at the Metropole!"

Daniel, his fellows say, was social but he wasn't high-hat as a newspaperman. When a big story broke he could run as fast as the next guy. . . . His betrothal to Margaret will do no good to Anglo-American relations. They'll be hanging out the crepe on a lot of stately homes of England.

"My Fair Lady," the musical version of G. B. Shaw's "Pygmalion," arrives tonight. It is already Broadway's Favorite Girl. It has a Fort Knox advance sale plus Tiffany bids from Hollywood. . . . The Messrs. Shubert lost this goldmine because they wouldn't guarantee the producer a theater. The Shuberts obviously need a manager. . . . Arthur Kennedy is the only actor in a Broadway play up for an Oscar because of his lawyer role in the movie, "Trial." By way of coincidence, he plays a lawyer in the Theater Guild's hit, "Time Limit!" . . . One of the sketches in the next edition of "New Faces" will deal with Elsa Maxwell. Another will satirize the elaborate plans for building a modern palace atop the Pennsy Station. . . . Looks like the Democrats are in for a peculiar year. A wedding in Independence and a Wake in Washington.

Startling statistic — among the more than 2,000 tickets handed out to New Yorkers last week end not one was for drunken driving . . . Richard Llewellyn's next thriller novel (due next month) is based on the Maclean - Burgess spy case. The title: "Mr. Hamish Gleave" . . . Nifty word coinage in a foreign paper: Refer to juvenile girls as "Jean-Agers" . . . Billy Moore of New York's Dinty Moore's has taken over Palm Beach's No. 1 spot, The Taboo. His pod'na is Jim Peterson . . . "Time Limit," a Broadway - bound play, was cheered by audiences at Pittsburgh and Washington . . . Red Buttons and his wife shudder when he gets teevee offers. He has three spectacs to do — then hopes for a film or show . . . Wm. Powell, Jr. is beaumancing Candy Lawrence, an Arthur Murray eyeful . . . Drama critic Walter Kerr's wife Jean (she wrote "King of Hearts") will do the musical version of Cleveland Amory's "The Last Resorts" . . . Lindsay & Crouse and Irving Berlin tried it and gave up.

Bostonian Mint Herbert Cole's pet cole slaw is publicist Betty Lee Hunt. Intimates expect them to marry . . . Movie exec Lowell Benedict's next bride will be a Hollywidow . . . Six-State Tour

Highly Educated Pair Confesses Thefts By Check

JOPLIN, Mo., March 17—UP — Two well-dressed and apparently highly educated men startled officers Saturday with admissions that they had passed about 80 bad checks in six states during a cross country tour which began in Washington, Feb 13.

In a written statement filled with four-syllable words and such terms as "modus operandus" Ford said their first stop was at Birmingham, Ala., where they cashed about 15 checks for a net profit of about $275. Jackson, Miss., yielded at least $250 from 10 checks cashed Feb. 20, he said. The next day the two moved to Galveston, Tex., where they remained until March 5, cashing about 30 checks.

Ford said their "modus operandus" included meticulous care to violate no federal law. In each locality the men obtained a pad of blank checks from a local bank. The left-overs were thrown away before they crossed any state line, he said.

All checks were for $25 or less and were cashed at stores where purchases were made

Descriptions provided by three Joplin grocers Friday afternoon brought the arrest. Two detectives spotted the pair and took them in custody.

Until the men "admitted all" Saturday morning, officers had had no hint of their activities elsewhere police said.

New York Solons Demand Sale Of Arms To Israel

WASHINGTON, March 17—UP—New York state's Democratic congressional delegation urged President Eisenhower Saturday to sell Israel $50 million worth of U.S. arms to "prevent war in the Middle East.".

The 17 congressmen, in a joint letter to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, ridiculed administration arguments that weapons shipments to Israel might touch off an arms race in the Middle East.

Citing reports that $250 million worth of Communist arms are en route to Arab nations, the congressmen asked:

"Would it be an arms race to permit David to have a sling to face the threats of a Goliath?"

The lawmakers warned that unless Israel is allowed to buy the "defense arms" she has asked from America, the Arab nations "may move swiftly, as they have often threatened, to push Israel into the sea."

A showdown on Israeli arms and other U.S. policies in the troubled Middle East may come when Dulles returns next Wednesday from an East Asian tour.

Officials said Dulles and President Eisenhower are expected to meet soon after his return to plan U.S. strategy on the Arab-Israel situation, the disturbances in Cyprus, and other problems.

Dulles goes before the Senate Foreign Relations committee Thursday and the House Foreign Affairs committee Friday.

Awards Are Presented At Parish Broiler Show

Blue, red and white ribbons were handed out Saturday morning to Ouachita 4—H Club exhibitors of the entries shown in the parish Chicken-of-Tomorrow contest held at the West Monroe Fair Grounds.

Exhibitors of the top placing pens of six-cockerels—all White Plymouth Rocks —were Everett Whitlock, Linwil community; Robert Freeman, West Monroe; Judy Holley, Logtown community, and Jeanette Holdeman, Lampkin.

Cash premiums were presented to the 4—H'ers by Paul Ransom, head of the chamber's agriculture committee. Judging was handled by Frank McDermott, state poultry and egg inspector, John Birdsong and Ed Smith.

Weight of the pens of six cockerels ranged from 19½ pounds down to 12 pounds. Most of the birds in the competition averaged around three pounds apiece or more. They were seven weeks old.

The four top pens of broilers will be taken Tuesday to Alexandria to compete in the state Chicken-of-Tomorrow contest there this week.

While the broiler entries from Ouachita parish are competing for honors with those from some 54 other parishes, Carol Shipp, 14, of Bosco, who was chosen recently as 4—H poultry queen will vie for the state beauty title in a pageant to be conducted in connection with the broiler show at Alexandria, which will run Tuesday through Thursday. A parade and an honors day banquet will climax the event.

Mrs. Audrey Dawson, associate home demonstration agent, and Aubry Mophett, assistant county agent, are in charge of the Ouachita parish 4—H Club poultry program.

Richmond's Shaia Quads One Week Old, Thriving

RICHMOND, Va., March 17 (AP)—Richmond's most famous foursome, the Shaia quadruplets, were one week old today but their mother, Mrs Richard Shaia, hasn't touched them since their birth.

The quads are confined to two double incubators and seldom are touched by anyone. When they're fed, or on the other occasions when they must be moved, they're handled more carefully than a rare old place of Dresden china.

With this care, and with the unusual health with which they luckily came into the world, the quads are thriving. And Mrs. Shaia understands why she can't see more of them.

"I don't mind . . . I know it's for their good," she says.

The quads each will have the first name Mary, but they'll be called by their middle names. Immediately after birth the quads were tagged "A", "B", "C" and "D". Since then they've become Loretta, Louise, Virginia and Celeste.

What do the Shaias think of becoming the parents of quadruplets, who come along only once in every 657,000 births?

"We are glad we have four, but we're also thankful there weren't five, as had been suspected," says Mrs. Shaia, before the delivery a week ago, doctors had blieved Mrs. Shaia might have quintuplets.

The Shaias already had five children when the quads arrived but neither Mama nor Papa has any fears problems will be posed by the additions to the family.

"My children always have welcomed a new baby, and they will welcome these. They were well prepared," says Mrs. Shaia.

Californian Agrees To Take Lie Tests

LOS ANGELES, March 17—UP—L. Ewing Scott, 59, agreed Saturday to take police lie detector tests in connection with the almost year-long disappearance of his wealthy socialite wife.

Police and district attorney investigators questioned Scott for the second straight day Saturday. Chief of Detectives Thad Brown reported the investment broker said he had "no objection" to taking the lie detector test.

Scott's wife, 63, disappeared last May 16 after he said she sent him to a drugstore to get some toothpaste. He did not report her missing. Her disappearance was disclosed when her brother, E. Raymond Throsby, filed a petition March 7 seeking to be appointed trustee of her estate.

Boycott Leaders To Face Trial At Montgomery In Court Session Tomorrow

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 17 (AP) — Raising the issue of free speech, 93 Negroes including 25 clergymen face trial here Monday for the mass refusal of their race to ride segregated city buses.

They have waived the right of jury trial, choosing instead to let Circuit Judge Eugene Carter decide their guilt of innocence. That is permissible under Alabama law in a misdemeanor.

Defense attorneys declined to disclose the reasons for that decision.

The Negroes were indicted by a predominantly white grand jury Feb. 21 as leaders and active participants in the 16-week-old boycott of Montgomery City Lines buses which has continued without pause since last Dec. 5.

Some of the defendants, particularly the ministers, were charged with lending vocal encouragement and leadership to the protest which has cost the bus line 75 to 95 per cent of its normal Negro business.

Others were indicted for using their automobiles in a precisely organized car pool which has enabled thousands of workers to get to and from their jobs.

In periodic mass meetings in their churches, Negroes have heard dramatic appeals from the ministers for "passive resistance to oppression" without violence. With their financial contributions, they have kept the motor pool rolling at a cost of $200 a day.

The indictments were returned under a rarely used state law originally aimed at labor strife and never before used except in Union-management disputes. The law prohibits organized boycotting "without just cause or legal excuse."

Maximum penalty for each defendant is six months in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Negro defense attorneys, attacking constitutionality of the statute, have raised the issue of free speech, freedom of worship and peaceful assembly, and equal protection under the law.

Contending that the indictments violate their rights guaranteed under the U.S. Constitution, they laid the groundwork for an appeal to the federal courts if convicted. The state Supreme Court upheld validity of the antiboycott law in 1913.

Carter is the judge who directed the grand jury to investigate the bus boycott.

The demurrers, which say in effect that the boycotters have committed no unlawful act, were filed after the Negroes were arraigned on the indictments and pleaded innocent.

Since each defendant can demand a separate trial, the proceedings could stretch out for weeks, perhaps months. Or, if some are convicted and it appears likely they will appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, the remaining trials may be postponed pending the outcome of those appeals.

Fred D. Gray, one of the defense lawyers, declined to say what course he and his colleagues will pursue. Likewise, circuit solicitor William F. Thetford said he wasn't in a position to tell which defendant he will call to trial first.

The bus boycott began with the arrest and conviction of a Negro seamstress, Mrs. Rosa Parks, for refusing to move to the colored section of a bus. City and state laws require separate seating facilities.

At the outset, Negroes demanded only a better seating arrangement, a "first come, first served" plan where Negro riders would be seated from the rear and white passengers from the front until all places were taken.

Later, as the boycott continued, the Negroes challenged the segregation pattern itself with a suit in U.S. District Court attacking the city and state laws as unconstitutional. No hearing has been scheduled on that complaint.

Six-State Tour

Highly Educated Pair Confesses Thefts By Check

JOPLIN, Mo., March 17—UP — Two well-dressed and apparently highly educated men startled officers Saturday with admissions that they had passed about 80 bad checks in six states during a cross country tour which began in Washington, Feb 13.

In a written statement filled with four-syllable words and such terms as "modus operandus" Ford said their first stop was at Birmingham, Ala., where they cashed about 15 checks for a net profit of about $275. Jackson, Miss., yielded at least $250 from 10 checks cashed Feb. 20, he said. The next day the two moved to Galveston, Tex., where they remained until March 5, cashing about 30 checks.

Ford said their "modus operandus" included meticulous care to violate no federal law. In each locality the men obtained a pad of blank checks from a local bank. The left-overs were thrown away before they crossed any state line, he said.

All checks were for $25 or less and were cashed at stores where purchases were made

Descriptions provided by three Joplin grocers Friday afternoon brought the arrest. Two detectives spotted the pair and took them in custody.

Until the men "admitted all" Saturday morning, officers had had no hint of their activities elsewhere police said.

New York Solons Demand Sale Of Arms To Israel

WASHINGTON, March 17—UP—New York state's Democratic congressional delegation urged President Eisenhower Saturday to sell Israel $50 million worth of U.S. arms to "prevent war in the Middle East.".

The 17 congressmen, in a joint letter to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, ridiculed administration arguments that weapons shipments to Israel might touch off an arms race in the Middle East.

Citing reports that $250 million worth of Communist arms are en route to Arab nations, the congressmen asked:

"Would it be an arms race to permit David to have a sling to face the threats of a Goliath?"

The lawmakers warned that unless Israel is allowed to buy the "defense arms" she has asked from America, the Arab nations "may move swiftly, as they have often threatened, to push Israel into the sea."

A showdown on Israeli arms and other U.S. policies in the troubled Middle East may come when Dulles returns next Wednesday from an East Asian tour.

Officials said Dulles and President Eisenhower are expected to meet soon after his return to plan U.S. strategy on the Arab-Israel situation, the disturbances in Cyprus, and other problems.

Dulles goes before the Senate Foreign Relations committee Thursday and the House Foreign Affairs committee Friday.

Awards Are Presented At Parish Broiler Show

Blue, red and white ribbons were handed out Saturday morning to Ouachita 4—H Club exhibitors of the entries shown in the parish Chicken-of-Tomorrow contest held at the West Monroe Fair Grounds.

Exhibitors of the top placing pens of six-cockerels—all White Plymouth Rocks —were Everett Whitlock, Linwil community; Robert Freeman, West Monroe; Judy Holley, Logtown community, and Jeanette Holdeman, Lampkin.

Cash premiums were presented to the 4—H'ers by Paul Ransom, head of the chamber's agriculture committee. Judging was handled by Frank McDermott, state poultry and egg inspector, John Birdsong and Ed Smith.

Weight of the pens of six cockerels ranged from 19½ pounds down to 12 pounds. Most of the birds in the competition averaged around three pounds apiece or more. They were seven weeks old.

The four top pens of broilers will be taken Tuesday to Alexandria to compete in the State Chicken-of-Tomorrow contest there this week.

While the broiler entries from Ouachita parish are competing for honors with those from some 54 other parishes, Carol Shipp, 14, of Bosco, who was chosen recently as 4—H poultry queen will vie for the state beauty title in a pageant to be conducted in connection with the broiler show at Alexandria, which will run Tuesday through Thursday. A parade and an honors day banquet will climax the event.

Mrs. Audrey Dawson, associate home demonstration agent, and Aubry Mophett, assistant county agent, are in charge of the Ouachita parish 4—H Club poultry program. 5

Richmond's Shaia Quads One Week Old, Thriving

RICHMOND, Va., March 17 (AP)—Richmond's most famous foursome, the Shaia quadruplets, were one week old today but their mother, Mrs Richard Shaia, hasn't touched them since their birth.

The quads are confined to two double incubators and seldom are touched by anyone. When they're fed, or on the other occasions when they must be moved, they're handled more carefully than a rare old place of Dresden china.

With this care, and with the unusual health with which they luckily came into the world, the quads are thriving. And Mrs. Shaia understands why she can't see more of them.

"I don't mind . . . I know it's for their good," she says.

The quads each will have the first name Mary, but they'll be called by their middle names. Immediately after birth the quads were tagged "A", "B", "C" and "D". Since then they've become Loretta, Louise, Virginia and Celeste.

What do the Shaias think of becoming the parents of quadruplets, who come along only once in every 657,000 births?

"We are glad we have four, but we're also thankful there weren't five, as had been suspected," says Mrs. Shaia, before the delivery a week ago, doctors had blieved Mrs. Shaia might have quintuplets.

The Shaias already had five children when the quads arrived but neither Mama nor Papa has any fears problems will be posed by the additions to the family.

"My children always have welcomed a new baby, and they will welcome these. They were well prepared," says Mrs. Shaia.

Californian Agrees To Take Lie Tests

LOS ANGELES, March 17—UP—L. Ewing Scott, 59, agreed Saturday to take police lie detector tests in connection with the almost year-long disappearance of his wealthy socialite wife.

Police and district attorney investigators questioned Scott for the second straight day Saturday. Chief of Detectives Thad Brown reported the investment broker said he had "no objection" to taking the lie detector test.

Scott's wife, 63, disappeared last May 16 after he said she sent him to a drugstore to get some toothpaste. He did not report her missing. Her disappearance was disclosed when her brother, E. Raymond Throsby, filed a petition March 7 seeking to be appointed trustee of her estate.

Boycott Leaders To Face Trial At Montgomery In Court Session Tomorrow

They have waived the right of jury trial, choosing instead to let Circuit Judge Eugene Carter decide their guilt of innocence. That is permissible under Alabama law in a misdemeanor.

Defense attorneys declined to disclose the reasons for that decision.

The Negroes were indicted by a predominantly white grand jury Feb. 21 as leaders and active participants in the 16-week-old boycott of Montgomery City Lines buses which has continued without pause since last Dec. 5.

Some of the defendants, particularly the ministers, were charged with lending vocal encouragement and leadership to the protest which has cost the bus line 75 to 95 per cent of its normal Negro business.

Others were indicted for using their automobiles in a precisely organized car pool which has enabled thousands of workers to get to and from their jobs.

In periodic mass meetings in their churches, Negroes have heard dramatic appeals from the ministers for "passive resistance to oppression" without violence. With their financial contributions, they have kept the motor pool rolling at a cost of $200 a day.

The indictments were returned under a rarely used state law originally aimed at labor strife and never before used except in Union-management disputes. The law prohibits organized boycotting "without just cause or legal excuse."

Maximum penalty for each defendant is six months in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Negro defense attorneys, attacking constitutionality of the statute, have raised the issue of free speech, freedom of worship and peaceful assembly, and equal protection under the law.

Contending that the indictments violate their rights guaranteed under the U.S. Constitution, they laid the groundwork for an appeal to the federal courts if convicted. The state Supreme Court upheld validity of the antiboycott law in 1943.

Carter is the judge who directed the grand jury to investigate the bus boycott.

The demurrers, which say in effect that the boycotters have committed no unlawful act, were filed after the Negroes were arraigned on the indictments and pleaded innocent.

Since each defendant can demand a separate trial, the proceedings could stretch out for weeks, perhaps months. Or, if some are convicted and it appears likely they will appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, the remaining trials may be postponed pending the outcome of those appeals.

Fred D. Gray, one of the defense lawyers, declined to say what course he and his colleagues will pursue. Likewise, circuit solicitor William F. Thetford said he wasn't in a position to tell which defendant he will call to trial first.

The bus boycott began with the arrest and conviction of a Negro seamstress, Mrs. Rosa Parks, for refusing to move to the colored section of a bus. City and state laws require separate seating facilities.

At the outset, Negroes demanded only a better seating arrangement, a "first come, first served" plan where Negro riders would be seated from the rear and white passengers from the front until all places were taken.

Later, as the boycott continued, the Negroes challenged the segregation pattern itself with a suit in U.S. District Court attacking the city and state laws as unconstitutional. No hearing has been scheduled on that complaint.

Municipal Group Cancels Stand On Voting Changes

LAKE CHARLES, La., March 17—UP — Natchitoches Mayor Frank Kees today was elected president of the Louisiana Municipal Association at the closing day of the three-day meeting.

Mayor Burgess McCranie, Bossier City, Fourth District vice-president; Mayor T. C. Beasley, Ruston, Fifth District vice-president; Mayor Adais Asunier, Sulphur, Seventh District vice-president; Mayor Jesse Webb Jr., Baton Rouge, Sixth District vice-president; Mayor Edgar Coco, Marksville, Eighth District vice-presdent.

In other action, the LMA recalled and then tabled a resolution which it had adopted yesterday objecting to Gov.-Elect Earl K. Long's proposal that the use of voting machines be curbed.

The resolution disapproved a statement by Long that he thought it might be possible to discontinue the use of voting machines in precincts — chiefly rural — having less than 100 registered voters.

Mayor Curt Siegelin of Bogalusa was shaken by the resolution. It had been scheduled to come up for approval yesterday afternoon, but instead was voted on yesterday morning. Siegelin was not on the floor at the time and said then that he would attempt to get the resolution back on the floor.

The Bogalusa moyor said the LMA could not hit Long with one hand and pat him on the back with the other in seeking his approval of legislation benefiting municipalities.

Adlai Continues Assaults On GOP Farm Program

MOORHEAD, Minn., March 17—UP—Adlai Stevenson charged Saturday that "the Republican agriculture program threatens to drive the family farmer to the wall everywhere in the country."

He said "you can't take 27 per cent of the total income of any group of people without hurting them."

"Not only have the Republicans failed to do anything constructive about the farm problem," the Democratic presidential hopeful said, "but they are not even telling you the truth about what they are doing."

Stevenson spoke at 2:30 p. m., to 7,000 persons at the Concordia College fieldhouse here. At the other end of this Red River Valley community, the other Democratic contender, Sen. Estes Kefauver, spoke to 400 persons at the American Legion hall.

The Minnesota primary will be held next Tuesday.

Continuing his blistering attack on the Eisenhower administration, Stevenson said the GOP does not "trust the people with the truth. . . they substitute fairy tales for facts."

"It is not just a matter of ineptness on the part of Vice President Nixon or Secretaries Dulles, McKay, Benson and Wilson," the candidate told his farm audience. "But what I am talking about is the gross duplicity of gross ignorance about what is going on inside America and around the world."

House Expected To Take Deep Cut Out Of White House Foreign Aid Bill

WASHINGTON, March 17 —UP — House Foreign Affairs leaders voiced deep pessimism Saturday over the outlook for President Eisenhower's $4.9 billion foreign aid request which he plans to submit to Congress Monday.

House Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. (Mass.) conceded that heavy cuts are almost certain.

"It's going to be a difficult fight—an uphill fight," Martin told the United Press. "The State Department will have to make a pretty good case to get the full amount."

Chairman James P. Richards (D-S. C.) of the House Foreign Affairs committee, agreed. He doubted whether the house would approve more than $2.7 billion, the amount appropriated for the current fiscal year.

"The atmosphere in Congress right now," Richards told a reporter, "is certainly not favorable to any increase. But any man in Congress who realizes how extremely serious the internotional situation is will want to do what is best for his country."

The President's request hits Congress when it is both economy-minded and election conscious. Martin and Richards said it appeared that most legislators are reluctant to go beyond this year's foreign aid figure.

Mr. Eisenhower put his message in final form Saturday at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm house where he spent the weekend.

The chief executive is certain to make a strong plea for his full request. He also is certain to warn that it must be granted in full to help head off Russia's new economic infiltration of under - developed countries.

The message may contain hints of administration policy in the politically-explosive Middle East. Israel has been pressing hard for permission to buy $50 million of U. S. arms.

"The atmosphere in Congress right now," Richards told a reporter, "is certainly not favorable to any increase. But any man in Congress who realizes how extremely serious the internotional situation is will want to do what is best for his country."

The President's request hits Congress when it is both economy-minded and election conscious. Martin and Richards said it appeared that most legislators are reluctant to go beyond this year's foreign aid figure.

Mr. Eisenhower put his message in final form Saturday at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm house where he spent the weekend.

The chief executive is certain to make a strong plea for his full request. He also is certain to warn that it must be granted in full to help head off Russia's new economic infiltration of under - developed countries.

The message may contain hints of administration policy in the politically-explosive Middle East. Israel has been pressing hard for permission to buy $50 million of U. S. arms.

Car, Truck Crash In West Monroe; Woman Charged

A 45-year-old Beaver Dam, Kentucky woman was slightly injured last night in West Monroe when her station wayon collided with a heavy truck in the 3800 block of Cypress street about 8 o'clock.

Upon release from the St. Francis Hospital where authorities said her injureis were not serious, the woman was charged with drunk driving.

West Monroe officers identified the woman as Mrs. Irene Burch, who gave her home address as Beaver Dam, Ky. The woman suffered a laceration of the lip and bruises, officers said.

Lt. Dave Johnston and Charles E. Dortch, who investigated the accident, identified the driver of the truck as Herschell Compton, 41, of Haynesville.

Compton nor the passenger in the Pelican Trucking Company vehicle were injured, according to Lt. Johnston. The woman was alone, he said.

Compton told officers he was traveling west on Highway 80 when the Burch woman, traveling east, moved over into his lane and turned off her lights.

The truck driver told officers he stopped "dead still" and the woman, attempting to get back into her lane smashed into the left side of the heavy truck bumper.

The 1954 station wagon was demolished, according to police. The woman was taken to the hospital by a Kilpatrick ambulance.

Missing Couples' Plane Wreckage Believed Sighted

MIAMI, March 17 —UP— The Coast Guard revealed Saturday night that search planes spotted wreckage on a desolate part of Andros Island which may be that of a missing plane carrying two socially prominent couples.

Coast Guard officials said two Navy planes sighted the wreckage shortly before darkness. The pilot said the plane apparently had made a wheel landing, nosed over and burned. They were unable to tell the type of plane or how many engines it had.

The fliers said they saw what appeared to be three separate tracks of footprints on the beach of the island about 100 miles southeast of Miami. They added that they saw no persons or any distress signals on the beach.

The Coast Guard said it had asked British authorities in Nassau to investigate the wreckage.

A twin-engined Beechcraft en route from the Bahamas to Miami has been missing since Thursday afternoon. Aboard were Mr. and Mrs. James G. C. Corcoran of Miami and Washington, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Grelling of Miami Beach and Tyler, Tex., and pilot O. S. Barrow of Fort Worth, Tex.

Several Ships

imperiled when two destroyers, a destroyer escort, a radar picket destroyer, a tugboat, and a freighter were tossed about like corks and then slammed aground on the rocky New England shore by winds up to 83 miles per hour. The freighter crewmen were rescued by breeches buoy after a night of wintry horror and the Navy refloated its destroyers one by one.

Another ship bobbed out of control throughout the night off Long Island in the storm-tossed Atlantic and aid finally reached it Saturday morning.

Still another freighter, the Italian S. S. Laura Lauro was damaged off Norfolk, Va., when it was blown into two U. S. destroyers at the naval base there.

Highways throughout the storm area were clogged with drifts of snow up to 10 feet deep. Huge tractor trailers jack-knifed on slippery roads in New York and West Virginia, blocking traffic for hours. Hundreds of automobiles were abandoned in deep drifts and snowplows clearing highways buried still more cars under snow scraped from roads.

At Middletown, R. I., eight members of a wedding party were rescued from a snow-bound automobible. Communications with a "Texas Tower" radar station 110 miles off Cape Cod were cut off during most of the night, but an "everything's just fine" message Saturday morning ended concern for the men stationed at the lonely outpost.

The Blizzard knocked down telephone and electric wires in many areas. Trees were uprooted and business was at a standstill in some cities.

The storm finally blew out to sea Saturday morning after pounding a wide area for up to 24 hours. Clearing skies and rising temperatures gave Irish - Americans cause for cheer and they went ahead with their huge St. Patrick's Day celebrations, the largest being the annual parade down New York's Fifth Avenue.

Western Massachusetts was one of the hardest-hit blizzard areas. At least 100 motorists were taken to state police barracks and hundreds more to Red Cross shelters.

The blizzard brought new difficulties to residents of the area, who already have fought two hurricane-spawned floods that wiped out hundreds of homes and businesses.

Highways in western Pennsylvania and the West Virginia Panhandle were clogged with snow. A major traffic tie-up was reported at Washington, Pa., 35 miles south of Pittsburgh. More than 100 tractor-trailer rigs and autos were forced to park along the road. Some motorists were stranded for as long as eight hours before snowplows cleared the way.

Among those who died in Pennsylvania were a man killed in a highway skidding accident near Allentown. Three men suffered fatal heart attacks while shoveling snow.

In Cleveland, Ohio, two other men died of exertion from shoveling snow, while auto accidents accounted for several New York state deaths.

A family of nine, including seven children, was made homeless by a fire that burned down their house in Riverhead, N. Y. Firemen blamed the blaze on an overheated stove.

At Stamford, Conn., unusually high tides caused by the storm washed over seawalls and flooded several streets.

Boston streets looked deserted when the storm finally blew out. More than 200 cars were stalled in the Scollay Square area alone. At the height of the storm, 600 persons jammed the lobby of the Peter Brent Brigham Hospital when they were forced to leave their cars, buses and trolleys to take refuge from the snow.

Up to 15 inches of snow fell during the 24-hour storm and the gale-force winds blew it into drifts. The winds lashed the faces of crewmen aboard the 7,000-ton Italian freighter Etrusca as they sat in lifeboats on their vessel after it was grounded off Scituate, Mass.

Freighter Crew Rescued

The 30-man crew sat it out until the Coast Guard took them off by breeches buoy Saturday.

The naval vessels grounded at the Newport, R. I., naval base were the destroyers M. C. Fox and W. A. Lee, the Destroyer Escort Coolbaugh, the radar picket destroyer Fiske and a tugboat.

Man Hospitalized After Gun Battle With Area Officer

OAK RIDGE, March 17 (Special) —A Negro man, identified by officers as Jobert Bennett, was in a Bastrop clinic tonight with bullet wounds through the left ear, left shoulder and left leg. He was reported shot about 8:30 p.m .by W. P. Gee, 46, Oak Ridge marshal.

The Morehouse sheriff department investigated the shooting. Officers said Gee stopped Bennett for speeding in front of Tilberry's service station after he had sped through town.

According to officers, Bennett started shooting at the marshal with a .22 revolver pistol. He shot seven times, officers reported, failing to hit Gee. But in the marshal's return fire, Bennette was struck several times on the left side.

A stray bullet went into the home of Lizzie Sawyer, Negro, going through the calf of one of her legs, officers said. She was treated by a local physician.

Northeast State Commerce Club Hears Stock Data

George Miller, account executive of Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Beane, discussed investments channeled through the stock market, and the organization's membership decided to visit Dallas as a field trip which the club makes every year.

Miller, who has been associated with the brokerage firm here for twenty-three years, told the group that money, wisdom, and imagination are essential factors in making investments.

The best procedure to follow in buying stocks is to invest when stocks are available at a low price and sell when they climb, the speaker said.

Three classes of people are interested in stocks: those who do not like to take any risk; others who are willing to take a big chance; and some who accept only a medium risk.

Investors who do not like to risk at all can buy government bonds. Miller continued. Persons who follow this plan help themselves and also do a patriotic act.

Miller explained the difference between speculating and investing. He also referred to the term, "playing the market," which he said referred to the time when it bore the connotation of gambling.

Miller explained the difference between speculating and investing. Risk is greater in speculating in stocks, he said. The term, "playing the market," has too long been associated with the original idea of gambling. The phrase had its origin many years ago, and continues to some extent to bear the wrong connotation to investing in stocks, the speaker explained.

The Club will visit Dallas at an undecided date in April. During their stay, they will tour a Federal Reserve Bank, the Ford Motor Company assembling plant, and other industries.

Price Describes Leadership Need In Agriculture

Price, a former adviser of FFA and recipient of the honorary state farmer degree in FFA, spoke on "Future Needs for Leadership in Agricultural Occupations." He listed numerous phases of agriculture in which a person may engage as a farmer or professional agriculturist.

His own personal choice is farming. He stated that he was aware of the many problems which farmers face at this time. But, he added, many professional agriculturists would like to return to the farm.

Price emphasized the need of being the best farmer or professional person in whatever profession he chose.

The speaker referred to Webster's definition of the word, leader, as "the leading performer." He said, "I mean the leading dairyman, scientist, teacher, the leading student." This does not mean giving up all recreation, Price explained. It does mean, however, injecting enough diversion asd relaxation into the day's activities to keep one alert.

"The leading farmer is not the man who maintains production equivalent to the nation's average, but the farmer who leads in economic production."

Price advised the group to remember that in the future "good" will not be sufficient. To be in a position to contribute and receive, one must have to be the "best" in whatever occupation he chooses to follow.

Sheffield Trial Date Reset After Motion Overruled

WINNSBORO, Mar. 17 (Special) —A motion filed by defense attorneys for Joseph Sheffield questioning the jurisdiction of the Fifth District court to hold a retrial was overruled here today.

Sheffield, a center of legal controversies since 1953 when he was convicted here in the slaying of Deputy Sheriff John L. Waller, was aggraigned again today.

Judge J. Vernon Sims re-fixed the trial for 9:30 a.m., March 19. This marks the third time the trial has been set for this date.

On March 10, Judge Sims denied a defense motion asking for a change of venue in the retrial of Sheffield.

Franklin parish sheriff Hiram V. Waller, brother to the slain man, refused himself from any further official acts in any stage of the trial of Sheffield.

His ruling was upheld by the Federal Court of Appeals and the United States Supreme Court.

Sheffield has been in jail since June 14, 1953.

Among those who died in Pennsylvania were a man killed in a highway skidding accident near Allentown. Three men suffered fatal heart attacks while shoveling snow.

In Cleveland, Ohio, two other men died of exertion from shoveling snow, while auto accidents accounted for several New York state deaths.

A family of nine, including seven children, was made homeless by a fire that burned down their house in Riverhead, N. Y. Firemen blamed the blaze on an overheated stove.

At Stamford, Conn., unusually high tides caused by the storm washed over seawalls and flooded several streets.

Boston streets looked deserted when the storm finally blew out. More than 200 cars were stalled in the Scollay Square area alone. At the height of the storm, 600 persons jammed the lobby of the Peter Brent Brigham Hospital when they were forced to leave their cars, buses and trolleys to take refuge from the snow.

Up to 15 inches of snow fell during the 24-hour storm and the gale-force winds blew it into drifts. The winds lashed the faces of crewmen aboard the 7,000-ton Italian freighter Etrusca as they sat in lifeboats on their vessel after it was grounded off Scituate, Mass.

Freighter Crew Rescued

The 30-man crew sat it out until the Coast Guard took them off by breeches buoy Saturday.

The naval vessels grounded at the Newport, R. I., naval base were the destroyers M. C. Fox and W. A. Lee, the Destroyer Escort Coolbaugh, the radar picket destroyer Fiske and a tugboat.

The Morehouse sheriff department investigated the shooting. Officers said Gee stopped Bennett for speeding in front of Tilberry's service station after he had sped through town.

According to officers, Bennett started shooting at the marshal with a .22 revolver pistol. He shot seven times, officers reported, failing to hit Gee. But in the marshal's return fire, Bennette was struck several times on the left side.

A stray bullet went into the home of Lizzie Sawyer, Negro, going through the calf of one of her legs, officers said. She was treated by a local physician.

Northeast State Commerce Club Hears Stock Data

George Miller, account executive of Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Beane, discussed investments channeled through the stock market, and the organization's membership decided to visit Dallas as a field trip which the club makes every year.

Miller, who has been associated with the brokerage firm here for twenty-three years, told the group that money, wisdom, and imagination are essential factors in making investments.

The best procedure to follow in buying stocks is to invest when stocks are available at a low price and sell when they climb, the speaker said.

Three classes of people are interested in stocks: those who do not like to take any risk; others who are willing to take a big chance; and some who accept only a medium risk.

Investors who do not like to risk at all can buy government bonds, Miller continued. Persons who follow this plan help themselves and also do a patriotic act.

Miller explained the difference between speculating and investing. He also referred to the term, "playing the market," which he said referred to the time when it bore the connotation of gambling.

Miller explained the difference between speculating and investing. Risk is greater in speculating in stocks, he said. The term, "playing the market," has too long been associated with the original idea of gambling. The phrase had its origin many years ago, and continues to some extent to bear the wrong connotation to investing in stocks, the speaker explained.

The Club will visit Dallas at an undecided date in April. During their stay, they will tour a Federal Reserve Bank, the Ford Motor Company assembling plant, and other industries.

Price Describes Leadership Need In Agriculture

Price, a former adviser of FFA and recipient of the honorary state farmer degree in FFA, spoke on "Future Needs for Leadership in Agricultural Occupations." He listed numerous phases of agriculture in which a person may engage as a farmer or professional agriculturist.

His own personal choice is farming. He stated that he was aware of the many problems which farmers face at this time. But, he added, many professional agriculturists would like to return to the farm.

Price emphasized the need of being the best farmer or professional person in whatever profession he chose.

The speaker referred to Webster's definition of the word, leader, as "the leading performer." He said, "I mean the leading dairyman, scientist, teacher, the leading student." This does not mean giving up all recreation, Price explained. It does mean, however, injecting enough diversion and relaxation into the day's activities to keep one alert.

"The leading farmer is not the man who maintains production equivalent to the nation's average, but the farmer who leads in economic production."

Price advised the group to remember that in the future "good" will not be sufficient. To be in a position to contribute and receive, one must have to be the "best" in whatever occupation he chooses to follow.

Sheffield Trial Date Reset After Motion Overruled

WINNSBORO, Mar. 17 (Special) —A motion filed by defense attorneys for Joseph Sheffield questioning the jurisdiction of the Fifth District court to hold a retrial was overruled here today.

Sheffield, a center of legal controversies since 1953 when he was convicted here in the slaying of Deputy Sheriff John L. Waller, was aggraigned again today.

Judge J. Vernon Sims re-fixed the trial for 9:30 a.m., March 19. This marks the third time the trial has been set for this date.

On March 10, Judge Sims denied a defense motion asking for a change of venue in the retrial of Sheffield.

Franklin parish sheriff Hiram V. Waller, brother to the slain man, refused himself from any further official acts in any stage of the trial of Sheffield.

His ruling was upheld by the Federal Court of Appeals and the United States Supreme Court.

Cotton Futures Mostly 'Steady' In Week's Prices

NEW YORK, March 17 (AP)—Cotton futures prices were mostly steady this week All deliveries except nearby July finished in higher territory.

Net gains ranged up to $2.60 a bale for active futures contracts traded on the New York Cotton exchange. Nearby July, the only contract to finish in lower ground, took a net loss of $2.05 a bale.

Selling in the nearby July delivery was triggered by the continued high rate of repossessions of cotton from government stocks. The rapid movement of the staple out of government hands further diminished prospects of a tight free supply at the end of the season.

The March 1956 contract went off the board this week, and set a new life-of-contract high of 36 cents a pound on the final day of trading. A last-minute flurry of short covering was the chief factor in boosting the March price.

Senate action on farm legislation this week pulled the market both ways. Traders pointed out the Senate followed the wishes of the administration in some aspects of the farm bill, and went counter to administration wishes in others.

Many felt there was a rising chance that no new farm legislation would be enacted in the near future. The apparent unwillingness of Congress to see eye-to-eye with the apparent unwillingness of Congress to see eye-to-eye with the administration might well doom any major legislative changes at this time, according to some trade sources.

The New York Cotton Exchange expressed belief secretary of Agriculture Benson would announce a guaranteed minimum loan rate of 80 to 81 per cent of parity for 1956 if no new farm legislation is enacted.

Exports for the week ended Tuesday were estimated by the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau at 48,000 bales, as against 36,000 bales the previous week and 88,000 in the like week of 1955.

Wheat And Corn Creep Higher As Soybeans Tumble

CHICAGO, March 17 (AP)—Wheat and corn crept higher on the Board of Trade this week while soybeans, the high flying leader for several months, stumbled for losses ranging to more than 5 cents.

Selling in soybeans was tied in with further declines in soybean meal, postponement of bean oil purchases by some foreign countries, a reduction in American bean exports and sale of Chinese beans to Japan.

Wheat closed the week 2⅜-2¾ higher, corn 2 to 2¾ higher, oats ⅝ lower to ⅜ higher, rye ¼-2⅛ higher, oats 1 to 5½ lower and lard unchanged to 15 cents a hundred pounds lower

Stocks Rise To Historic Levels

NEW YORK, March 17 (AP)—The stock market rode up to new historic peaks this week on the heaviest trading in six months.

Brokers attributed the advance in part to a rapidly brightening business picture, plus an assortment of favorable corporate developments. New reports told of tight supply, great demand and higher prices in the copper and steel industries. Signs of inflation popped up in other fields.

The bull market was performing just about as expected at its current level. Volume was increasing when prices climbed, and was subsiding when prices declined.

The Associated Press average rose $3.10 for the week and closed at $188.50, just 10 cents under the latest historic high recorded Thursday. The market had notched up five all time highs in six sessions before encountering limited profit-taking Friday.

The five most active stocks were General Motors up 2⅛, Westinghouse up 2½, National Distiller up ½, U. S. Steel up 1½ and Studebaker off 1⅜.

In the bond market this week U. S. Treasury obligations declined but dealings were light.

The 57-year-old Byrd had been ill for almost a year. Until his retirement on Nov. 1, he served as commander of the Eighth Coast Guard District with headquarters here.

Byrd was born Dec. 25, 1898 in Wachapreague, Va., and spent 31 years in the Coast Guard.

Cotton Futures Mostly 'Steady' In Week's Prices

NEW YORK, March 17 (AP) —Cotton futures prices were mostly steady this week All deliveries except nearby July finished in higher territory.

Net gains ranged up to $2.60 a bale for active futures contracts traded on the New York Cotton exchange. Nearby July, the only contract to finish in lower ground, took a net loss of $2.05 a bale.

Selling in the nearby July delivery was triggered by the continued high rate of repossessions of cotton from government stocks. The rapid movement of the staple out of government hands further diminished prospects of a tight free supply at the end of the season.

The March 1956 contract went off the board this week, and set a new life-of-contract high of 36 cents a pound on the final day of trading. A last-minute flurry of short covering was the chief factor in boosting the March price.

Senate action on farm legislation this week pulled the market both ways. Traders pointed out the Senate followed the wishes of the administration in some aspects of the farm bill, and went counter to administration wishes in others.

Many felt there was a rising chance that no new farm legislation would be enacted in the near future. The apparent unwillingness of Congress to see eye-to-eye with the apparent unwillingness of Congress to see eye-to-eye with the administration might well doom any major legislative changes at this time, according to some trade sources.

The New York Cotton Exchange expressed belief secretary of Agriculture Benson would announce a guaranteed minimum loan rate of 80 to 81 per cent of parity for 1956 if no new farm legislation is enacted.

Exports for the week ended Tuesday were estimated by the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau at 48,000 bales, as against 36,000 bales the previous week and 88,000 in the like week of 1955.

Wheat And Corn Creep Higher As Soybeans Tumble

CHICAGO, March 17 (AP) —Wheat and corn crept higher on the Board of Trade this week while soybeans, the high flying leader for several months, stumbled for losses ranging to more than 5 cents.

Selling in soybeans was tied in with further declines in soybean meal, postponement of bean oil purchases by some foreign countries, a reduction in American bean exports and sale of Chinese beans to Japan.

Wheat closed the week 2⅜-2¾ higher, corn 2 to 2¾ higher, oats ⅝ lower to ⅜ higher, rye ¼-2⅛ higher, oats 1 to 5½ lower and lard unchanged to 15 cents a hundred pounds lower

Stocks Rise To Historic Levels

NEW YORK, March 17 (AP)—The stock market rode up to new historic peaks this week on the heaviest trading in six months.

Brokers attributed the advance in part to a rapidly brightening business picture, plus an assortment of favorable corporate developments. New reports told of tight supply, great demand and higher prices in the copper and steel industries. Signs of inflation popped up in other fields.

The bull market was performing just about as expected at its current level. Volume was increasing when prices climbed, and was subsiding when prices declined.

The Associated Press average rose $3.10 for the week and closed at $188.50, just 10 cents under the latest historic high recorded Thursday. The market had notched up five all time highs in six sessions before encountering limited profit-taking Friday.

The five most active stocks were General Motors up 2⅛, Westinghouse up 2½, National Distiller up ½, U. S. Steel up 1½ and Studebaker off 1⅜.

Boom Ends Leisurely Pace, Shifts Again To High Gear

NEW YORK, March 17 (AP)—Here we go again!

That's what businessmen were telling each other this week as the boom, which had been coasting leisurely in recent months, started shifting into high gear.

These were some of the more spectacular indicators:

The stock market thrust repeatedly into historic high ground. The Associated Press 60-stock average hit an all-time peak of $186.60; the Dow-Jones industrials average broke through the 500-mark.

Retail sales of new cars for the first ten days of March showed a thumping gain of 13½ per cent over the first ten days of February.

Housing starts were on the upbeat again after a decline of five months.

Department store sales, spurred by the earlier Easter date—April 1 vs. last year's April 10—scored a 7 per cent rise over last year's levels.

Calculated to give the boom a mighty forward push were two basic and fundamental economic drives—record spending of big business on new equipment and new plant, and at least another year of free spending by consumers.

On the consumer level a survey by the Federal Reserve Board showed that most Americans are confident, optimistic and willing to keep on buying new appliances, new cars and new homes at or near last year's booming pace. But they may be a little more hesitant about going into hock via the instalment-purchase route.

Another government survey — this one by the Commerce Department and the Securities and Exchange Commission—showed big business in a free-spending mood, too. Business, the survey disclosed, is ready to plunk down 35 billion dollars this year on new factories, new machines, new shopping centers, new stores and other new capital equipment.

That's 22 per cent, or six billion dollars, more than was spent in 1955 It's far and away the biggest sum ever budgeted for U.S. business expansion in a single year.

Behind the decision to sink an unprecedented 35 billions into new equipment and new plant lay the conviction that business must find better, more efficient ways to produce and sell consumer goods if it is to keep up with the fast-growing U.S. consumer market. Montbomery Ward & Co. said it is "considering" opening new retail stores for the first time in 15 years.

Malenkov Enjoys British Football, Gets Big Ovation

LONDON, March 17 —UP—Soviet Deputy Premier Georgi M. Malenkov, all smiles and affability, stole the play at a British football game Saturday.

The rotund Kremlin official, who doubles as Soviet minister of light and power, smiled and waved his broad-brimmed hat in acknowledgment of the cheers from thousands of fans at Highbury Stadium. He appeared to enjoy himself immensely, oblivious on the surface at least, to the furor over Soviet Party Chief Nikita Khruschchev's recently disclosed attacks on Stalin. Malenkov refused comment on the matter.

Malenkov's enthusiasm waned somewhat toward the end of the 90-minute game, but he stuck it out almost to the bitter end, his hat pushed back on his head.

It was the beginning of a comparative "open door" policy for the one time premier. He was reported irked at super-strict security measures taken by Scotland Yard, although he made a spur-of-the-moment foray to sightseeing centers Friday.

Newsmen were able to approach Malenkov Saturday for the first time when he entered the huge Battersea power station in London, one of the installations he will visit in his capacity as Soviet power chief.

He was immediately asked to comment on Khrushchev's denunciations of Stalin. But he refused, saying he had not read the newspapers. The man who succeeded to Stalin's mantle and who was Stalin's secretary added that he and Khrushchev are "very good friends."

Red Cross Fund Campaign Passes Half Way Mark

More than half of the 1956 financial goal of the Red Cross campaign for members has been reported, according chairmen W. G. Haynes, Jr., and Richard Hale. and a total of 5,198 members are enrolled in the volunteer humanitarian Red Cross.

A total of $22,035.36 has been received, leaving $20,864.64 to be secured to meet the goal of $42,800.

The campaign committee for the local Red Cross has asked that all area chairmen, block workers, and division chairman make a special effort to complete their responsibilities for a final report day on Friday, March 23.

Reported yesterday was the largest school contribution thus far from the Clark Elementary School. B. D. Robinson, principal of the school turned in $63 from his faculty. It was also reported that Carver High School with 17 teachers contributed $37.

One Hundred per cent members in the Employees Division reported thus far are: Dixie Store, Sears Roebuck, Collins Electric Co. Smith of Caledonia set a new production record of 9,645 pounds of milk and 561 pounds of fat during a 305-day period. The two-year-old cow's production was equal to 4,650 quarts of "high quality" milk. The test was supervised by Michigan State University.

Unless Kennon Fills Vacancies

Long Expected To Quickly Take Majority Control Of Louisiana Highway Board

BATON ROUGE, March 17 (AP)—Gov.-designate Earl K. Long will gain majority control of the State Highway Board a few days after he takes office May 15, unless Gov. Robert Kennon changes his mind.

Kennon has not been naming new members when vacancies occur.

By June 1, there will be four vacancies on the nine-man board which Long will be able to fill himself, providing Kennon doesn't debe any action contemplated.

Since the governor is the ninth member, Long would gain majority control of the important state board. It directs the spending of 100 million dollars a year on highways and maintenance.

Whether Kennon will make the new appointments now is an open question. But the administration so far has given no indication it will act.

Long insists he wants to waste no time getting rid of the so-called Kennon boards, constitutional agencies approved by the voters to take control of most heavy state spending.

Since all four of the constitutional boards, highways, welfare, institutions and wildlife and fisheries came to life under Kennon, the board members naturally are Kennon appointees.

A big question around the state has been what board members will do in the new administration. Will they resign, or stick to their posts? There is no indication they intend anything but full cooperation with the new governor.

But Long wants to get rid of the boards, with the best chances for doing that apparently in the November general election. Long would have to get the Legislature to adopt new constitutional proposals eliminating the boards, and then the public would have to decide in the November balloting.

Long insists a governor should be responsible to the voters for all his administration. The constitutional boards, he argues, do not share that responsibility, since the voters do not name the members.

While the governor names members of the Louisiana State University Board of Supervisors, the LSU board does not handle the millions of dollars in taxpayers money, the way the Highway, Welfare and Institutions boards do.

While the fate of the board is uncertain, the Kennon administration for the moment, apparently is planning to let Long take control of the highway board right at the start.

Chairman Sam Short of Baton Rouge, Sixth District, whose term would have expired May 15, resigned recently because his employer, Esso Standard Oil Co., has transferred him to New York.

And the term of member Marvin Morris of Franklin, Third District, expires June 1, only 16 days after Long is inaugurated.

The Highway Board is one of the most important of all, for it deals with a subject close to every politician's heart—roads.

The Highway Board often deals directly with major decisions. The Legislature, however, makes a lot of the decisions for the Welfare and Institutions boards, frequently serving as the policymaker in those two fields.

Whether Long, who apparently will quickly gain control of one of the most important boards, will go all-out to knock out the boards under such circumstances will be answered in the 1956 Legislature.

NAACP Planning Picketing Talk By Gov. Shivers

HOUSTON, Tex., March 17 (AP)—National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People officials completed plans to have 200 protest pickets tomorrow at the Texas Southern University campus for a speech by Gov. Allan Shivers.

Despite NAACP requests that Negro civic groups boycott the speech, Mack Hannah, the TSU board chairman from Port Arthur, Tex., has predicted a capacity audience will attend the inaugural ceremonies for Dr. S. M. Nabrit, new president of the state Negro institution.

A membership meeting by the Houston chapter of the NAACP last night approved a resoluion voicing a right to refrain from listening "to a man who has publicly declared he will do everything in his power to abridge the rights of the Negro citizens and their children in this state."

Francis L. Williams, attorney and chapter president, earlier had said Shivers' "views are an affront to many Negroes."

Williams said, however, the picketing will be carried out "in a lawful and prudent manner."

Shivers has declined comment on the boycott and picket plans.

Nabrit, a Georgia-born biologist who gave up a life tenure position with Atlanta, Ga., University to become TSU president last September, has said he sees no reason for the boycott.

Nabrit said the governor was invited to be principal speaker at the inaugeral ceremonies because he is the chief executive officer of the state.

"Even if I had personal or political differences with a man, I still think he should have the right to be heard," Nabrit said.

East Carroll Couple Tell Of Progress In Farming

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following story on a phase of soil conservation work in the East Carroll-Madison Soil Conservation District was written by Helen Friedel Moiser of Lake Providence.)

TRANSYLVANIA, March 17 (Special) — On a farm a mile south of Transylvania, an attractive home belongs to Mr. and Mrs. Lee Johnson, a couple who have reached a place in their twenty-four years of farming and home-making where their story shows what a man and his wife can accomplish together.

"I married when I was eighteen, Johnson began. He nodded toward his wife. "She was just fifteen. And we came to East Carroll Parish with nothing but a mule, a horse, a turning plow, a gee-whiz and a walking cultivator. And sixty dollars!"

The land where money multiplies — it sounds like a faraway place beyond the reach of most of us. Sometimes it is. Often it is right within sight of our doorstep, but there isn't any magic witching wand to lead us to it. Once we find it, we still have to work out the way to make it "the promised land."

The Johnsons own three other places by this time, including the smaller farm where they began in the first place. The tract of land on which their home is situated has especial interest in this period preceding the planting time. Different farmers find the answer to their problems in different ways but you have only to drive along the road to see that one man is getting all that he could expect while his neighbor is not.

"Take the way I wanted to irrigate," Johnson explained. "I tried to work it all out myself, and I had enough experience last summer before the rains set in to see where my trouble was. And I couldn't do anything about it by myself. I couldn't get water to run where I needed it —water would be knee deep in some places, then in others, not a drop."

Out in his forty-acre field, the March wind was blowing a gale and dust swirled around your head and into your teeth every way you turned. The whole area had been leveled off as smooth as a great griddle, and back toward the levee an enormous yellow bulldozer and a nine-yard landscraper were leveling the ground. The surveying instruments of the Soil Conservation Service were still on the field visitors were watching the performance of this particular equipment.

The demonstration was sponsored by the various government and state agencies which make a reservoir of information, guidance and practical assistance available to any farmer who, like Johnson, needs or wishes to take advantage of it: the East Carroll - Madison Soil Conservation District, the F. H. A., the A. S. C., the Extension Service, and the S. C. S. Johnson, who had worked the front part of the tract, could appreciate more than anyone the value of this demonstration. It had taken this equipment about three working days to do what it would have taken him a month of work with his own machinery—move 3,300 yards of dirt.

To the right, a glossy green field waved in the wind and sun. Beneath the green growth it was still wet. Johnson had been planning for the hot, dry days that will come when the cotton he wants to plant here will wilt as it has in other summers. The interest this demonstration of equipment has held for other farmers is due to the fact that should a local concern bring such a piece of equipment into the area for public hire, many places could take advantage of the irrigation plan for which accurate land leveling is a necessity.

"I have been knocked out of a bale to an acre in dry weather," Johnson estimated. "When I saw, firsthand, what a thing like this could do to improve your crop output, I wanted to try it. I wanted to do it right, and I found out I couldn't do a good job just by my eye. That's the reason I turned to the S.C.S., because without their service you can't do a really perfect job. The way they take it off, and plan it out, a ten-year old boy could understand it and know how to do it."

The dozer wheeled and turned to start another trip back. Two of the visitors watching the machine were the local members of the East Carroll-Madison Soil Conservation District, George S. Lensing and Earl Oswalt. Another interested spectator was W. T. Mitchiner, and while Clarence F. Chancey, Work Unit Engineer, of the S. C. S., discussed a problem of elevation with Johnson, the work of completing the survey went on in other parts of the field by others of the crew.

"If I had had my ground ready like this last year," Johnson reflected, "I could have watered it a week. As it was, it took me two weeks and three days, and then I didn't get it right."

The first step after the preliminary plans with the S. C. S. work unit conservationist, Hugh O. Tidwell, is for the lines to be run by the crew for surveying. After these findings, Johnson filled in the low places as well as he could. The crew returned, staked it off, and surveyed again. Johnson repeated his work of filling in as needed, and a third survey completes that phase of the work.

"I think irrigation is one of the greatest things in the world to help make a good crop. I wish I'd done it long ago," Johnson said, back in his living room again with Mrs. Johnson. "I know things don't look good for the future of cotton, but I've sold cotton for five cents a pound—I think back in 1932—and things sure look a lot better than that. We never done anything else in my life but be a cotton farmer, you Know."

Mrs. Johnson, the youthful mother of seven children, was the former Bradis Fortenberry of West Carroll Parish and was reared in Forest. Her father was a cotton farmer. —"And our two oldest boys," she said with pride, "say they can't think of anything they'd rather do than be cotton farmers, like their daddy." With their farms totaling 293 acres, the young Johnson boys may well be our cotton farmers of tomorrow.

"I didn't finish the fifth grade at school," Johnson said. "But experience—with the help I've had, too—all makes up for the book learning I didn't get." And that, surely, explains that Johnson did not merely "find" his promised land. He has made it—in the American way.

Chancey, work unit engineer with the Soil Conservation Service checks on land leveling operations on the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Johnson, south of Transylvania, where an irrigation system is being readied. Miss. Lawmakers Resting Up Before Week Of Frenzy

JACKSON, Miss., March 17 (AP)—Lawmakers rested on the Gulf Coast today in preparation for the expected frenzy of the closing days of the 1956 Legislature.

Still facing them when they return for their 12th week Monday are two highly controversial bills—public utility rate regulation and pre-marital blood tests.

Both bills are in the House and both are expected to be considered Monday.

The rate regulation bill, which lawmakers worked on for more than a month, passed the House and was sent to the Senate where several changes were proposed.

The House declined to act on the bill, thinking the Senate eliminated the time requirement for the Public Service Commission to act on proposed rate increases. The House wanted time to study the proposed rate increases. The House wanted time to study the proposed Senate changes.

Gov. J. P. Coleman, who advocated rate regulation of natural gas and electric power companies, believed the Legislature would get together on the differences and produce a workable bill.

The House passed a bill changing the requirements for obtaining a marriage license but removed a provision calling for a mandatory blood test and medical examination.

The House also shortened the waiting period from five to three days and raised the fee from $3 to $5.

One lawmaker said as the bill was passed it "only makes it easier and more profitable for circuit clerks to issue marriage licenses."

Rep. John Kennedy of Marshall County, author of the bill, planned to call it up again Monday and seek to put back the blood test and medical examination provision.

He said he believed Coleman would veto the bill in its present form.

Both houses agreed to halt introduction of new bills—except revenue, appropriations and local and private matters—afer 6 p.m. Monday.

They were unable to agree on a final adjournment date.

The House wants to quit at 6 p.m. April 4 and the Senate 6 p.m. April 6. In either case, the Legislature must adjourn five days ahead of sine die adjournment to give the governor time to sign or veto bills.

The Legislature boosted the public welfare appropriation $100,000 to $19,525,000 and sent the bill to the governor.

Old age assistance is the second largest appropriation of this session. Coleman already has signed the 78 million-dollor appropriation for public schools.

Dan Edmonson On Trip To Monroe

Dan H. Edmonson, sales manager of Valentine Seaver, Kroehler Company, was in Monroe on a business trip yesterday. Edmonson married the former Miss Annette Naron of Monroe.

While in Monroe Edmonson conferred with Joe Durrett, Sr. at Monroe Furniture Co. and made plans for a furniture promotional project.

Try this little quiz and see:—

Have you thought of ALL the ways you can make your money work for you? ( ) YES ( ) NO

Once you have a reserve for emergencies you might consider investing a few dollars conservatively in stocks. On the New York Stock Exchange, for instance, are 308 stocks that have paid dividends for the past 25 to 108 years.

Do you look vague when people start talking about "common stocks"? ( ) YES ( ) NO

You and 77% of the rest of the population of these United States. Actually, owning common stock simply means you are a part owner of the company and receive a share of the profits every time the directors declare a dividend. Not every company pays a dividend although 9 out of 10 on the Exchange paid dividends last year.

Have you always thought it took lots of money to invest in stocks? ( ) YES ( ) NO

It so happens that about a third of the families who own stock have incomes under $5,000 and about three-fourths of them have incomes under $10,000. Whatever the size of your purse it's a good rule to stick to the stocks of well-established companies (there are many listed on the Exchange) . . . to invest for income . . . and beware of "tips."

Are you timid about asking a broker to talk over investments with you? ( ) YES ( ) NO

You don't have to be. A broker is a good man to know. He will be glad to help you get information you'll want before you invest and to discuss your situation with you. He handles bonds as well as stocks. He'll tell you about the risks and rewards and help you get a financial picture of any company whose securities are listed on the Exchange.

How was your score? No matter how good or bad, you'll find a lot of useful information about common stocks and dividends, and about the convenient Monthly Investment Plan through which you can invest as little as $40 every three months, in our booklet, "Investment Facts About Common Stocks and Cash Dividends." Mrs. Ethel Nevport, 1100 South Fourth Street, on the line of the new postman's route. She spontaneously made a lifelong acquaintance of Stockvell.

She knew the hour that he would start on his beat, it is said to have required about 12 miles daily walking. It starts on Mississippi street and ends on South First, serving Plum Street to the Winnsboro Road, Mississippi street to Florida to the plant of Slagle-Johnson company.

Over this route, rain or shine, in summer's scorching heat and winter's bone-chilling frosty weather, "Mitzi" was on the job.

Sometimes a presumptous dog would seek to break in and share a degree of friendship with the mail man. Instantly "Mitzi" put him in his place, he dared no more to meddle with her mail man associate.

Some times Mailman Stockwell would be off a few days on vacation or else would be off a few days for illness. "Mitzi," missed him as much as those who got mail from his hand. A substitute took over but "Mitzi" spurned the substitute. Each morning she awaited for the return of her buddy and showed almost human delight when he got back on his run.

The idiosyncracies of "Mitzi" were recited to Jes' Ramblin' by Stockwell yesterday. He admitted that this dog is almost human. "But he confessed that a dog at 12 years is old, about as old as a human at 70, and he said reluctantly that "Mitzi' is showing signs of slowing up. Some days now she tires and does not make the full run. He declared she is an unselfish friend, with intelligence bordering on that of a human being."

Everybody has heard of a bull in a china shop, but it remained for Baton Rouge to produce one better, "A bull in a woman's Dress Shop."

A Brahma bull escaped from a truck and to try his prowess, plunged into a woman's dress shop in the heat of Baton Rouge through a lavishly decorated front window. Glass broke with a crash and pieces flew in all directions. Women clerks screamed and patrons hollered and rushed to find a way of escape, but the bull evidently enjoying the confusion his entry had caused, knocked over dress racks, skirts and costumes at will, as they failed to meet with his taste.

The capital city's biggest policeman rushed into the scene. He is J. L. Ott, six feet three inches tall and weighing 210 pounds. He grabbed the bull by the tail but was forced to relinquish his grasp almost instantly. Ultimately helpers armed with rope overcame the animal's warlike nature and he was taken out of the building.

The shop's owner declared her help was all frightened stiff and her place she admitted was almost a complete wreck.

Fifth district classroom teachers will have a dinner at Hotel Frances Thursday, March 22 at 7:30 p.m. to do honor to four outstanding teachers of the district.

The honorees are Mrs. Mildred McCormick, Shreveport, state president of the department of classroom teachers; Mrs. Helen Otis, West Monroe, secretary of the department; Mrs. Lizzie Riser, Ruston, junior vice-president; and Mrs. Ione Hill, Monroe, vice-president of the Louisiana Teachers Association. All four women have made an exceptional record for the advancement of the cause of education.

An unique experiment in education was conducted the past week in Louisville, Ky. when 12 men, ages 18 to 40, went to class behind bars. The sheriff at Louisville believes his school in Jefferson county jail is the first of the kind anywhere.

The students — prisoners serving 30 days to a year — were chosen for their ability and divided into classes. The classes will meet each day.

The sheriff said an inmate's request recently to practice typing in the jail office gave him the idea for the school.

He said he decided that even limited schooling among prisoners would be worth while in "planting the seed of desire for betterment."

The prisoners gave him encouragement.

Said one: 'I never had time to go to school. Now time is one thing I've got plenty of.'

The Y-Teen Potato Chip sales, for the benefit of this group started on March 8 and ends on March 20. In this column Saturday it simply stated March 8, leaving off the final sale date of March 20.

It is a worthy project and should find plenty of purchasers.

Mrs. Hale will be remembered as the former Betty Jane Thompson of Monroe.

Federal Officials Arrest Seaman For Attack On Girl

NEW ORLEANS, March 17—UP — A 28-year-old Dallas, Tex., seaman was held by the Federal Bureau of Investigation today for attempting to rape an attractive 17-year-old girl in her stateroom while the vessel was on the high seas.

M. P. Chiles, agent-in-charge of the FBI here, said Carlos R. G. Flores, third assistant engineer on the ship was charged with "illegally entering the stateroom of the victim and forcibly attempting to commit rape on her."

The brown-haired girl, a native of Germany who came here to make her home with relatives in Texas, said she was asleep in her stateroom on the night of March 5 when a man entered.

She screamed and fought him, she said, and her screams awakened a girl companion. Together, they chased the man from the cabin. The girl told the captain of the incident and he held Flores until the ship arrived here.

Trio Arrested At Alexandria For Store Burglary

ALEXANDRIA, La., March 17—UP — Police are holding three youths after two of them were found in a hardware store here shortly before dawn today.

One of the trio, identified as Walter Robles, West Covina, Calif., told authorities that he is an escapee of a penal farm in New York and that he "thinks" he is wanted by the FBI on a concealed weapons charge.

Another youth was identified as Johnny Martin, Los Angeles. The third, a juvenile, was not identified by officers.

Robles told police that the group had been "hitch hiking" around the country and that the car they were driving had been stolen in Tuscaloosa, Ala.

He said the three had left New Orleans last night and had parked behind the hardware store.

Only two of the youths were found in the store. The third was sleeping in the car at the time of arrest. A passing worker tipped police that he had seen some boys entering a second story window of the store.

Loyola Sweeps Twin Bill From Northeast

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

It was unbelievable. We were just as surprised as anyone else when the board of directors of the Twin Cities Baseball Corporation announced the club's pre-season ticket sale goal of 1,000 books had reached no more than 500 and that was 300 under the total sold a year ago. But fickle fandom is hard to predict, and it's tougher for baseball people to figure when they have produced a pennant winner and league champion as was the case of the Sports last season.

Now, it appears the sale will be reopened for a short time. At least such a move is being considered. A few more people may buy some books, but it seems far fetched now that the Sports will open the season in the Evangeline League with cash from the sale of 1,000 books in the till unless there is a sudden surge of baseball fans and well-wishers to grab the bargain-counter tickets when, and if, they're offered again.

Meanwhile, Manager Ed Head is making plans for opening of the spring training camp at Hattiesburg, and the season openers are not far away. The Sports meet the Alexandria Aces at Alexandria in their Evangeline debut on April 17 and 18. Season openers for Legion Memorial Stadium here will be with Alexandria on April 19 and 20.

Seventeen members of the Southern Association club are on hand for the daily drills. After a trip to Alexandria Wednesday for their initial exhibition with the Tulsa Oilers, the Travs return to their base here and offer a pair of public exhibitions next Saturday and Sunday when they meet Tulsa at Legion Stadium.

The Chamber of Commerce also rolls out the plush carpet for the Travelers next Saturday evening with an informal barbecue at the Commercial Solvents Camp, according to an announcement by "Slim" Scogin, chairman of the C. of C. sports committee. Local businessmen will individually host a player at the supper.

Artificial bait fishermen around here may soon be using one of the newest lures, the Spin-Lil, being produced for the market by Frank Dozier of Shreveport.

Frank is quite a friend of newspaper people of this area, has been a commercial engraver, and doubtless many of our newspaper readers have seen in the papers pictures that had been engraved by Dozier. But Frank's eyes began to fail him some time ago, and he had to retire from the engraving business. Fishing had always been his number one hobby—and still is—so it was natural in his retirement that he should devote more time to the art of angling.

Apparently running into some idle time when the fish weren't biting or conditions weren't right for a trip to his favorite lake or stream, Frank began designing artificial lures. He has other baits on the market, but when he came up with the Spin-Lil last August, he claimed the fishermen who have tried it maintain it's "the best bass lure ever introduced."

And Frank does a good job of describing his art:

"The Spin-Lil has built-in action that helps its potency. Not being leaded, Spin-Lil has a natural minnow-like roll from side to side.

"While Spin-Lil gives a good account fished deep, it's best performance on bass has been when the fish are feeding at or near the surface. It has shown good results running deep on crappie, white perch, and bass.

"One outstanding feature is that the action and sound necessary to attract bass is built into the lure which is made of hardwood that gives off a different sound than other lures on retrieve.

"Its balance allows it to have a side-to-side roll without rolling over on normal retrieve. It has natural three-dimensional minnow eyes, and, instead of staring off into space, it is looking backward at the bass that is chasing it. It is easily handled with casting or spinning rod."

So, now we're going to have to put the old shimmy-wiggler back in the tackle box and give this Spin-Lil a try.

The Monroe Recreation department is making plans now for its summer softball activity, but after the most successful winter basketball program Director Jack Hesketh and his aides are going to get in about a month of rest before swinging into the full scale summer activity.

The department's basketball season, just closed, showed 54 teams operating in eight leagues with a total of 648 players in a total of 394 games from the last week of November until March 9. They had 70 playing nights with an average of eight games at night at five gymnasiums.

Welch, Curtis Challenge Galento, Scarr Tuesday

Mario Galento and Red Scarr, who have been making a shambles of young wrestling talent in tag team scrambles here recently, face the challenge of a pair of the best young tusslers in the business here Tuesday night when they oppose Jack Welch and George Curtis in the relay main event at Gus Kallio's Arena.

Scarr, the hooded villain, has been particularly explosive against youth. Bill Scharbert, 22-year-old St. Louis athlete, was unmercifully beaten here three weeks ago. Last week the riotious duo worked over Buddy Starr and Johnny Harmon, won the decision of the referee and then had the verdict reversed by Dave Silverstein district wrestling commissioner who scored the villainy of Scarr and Galento in disqualifying the pair.

Welch, a cousin of the Oklahoma grapplers who have appeared here frequently, made his lone show for Kallio as Scharbert's partner in the ill-fated match of February 28 that put Scharbert out of action for several days.

Kallio had a telephone call from Welch immediately after the match last Tuesday, told Welch how the bout had finished, and the Oklahoma wrestler immediately asked for another shot at the villainous pair with popular George Curtis, the younger brother of Jack Curtis, the ex-world light-heavy champ, as his partner.

Scarr and Galento accepted.

"We're going great," declared Scarr. "The only way the opposition can win is with help from the outside" as he referred to the reversal by Commissioner Silverstein in the most recent showing.

Two one-fall preliminaries, beginning at 8:15 o'clock, will proceed the 90-minute time limit main event.

Wolfpack Shades Redskin Baseball Club, 3-0 And 7-6

NEW ORLEANS, March 17 (AP)—Loyola of the South swept a baseball doubleheader today with Northeast State, winning the opener 3-0 and the nightcap 7-6.

Loyola won the opener as Paul Gelpi limited Northeast to three hits and teammate Lee Boudreaux collected a two-run homer in the sixth inning.

In the nightcap, Northeast took a 6-5 lead in the top of the seventh and final inning with a three-run outburst. Loyola got two in the bottom of the inning as John Murret homered and Boudreaux followed with a single that drove home the winning run.

Loyola	001 002 x—3	5	0

Gelpi and Chimento; Laird and McMullin.

Wave's Baseball Club Splits Two With Spring Hill

NEW ORLEANS, March 17 (AP)—Tulane split a baseball doubleheader today with Spring Hill as Emile (Chubby) Marks shut out the Alabamans 4-0 in the first game and Spring Hill took the second 8-3.

Tulane's victory gave it the season's first series two games to one.

Marks, in his first college varsity start, spaced the three hits over as many innings in the first game. He struck out four and walked four.

Shreveport Visits Ruston To Battle Techmen Tuesday

RUSTON, La., Mar. 17 (Special)—Hampered considerably by wet weather this week, the Louisiana Tech baseballers will find out just how effective their practice efforts have been when they open the season here Tuesday afternoon against the Shreveport Sports.

To get underway at 3 p.m. the exhibition contest will pit the Bulldogs against the professional Sports in a warmup affair for both diamond crews. The game will be played at Tech Field located just west of Memorial Gymnasium.

Bleachers to seat several hundred fans have been erected behind home plate. There will be no admission charge and baseball fans of the area are invited to see what the Sports of the Texas League and the Techmen of the Gulf States Conference will have in the way of material for the season ahead.

Coach Berry Hinton has been working out some 40 Tech candidates the past few weeks. He will have 11 returning lettermen from last year's Bulldog crew that tied for third place in the conference with a 6-6 record.

Back in the Canine fold are pitchers, Milford Andrews, Delhi, Doyle Kile, Westlake, Jesse Mercer, Mangham, catcher Curtis Allen, Farmerville, first baseman Doug Robertson, Shreveport, second baseman Eddie Joyce, Ruston, outfielders Bobby Shores, Vivian, J. F. White, Shreveport, Melvin Colvin, Dubach, Roger Galatas, Benton, and Kenneth Brown, Jonesboro.

Likely to start for the Bulldogs at the catching spot will be Allen or J. R. Boyette, Sarepta. Coach Hinton will also have Clyde Hunt, Dubach, and Jack Wilson, Ringgold, available for duty.

Letterman Doug Robertson seems to have the inside track at the first base bag and it will likely be Eddie Joyce at second. Getting the starting nod for shortstop will be Clyde Thompson, Delhi, or Glen Schuler, Vivian. One of two Shreveport students, Wade Scott or Ralph Cross, will probably start at third.

Four other fly-catchers who have been impressive in practice are Kenneth Brown, Roger Galatas, Jack McKinney and Fred Futch. Jerome West and Al Cox have been doing good work at shortstop and second base and Dudley Trig has looked sharp on the mound.

Nashua Runs Fifth For Gulfstream Loot; Sailor First

MIAMI, Fla., March 17 (AP) — Nashua, whose daddy came from Ireland, went down to the most crushing defeat of his brilliant career today in the 12,900 Gulfstream Park Handicap, a mile and one quarter grind won by Brookmead stable's Sailor.

A record crowd of 32,520 made Nashua, the Leslie Combs II star, the favorite at 3-5 in the compact field of seven but the top impost of 129 pounds apparently was too much for the big bay colt, who never threatened the leaders and finished a badly-beaten fifth.

Sailor, ridden by Willie Hartack, who was leading jockey with 417 winners last year, wrested the lead from Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Find as they passed the stands the first time and never lost it.

Meilleux, winner of the Appleton Handicap at last Saturday, was a surprising second in a race full of surprises. Find finished third and Wide Margin ran fourth.

Nashua, shooting for the world's money-winning record held by Citation at $1,085,760, spotted his seven opponents from four to 19 pounds. His fifth place finish was worth $2,500 and brought his total winnings to $1,040,515.

Sailor paid $9.30, $4.40 and $3.90, Meilleux $9.40 and $4.90 and Find $5.90.

Big Eight Loop Will Reorganize At Ruston Meet

RUSTON, La., March 17 (Special)—The Big Eight Baseball League will reorganize for its eleventh consecutive season here Monday night at a meeting called for 7:30 o'clock at the city hall, it has been announced by L. J. Fox, league president.

Leather Kid Back In Form To Claim Oaklawn Feature

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 17 (AP)—The Reverie Knoll farm's stretch-running Leather Kid returned to top form today to win a neck decision in the featured $3,500 St. Patrick's Day Purse before a record-breaking crowd of 14,780 at Oaklawn Park.

The 5-year-old gelding had won four in a row at Fair Grounds in New Orleans and then lost four before transferring to Oaklawn to battle the top older horses here.

Jockey Sherman Armstrong piloted Leather Kid from next to last in the field of nine and got him up in the last stride to snatch victory from B. W. Simpson and B. H. Wise's favored Validon. Mrs. A. M. Creech's Styrunner finished third, a half length back.

Leather Kid turned in the good time of 1:05 2-5 for the 5½ furlongs on a slow track. He carried top weight of 123 pounds.

McNeese Shades Texas Southern For NAIA Title

KANSAS CITY, March 17 (AP)—McNeese State College of Lake Charles, La., overcame a halftime deficit and staged a successful slowdown in the closing minutes to beat Texas Southern of Houston, 60-55, for the National Intercollegiate Basketball Championship tonight before 7,000 persons.

Pittsburg (Kan.) State downed Wheaton (Ill.) College, 77-72, for third place in the 18th annual small college tournament that started Monday with a field of 32 teams.

Trailing by as much as eight points in the first half, and down 34-35 at the intermission, McNeese solved the troublesome zone defense of the taller Negro team as Bill Reizel and Dudle Carver pulled the Louisianans into the lead. Reizel was named the outstanding player of the tournament.

Southwestern Opens With Southern Ill.

LAFAYETTE, La., March 17—UP— Southwestern Louisiana Institute opens its home baseball season against Southern Illinois March 19.

Coach Raymond Didier said that southpaw Charlie Albritton will take the mound for the Bulldogs in the opener. In last year's competition, Albritton was top man on the Bulldog mound staff with a 6-2 record.

Swanson Won't Throw With Plane Passing By

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 17 (AP)—What was your most embarrassing moment? Your pet superstition? Did your wife ever win a beauty contest? What do you do in the winter? Who is the greatest ball player you ever saw?

National League rookies answer questions like those for Dave Grote, handsome head of the league's service bureau. Dave has a foot-thick file of biographical data, enough to feed the TV show "this is your life," for 52 weeks.

Stan Musial wins the "best player you've seen" vote from the National League's freshman class. Ted Williams also draws strong support, not far behind Musial. Joe DiMaggio is a solid third, followed by Willie Mays, Bobby Feller and Duke Snider.

One rookie who never had seen a big league game restricted his choice to men he had played against in the minors. His honest ballot went to a brother rookie, Bob Lennon of the New York Giants.

"I was looking in one direction and saw the runner. I looked in the other direction and saw the ball. I got all excited and, instead of throwing my mask off, I threw my mitt off. I still caught the throw and tagged the runner but then I stood with the ball in my bare hand, peering through the mask. My mitt was back by the stands."

"I was righthanded when I was a young boy," he wrote. "At the age of seven I caught my arm in a washing and broke my arm. I switched to the left and have been throwing and batting that way ever since." (Shades of Ed Head, ex-Dodger, who was a lefthanded high school pitcher, injured his throwing arm in a Louisiana school bus accident, and made the major leagues as a righthander).

"I was stopped by a state policeman while driving my car near Shreveport where I was playing ball," he wrote. "My name on the license was Kopchia and Detroit was listed as my home. He asked me what I was doing down there and I told him I was playing baseball with Shreveport.

"He looked me up and down and let me go. Before he turned me loose, he said, 'I hope you're a better ball player than that guy Joe Koppe.'"

Lindy McDaniel, The Cardinals' bonus pitcher, reveals himself as a philosopher. Answering a question about his ambitions outside baseball, he wrote, "I believe if people would do less talking and more doing, everyone would be better off." He wants to become a minister "or be able to help the human race as much as I can."

Jim Constable, a New York pitcher, relates his strangest experience. "In high school I pitched a no-hitter, hit a home run with two on, drove in another run with a single and lost 8-5," he recalled.

"The game has been good to me, he wrote. "I am happy just to be able to play ball. I am a firm believer in the theory you only get out of anything what you put into it."

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

It was unbelievable. We were just as surprised as anyone else when the board of directors of the Twin Cities Baseball Corporation announced the club's pre-season ticket sale goal of 1,000 books had reached no more than 500 and that was 300 under the total sold a year ago. But fickle fandom is hard to predict, and it's tougher for baseball people to figure when they have produced a pennant winner and league champion as was the case of the Sports last season.

Now, it appears the sale will be reopened for a short time. At least such a move is being considered. A few more people may buy some books, but it seems far fetched now that the Sports will open the season in the Evangeline League with cash from the sale of 1,000 books in the till unless there is a sudden surge of baseball fans and well-wishers to grab the bargain-counter tickets when, and if, they're offered again.

Meanwhile, Manager Ed Head is making plans for opening of the spring training camp at Hattiesburg, and the season openers are not far away. The Sports meet the Alexandria Aces at Alexandria in their Evangeline debut on April 17 and 18. Season openers for Legion Memorial Stadium here will be with Alexandria on April 19 and 20.

Seventeen members of the Southern Association club are on hand for the daily drills. After a trip to Alexandria Wednesday for their initial exhibition with the Tulsa Oilers, the Travs return to their base here and offer a pair of public exhibitions next Saturday and Sunday when they meet Tulsa at Legion Stadium.

The Chamber of Commerce also rolls out the plush carpet for the Travelers next Saturday evening with an informal barbecue at the Commercial Solvents Camp, according to an announcement by "Slim" Scogin, chairman of the C. of C. sports committee. Local businessmen will individually host a player at the supper.

Artificial bait fishermen around here may soon be using one of the newest lures, the Spin-Lil, being produced for the market by Frank Dozier of Shreveport.

Frank is quite a friend of newspaper people of this area, has been a commercial engraver, and doubtless many of our newspaper readers have seen in the papers pictures that had been engraved by Dozier. But Frank's eyes began to fail him some time ago, and he had to retire from the engraving business. Fishing had always been his number one hobby—and still is—so it was natural in his retirement that he should devote more time to the art of angling.

Apparently running into some idle time when the fish weren't biting or conditions weren't right for a trip to his favorite lake or stream, Frank began designing artificial lures. He has other baits on the market, but when he came up with the Spin-Lil last August, he claimed the fishermen who have tried it maintain it's "the best bass lure ever introduced."

And Frank does a good job of describing his art:

"The Spin-Lil has built-in action that helps its potency. Not being leaded, Spin-Lil has a natural minnow-like roll from side to side.

"While Spin-Lil gives a good account fished deep, it's best performance on bass has been when the fish are feeding at or near the surface. It has shown good results running deep on crappie, white perch, and bass.

"One outstanding feature is that the action and sound necessary to attract bass is built into the lure which is made of hardwood that gives off a different sound than other lures on retrieve.

"Its balance allows it to have a side-to-side roll without rolling over on normal retrieve. It has natural three-dimensional minnow eyes, and, instead of staring off into space, it is looking backward at the bass that is chasing it. It is easily handled with casting or spinning rod."

So, now we're going to have to put the old shimmy-wiggler back in the tackle box and give this Spin-Lil a try.

The Monroe Recreation department is making plans now for its summer softball activity, but after the most successful winter basketball program Director Jack Hesketh and his aides are going to get in about a month of rest before swinging into the full scale summer activity.

The department's basketball season, just closed, showed 54 teams operating in eight leagues with a total of 648 players in a total of 394 games from the last week of November until March 9. They had 70 playing nights with an average of eight games at night at five gymnasiums.

Shreveport Visits Ruston To Battle Techmen Tuesday

RUSTON, La., Mar. 17 (Special)—Hampered considerably by wet weather this week, the Louisiana Tech baseballers will find out just how effective their practice efforts have been when they open the season here Tuesday afternoon against the Shreveport Sports.

To get underway at 3 p.m. the exhibition contest will pit the Bulldogs against the professional Sports in a warmup affair for both diamond crews. The game will be played at Tech Field located just west of Memorial Gynasium.

Bleachers to seat several hundred fans have been erected behind home plate. There will be no admission charge and baseball fans of the area are invited to see what the Sports of the Texas League and the Techmen of the Gulf States Conference will have in the way of material for the season ahead.

Coach Berry Hinton has been working out some 40 Tech candidates the past few weeks. He will have 11 returning lettermen from last year's Bulldog crew that tied for third place in the conference with a 6-6 record.

Back in the Canine fold are pitchers, Milford Andrews, Delhi, Doyle Kile, Westlake, Jesse Mercer, Mangham, catcher Curtis Allen, Farmerville, first baseman Doug Robertson, Shreveport, second baseman Eddie Joyce, Ruston, outfielders Bobby Shores, Vivian, J. F. White, Shreveport, Melvin Colvin, Dubach, Roger Galatas, Benton, and Kenneth Brown, Jonesboro.

Likely to start for the Bulldogs at the catching spot will be Alles or J. R. Boyette, Sarepta. Coach Hinton will also have Clyde Hunt, Dubach, and Jack Wilson, Ringgold, available for duty.

Letterman Doug Robertson seems to have the inside track at the first base bag and it will likely be Eddie Joyce at second. Getting the starting nod for shortstop will be Clyde Thompson, Delhi, or Glen Schuler, Vivian. One of two Shreveport students, Wade Scott or Ralph Cross, will probably start at third.

Four other fly-catchers who have been impressive in practice are Kenneth Brown, Roger Galatas, Jack McKinney and Fred Futch. Jerome West and Al Cox have been doing good work at shortstop and second base and Dudley Trig has looked sharp on the mound.

Nashua Runs Fifth For Gulfstream Loot; Sailor First

MIAMI, Fla., March 17 (AP) — Nashua, whose daddy came from Ireland, went down to the most crushing defeat of his brilliant career today in the 12,900 Gulfstream Park Handicap, a mile and one quarter grind won by Brookmead stable's Sailor.

A record crowd of 32,520 made Nashua, the Leslie Combs II star, the favorite at 3-5 in the compact field of seven but the top impost of 129 pounds apparently was too much for the big bay colt, who never threatened the leaders and finished a badly-beaten fifth.

Sailor, ridden by Willie Hartack, who was leading jockey with 417 winners last year, wrested the lead from Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Find as they passed the stands the first time and never lost it.

Meilleux, winner of the Appleton Handicap last Saturday, was a surprising second in a race full of surprises. Find finished third and Wide Margin ran fourth.

Nashua, shooting for the world's money-winning record held by Citation at $1,085,760, spotted his seven opponents from four to 19 pounds. His fifth place finish was worth $2,500 and brought his total winnings to $1,040,515.

Sailor paid $9.30, $4.40 and $3.90, Meilleux $9.40 and $4.90 and Find $5.90.

Leather Kid Back In Form To Claim Oaklawn Feature

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 17 (AP)—The Reverie Knoll farm's stretch-running Leather Kid returned to top form today to win a neck decision in the featured $3,500 St. Patrick's Day Purse before a record-breaking crowd of 14,780 at Oaklawn Park.

The 5-year-old gelding had won four in a row at Fair Grounds in New Orleans and then lost four before transferring to Oaklawn to battle the top older horses here.

Jockey Sherman Armstrong piloted Leather Kid from next to last in the field of nine and got him up in the last stride to snatch victory from B. W. Simpson and B. H. Wise's favored Validon. Mrs. A. M. Creech's Styrunner finished third, a half length back.

Leather Kid turned in the good time of 1:05 2-5 for the 5½ furlongs on a slow track. He carried top weight of 123 pounds.

McNeese Shades Texas Southern For NAIA Title

KANSAS CITY, March 17 (AP)—McNeese State College of Lake Charles, La., overcame a halftime deficit and staged a successful slowdown in the closing minutes to beat Texas Southern of Houston, 60-55, for the National Intercollegiate Basketball Championship tonight before 7,000 persons.

Pittsburg (Kan.) State downed Wheaton (Ill.) College, 77-72, for third place in the 18th annual small college tournament that started Monday with a field of 32 teams.

Trailing by as much as eight points in the first half, and down 34-35 at the intermission, McNeese solved the troublesome zone defense of the taller Negro team as Bill Reigel and Dudle Carver pulled the Louisianans into the lead.

Swanson Won't Throw With Plane Passing By

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 17 (AP)—What was your most embarrassing moment? Your pet superstition? Did your wife ever win a beauty contest? What do you do in the winter? Who is the greatest ball player you ever saw?

National League rookies answer questions like those for Dave Grote, handsome head of the league's service bureau. Dave has a foot-thick file of biographical data, enough to feed the TV show "this is your life," for 52 weeks.

Stan Musial wins the "best player you've seen" vote from the National League's freshman class. Ted Williams also draws strong support, not far behind Musial. Joe DiMaggio is a solid third, followed by Willie Mays, Bobby Feller and Duke Snider.

One rookie who never had seen a big league game restricted his choice to men he had played against in the minors. His honest ballot went to a brother rookie, Bob Lennon of the New York Giants.

"I was looking in one direction and saw the runner. I looked in the other direction and saw the ball. I got all excited and, instead of throwing my mask off, I threw my mitt off. I still caught the throw and tagged the runner but there I stood with the ball in my bare hand, peering through the mask. My mitt was back by the stands."

"I was righthanded when I was a young boy," he wrote. "At the age of seven I caught my arm in a washing and broke my arm. I switched to the left and have been throwing and batting that way ever since," (Shades of Ed Head, ex-Dodger, who was a lefthanded high school pitcher, injured his throwing arm in a Louisiana school bus accident, and made the major leagues as a righthander).

"I was stopped by a state policeman while driving my car near Shreveport where I was playing ball," he wrote. "My name on the license was Kopchia and Detroit was listed as my home. He asked me what I was doing down there and I told him I was playing baseball with Shreveport.

"He looked me up and down and let me go. Before he turned me loose, he said, 'I hope you're a better ball player than that guy Joe Koppe.'"

Lindy McDaniel, The Cardinals' bonus pitcher, reveals himself as a philosopher. Answering a question about his ambitions outside baseball, he wrote, "I believe if people would do less talking and more doing, everyone would be better off." He wants to become a minister "or be able to help the human race as much as I can."

Jim Constable, a New York pitcher, relates his strangest experience. "In high school I pitched a no-hitter, hit a home run with two on, drove in another run with a single and lost 8-5," he recalled.

"The game has been good to me, he wrote. "I am happy just to be able to play ball. I am a firm believer in the theory you only get out of anything what you put into it."

Welch, Curtis Challenge Galento, Scarr Tuesday

Mario Galento and Red Scarr, who have been making a shambles of young wrestling talent in tag team scrambles here recently, face the challenge of a pair of the best young tusslers in the business here Tuesday night when they oppose Jack Welch and George Curtis in the relay main event at Gus Kallio's Arena.

Scarr, the hooded villain, has been particularly explosive against youth. Bill Scharbert, 22-year-old St. Louis athlete, was unmercifully beaten here three weeks ago. Last week the riotious duo worked over Buddy Starr and Johnny Harmon, won the decision of the referee and then had the verdict reversed by Dave Silverstein, district wrestling commissioner, who scored the villainy of Scarr and Galento in disqualifying the pair.

Welch, a cousin of the Oklahoma grapplers who have appeared here frequently, made his lone show for Kallio as Scharbert's partner in the ill-fated match of February 28 that put Scharbert out of action for several days.

Kallio had a telephone call from Welch immediately after the match last Tuesday, told Welch how the bout had finished, and the Oklahoma wrestler immediately asked for another shot at the villainous pair with popular George Curtis, younger brother of Jack Curtis, the ex-world light-heavy champ, as his partner.

Scarr and Galento accepted.

"We're going great," declared Scarr. "The only way the opposition can win is with help from the outside" as he referred to the reversal by Commissioner Silverstein in the most recent showing.

Two one-fall preliminaries, beginning at 8:15 o'clock, will proceed the 90-minute time limit main event.

By BOBBY HENDERSON

RUSTON, La., March 17—(Special)— A talented quartet of score-happy performers, accompanied by a pint-sized playmaker, form the first team lineup of the 1956 District 2-AA All-Star basketball squad which was announced heret oday

Bobby James and Jack Woods of Ruston, and Charles Pixley and Burl Brashear of Jonesboro-Hodge represent the sharp-shooter foursome, with background arrangements supervised by Ruston's Dupey Cobb.

The potent, well-balanced squad was chosen for the Louisiana Sports Writers Association by four hardwood mentors and a like number of scribes in the 2-AA area. Coaches voting in the first annual All-Star poll were Denman Garner. Ruston; Sam Ledbetter and Carrell Dowles, Jonesboro-Hodge; and H. L. McConathy, Neville of Monroe.

The "outstanding player" award went to James, bean-pole Ruston mainstay who tallied 11 poin4ts in four league games to pace the three-team loop with a healthy 28.5 clip in district play. In the tabulations for this honor, James was credited with six votes and Pixley had the remaining two.

James, Pixley and Woods were unanimous selections for regular positions,e ach polling the maximum 16 points. Brashear and Cobb almost made the balloting a complete landslide as they received 15 and 14 points, respectively.

Although Neville was ignored on the initial club, three Tigers easily landed berths as second-stringers, including John Blake (8), Bobby Groves (8), and Bob Mosley (7). The Neville ujniors were joined by Ruston's Charles Smith (7) and Jonesboro's John Bailey (6) to round out the runner-up reserve list.

Tom Causey of Neville and Jerry Dyson of Ruston were the only other cagers to receive recognition on the nomination blanks. Dyson gathered four pointsa nd Causey three.

Neither quality, nor quantity is lacking on the 12-man honor roll. It contains tremendous scoring weapons, a height average of six-even, lightning speed afoot and fine ball handlers, as well as some rebounding workhorses and defensive guarding terrors.

A noticeable oddity ont he "top ten" roster is seen in the classification column. All of Ruston's first four honorees have concluded high school action, but the half dozen Jonesboro and Neville aces will have at least one or more seasons remaining in the prep fraternity. Both honorable mentions are also seniors.

A tight photo-finish occurred in the torrid two-man chase for individual pointmaking laurels. When the dust finally settled Pixley boasted the best game average, 22 points per try; and James poured in the highest overall total, 881 in tr4ips. Pixley's medial came from 859 aces in 39 tilts, ranking the 6-2 junior second in overall totals.

Both of the co-leaders re widely recognized as topnotch all-state candidates and rank high on Louisiana's long list of leading scorers.

James also had a firm grip on the rebounding title, snaring 688 ricochets to re ord a 16.0 average.

Another close battle was staged for the No. 3 slot, which Woods barely won over Brashear. Woods led the pair of "unsung heroes" by contributing an average of 1.04 (587 points) to edge Brashear's 150-point effort and 13.8 avg. in 37 tests.

Cobb servws as the man behind the steering wheel of this highscoring machine. The feeder artist is a super-duper playmaker in every respect. He is capable of display ing a polished assortment of fancy passing and dribbling skills, plus having devilish ball-hawking habits that deal havoc to opposing attacks. Cobb also chipped in 383 points.

As a final analysis, the '56 all-star squad is definitely a so-called "Coach's dream." There is possibly an equal, but it is doubtful that any of the state's remaining six double-A districts can assemble a more talented collection of basketball specialists.

Baylor Cindermen Cop Southwestern Recreation Event

FORT WORTH, March 17—UP—Sprinters and hurdlers had a field day with two dozen records broken or tied as Baylor upset favored Oklahoma A&M to take the university championship in the 33rd annual Southwestern Recreation Track Meet Saturday.

Standout performances were a dime a dozen under a mild spring sun, but the best of the lot were turned in by brilliant Eddie Southern, Texas' freshman Olympic hopeful; national AAU sprint champion Bobby Morrow of Abilene Christian; Baylor sprinter Clyde Hart and teammate Bobby Herod in the hurdles and Texas Christian's hurdler Bill Curtis.

Baylor's team victory was a bit tainted by a disqualification of a winning mile relay effort by Oklahoma A&M that would have left the two teams deadlocked at 40 points each, but Abilene Christian swept to an easy college division crown and the Texas freshman waltzed to the junior college-freshman title.

Southern, a lean Dallas youngster making his first big meet debut as a collegian, won the high and low hurdles in 14.7 and 23.3 respectively and anchored record-breaking sprint and mile relay teams to win the meet's outstanding athlete award for the second straight year.

Morrow pounded home in 9.6 and 20.7 in the 100 and 220-yard dashes and anchored a record-setting sprint relay quartet; Hart tied the meet record of 9.5 in the century dash, Herod raced to a meet record of 23.2 in the 220-yard low hurdles and Curtis set a new standard in the 110-yard high hurdles in 23.2 seconds.

In all, 21 divisional records were broken — six of them emerging as new overall standards — and three others were tied as the cream of the areas track stars put on a spectacular show for a crowd of some 4,000 fans and a regional television audience.

The only record that didn't fall as expected was the university 440-yard dash, which Oklahoma A&M's J. W. Mashburn decided to pass up in favor of the 220-yard dash.

The Oklahoma Aggie mile relay team was disqualified when Fred Schermerhorn cut in too closely on SMU's Albert Bartek on the second lap, wiping out a 3:18.0 performance and moving Baylor's 3:19.0 into first place.

That gave Baylor 42 points to 35 for the Aggies, while Abilene Christian piled up 60 1-4 to 33 for North Texas in the college class. Texas amassed 50 to 27 1-2 for Houston in the freshman division and Fort Worth Arlington Heights nipped Dallas Sunset 20 to 19 3-4 for the high school title.

The new meet records were by Curtis in the high hurdles; Herod in the low hurdles, Morrow in the 220-yard dash, Baylor's sprint relay time of 40.9, a pole vault of 13 feet 9 1-2 inches by Oklahoma A&M's James Graham and a 1:52.9 half mile by Abilene Christian's Paul Johnson.

There were five records broken and one tied in the university division, eight broken and one tied in the college division, six broken and one tied in the junior college-freshmen class and one broken by the schoolboys.

Del Vicario is draft exempt since two brothers were killed in World War II and he's the sole surviving son.

Baylor Cindermen Cop Southwestern Recreation Event

FORT WORTH, March 17—UP—Sprinters and hurdlers had a field day with two dozen records broken or tied as Baylor upset favored Oklahoma A&M to take the university championship in the 33rd annual Southwestern Recreation Track Meet Saturday.

Standout performances were a dime a dozen under a mild spring sun, but the best of the lot were turned in by brilliant Eddie Southern, Texas' freshman Olympic hopeful; national AAU sprint champion Bobby Morrow of Abilene Christian; Baylor sprinter Clyde Hart and teammate Bobby Herod in the hurdles and Texas Christian's hurdler Bill Curtis.

Baylor's team victory was a bit tainted by a disqualification of a winning mile relay effort by Oklahoma A&M that would have left the two teams deadlocked at 40 points each, but Abilene Christian swept to an easy college division crown and the Texas freshman waltzed to the junior college-freshman title.

Southern, a lean Dallas youngster making his first big meet debut as a collegian, won the high and low hurdles in 14.7 and 23.3 respectively and anchored record-breaking sprint and mile relay teams to win the meet's outstanding athlete award for the second straight year.

Morrow pounded home in 9.6 and 20.7 in the 100 and 220-yard dashes and anchored a record-setting sprint relay quartet; Hart tied the meet record of 9.5 in the century dash, Herod raced to a meet record of 23.2 in the 220-yard low hurdles and Curtis set a new standard in the 110-yard high hurdles in 23.2 seconds.

In all, 21 divisional records were broken — six of them emerging as new overall standards — and three others were tied as the cream of the areas track stars put on a spectacular show for a crowd of some 4,000 fans and a regional television audience.

The only record that didn't fall as expected was the university 440-yard dash, which Oklahoma A&M's J. W. Mashburn decided to pass up in favor of the 220-yard dash.

The Oklahoma Aggie mile relay team was disqualified when Fred Schermerhorn cut in too closely on SMU's Albert Bartek on the second lap, wiping out a 3:18.0 performance and moving Baylor's 3:19.0 into first place.

That gave Baylor 42 points to 35 for the Aggies, while Abilene Christian piled up 60 1-4 to 33 for North Texas in the college class. Texas amassed 50 to 27 1-2 for Houston in the freshman division and Fort Worth Arlington Heights nipped Dallas Sunset 20 to 19 3-4 for the high school title.

There were five records broken and one tied in the university division, eight broken and one tied in the college division, six broken and one tied in the junior college-freshmen class and one broken by the schoolboys.

OUTSTANDING PLAYER: Bobby James of Ruston.

By BOBBY HENDERSON

RUSTON, La., March 17—(Special)— A talented quartet of score-happy performers, accompanied by a pint-sized playmaker, form the first team lineup of the 1956 District 2-AA All-Star basketball squad which was announced heret oday

The potent, well-balanced squad was chosen for the Louisiana Sports Writers Association by four hardwood mentors and a like number of scribes in the 2-AA area. Coaches voting in the first annual All-Star poll were Denman Garner. Ruston; Sam Ledbetter and Carrell Dowies, Jonesboro-Hodge; and H. L. McConathy, Neville of Monroe.

The "outstanding player" award went to James, bean-pole Ruston mainstay who tallied 11 poin4ts in four league games to pace the three-team loop with a healthy 28.5 clip in district play. In the tabulations for this honor, James was credited with six votes and Pixley had the remaining two.

James, Pixley and Woods were unanimous selections for regular positions,e ach polling the maximum 16 points. Brashear and Cobb almost made the balloting a complete landslide as they received 15 and 14 points, respectively.

Although Neville was ignored on the initial club, three Tigers easily landed berths as second-stringers, including John Blake (8), Bobby Groves (8), and Bob Mosley (7). The Neville ujniors were joined by Ruston's Charles Smith (7) and Jonesboro's John Bailey (6) to round out the runner-up reserve list.

Tom Causey of Neville and Jerry Dyson of Ruston were the only other cagers to receive recognition on the nomination blanks. Dyson gathered four pointsa nd Causey three.

Neither quality nor quantity is lacking on the 12-man honor roll. It contains tremendous scoring weapons, a height average of six-even, lightning speed afoot and fine ball handlers, as well as some rebounding workhorses and defensive guarding terrors.

A noticeable oddity ont he "top ten" roster is seen in the classification column. All of Ruston's first four honorees have concluded high school action, but the half dozen Jonesboro and Neville aces will have at least one or more seasons remaining in the prep fraternity. Both honorable mentions are also seniors.

A tight photo-finish occurred in the torrid two-man chase for individual pointmaking laurels. When the dust finally settled Pixley boasted the best game average, 22 points per try; and James poured in the highest overall total, 881 in tr4ips. Pixley's medial came from 859 aces in 39 tilts, ranking the 6-2 junior second in overall totals.

Both of the co-leaders re widely recognized as topnotch all-state candidates and rank high on Louisiana's long list of leading scorers.

James also had a firm grip on the rebounding title, snaring 688 ricochets to re ord a 16.0 average.

Another close battle was staged for the No. 3 slot, which Woods barely won over Brashear. Woods led the pair of "unsung heroes" by contributing an average of 1.04 (587 points) to edge Brashear's 150-point effort and 13.8 avg. in 37 tests.

Cobb servws as the man behind the steering wheel of this highscoring machine. The feeder artist is a super-duper playmaker in every respect. He is capable of displaying a polished assortment of fancy passing and dribbling skills, plus having devilish ball-hawking habits that deal havoc to opposing attacks. Cobb also chipped in 383 points.

As a final analysis, the '56 all-star squad is definitely a so-called "Coach's dream." There is possibly an equal, but it is doubtful that any of the state's remaining six double-A districts can assemble a more talented collection of basketball specialists.

Johnson Cards 70 To Nab Lead In Gulf Coast Golf

GULFPORT, Miss., March 17 (AP) —Personable Howie Johnson, a sharp-shooting Texan with his eye trained on the PGA circuit, pulled away from the field today to post a two-stroke lead at the half way point in the $5,000 Gulf Coast invitational golf tournament.

Brilliant sunshine and soft breeze off the Gulf of Mexico, played across the Great Southern's 6,906-yard course today, a marked contrast from the heavy rains that pelted the gulf coast earlier this week.

The 150-entry field was trimmed to the low 60 scorers for tomorrow's 36 holes. The two 18-hole rounds were scheduled when a downpour washed out the scheduled opening round Thursday.

Johnson, a St. Paul, Minn., native now living in Houston, posted a 32 for the par 35 front nine, but went two over on the last nine holes. He said he wasn't having any particular trouble, "but you can't beat par when those putts don't drop."

Johnson turned pro in January and plans to join the touring professionals in the Canadian Open early in July.

Morrow, now an Air Force officer stationed at England Air Force Base, Alexandria, La., said all of his misery came on the first and third holes.

He three-putted the first and took a bogie when he landed in a trap on the third.

Bert Weaver, who recently rejoined the Louisiana State University golf team after a hitch in service, turned in a 69 today to take over the amateur pace setter's role. Weaver's 36-hole total of 72-69—141 gave him a tie for third place with professional Jack Peyton of Birmingham, Ala.

Joe Louis Contracts For Grappling Dates

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP) — Joe Louis was reported today to have decided to make at least a part time career of professional wrestling.

A spokesman for Promoter Ray Fabiani said the 41-wear-old former Heavyweight Boxing Champion has agreed to combine "spot" performances as a grappler with his regular bits as a referee.

Terms of Louis' deal with Fabiani, who operates out of Philadelphia, were not disclosed. Louis previously had said Fabiani offered him a sure $150,000 to appear several times a week for the next year.

Fetchick, Vossler Crowd Into Third Spot 2 Blows Off

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 17 —UP—Billy Maxwell and Lionel Hebert dueled in a hole for hole match Saturday and it took all the skill Maxwell could muster to preserve a one stroke lead at the end of 54 holes in the St. Petersburg Open golf tournament.

Maxwell, the former national champion from Odessa, Tex., who started the blustery, cold day off with a three stroke lead over his Erie, Pa., opponent, enters the final round Sunday with a 204 total to Hebert's 205.

Both were in the same threesome Saturday and Hebert erased Maxwell's three-stroke advantage at the seventh hole. It was almost match play from there on with the lead see-sawing before a gallery of more than 1,000 persons.

The red-haired Texan took both the 14th and 15th holes, however, to jump into a one stroke lead which he held through the 18th. Hebert had a 69 to Maxwell's 71.

Ernie Vossler of Fort Worth, Tex., and Mike Fetchik of Mahopac, N. Y., tied for third with 206's and Ted Kroll of Fort Lauderdale and Dr. Cary Middlecoff of Dallas were next with 207s.

Middlecoff, the defending champion, had the best round of the day with a six under par 66. He shot four birdies and an eagle to jump back into contention for the final round.

Hebert, who held the opening day lead with a 65, lost the lead Saturday to Maxwell on the 15th hole where he hit his drive into the woods. Despite this setback, he made a remarkable recovery, shooting from between two trees and under overhanging branches. He could see only a corner of the green.

The Pennsylvanian, using a four iron, faded the ball to the right and it went for the pin, missing by an inch. His ball stopped 10 feet away. Maxwell, in the meantime, also lay 10 feet away.

But Hebert apparently had spent his luck. He missed the putt and Maxwell sank his. They halved the other three holes.

Sanches Reaches North, South Golf Semi-Final Round

PINEHURST, N. C., March 17 (AP) — Defending champion Margaret (Wifi) Smith and three newcomers to the North and South Ama-Stewart, Anne Quast, and Wanda Stewart, Anne Quast, and Wnada Sanches, survived two rounds today to advance to the semi-finals.

Miss Smith, after a 19-hole battle in the second round this morning, when she eliminated Mrs. A. H. Allen of Arlington, Va., 1 up, had an easier time during the afternoon. She ousted Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore, her Curtis Cup teammate, 3 and 2. Wiffi's opponent tomorrow will be Miss Stewart, the Canadian champion, who turned back Barbara Romack of Sacramento, Calif., 2 up.

Miss Sanches, former softball and basketball player from Baton Rouge, La., advanced at the expense of Ann Richardson, Columbus, Ohio, 3 and 2, the same score by which Anne Quast, a Curtis Cup alternate, defeated Jane Nelson of Indianapolis.

Wanda had raced to a 4-up edge over Greta Leone of Chicago at the turn and held that advantage to score a 4 and 3 decision during the morning round. Miss Quast had trimmed Sheila Moss of San Bernardino, Calif., 5 and 3.

Anne Richardson, a 6-foot blonde who is a sophomore at Rollins, stayed even through 12 holes with Wanda Sanches but lost three of the next four holes and the match.

Joe Gordon Still Threat To Make Bengals' Lineup

FT. MYERS, FLA., March 17 (AP) —Joe Gordon, who flashed into prominence as the New York Yankees' star second baseman in the early 40s, didn't crack the Detroit Tiger lineup today, but apparently it still is a possibility.

Gordon, starting his first year as a Tiger coach after three years of scouting, has been working out regularly with the Detroit club and Manager Bucky Harris indicated last night he was seriously considering using Gordon in his desperate hunt for a second baseman.

Gordon says he's willing and he has been sensational in hitting drills. But he is 41 years old and hasn't played in three season.

Greenberg's Bonus Idea Could Sound Sour Notes

NEW YORK, March 17 —(AP)— Hank Greenberg, general manager of the Cleveland Indians has conceived an idea he hopes will speed up theIndians' all games this season. He has promised $100 to his team's players' fund for each game Cleveland wins in two hours or less during the regular campaign.

An Associated Press survey last year showed that big league ball games in 1955 took an average of 2 hours and 39 minutes, compared with 2 hours, 20 minutes in 1940, and one hour, 59 minutes in 1930.

But has anyone considered the ramifications of Greenberg's proposal?

Let's suppose the Indians are playing the Red Sox in Boston sometime next summer. The Indians are leading 4-3 in the last of the ninth.

Game time was 1:30 p.m. and it's now 3:27. The Red Sox have runners on second and third with two out and Ted Williams is the next batter. Manager Al Lopez comes out to talk to pitcher Bob Lemon anl they're joined by catcher Jim Hegan and a couple of infielders.

Lopez: "I think we'd better walk the big guy (Williams)."

Hegan: "But, boss, remember the players fund. If we walk him intentionally it'll take about 30 seconds. I think Bob can get him out in that time."

Lemon: "You know this Williams doesn't swing at any bad pitches. So it's no use making him bite. Let's walk him and I'll try to get the next batter out in a hurry."

Bobby Avila, second baseman: "Maybe we should take a chance of pitching to him. Bob, throw him one of your sinkers and make him hit it to me."

Al Rosen, third baseman: "But if Williams even hits an easy fly ball, sometimes he hits 'em so high it takes a couple of minutes to come down."

Lopez: "But fellas, we're a couple of games behind the Yankees and this game's a big one. I know a hundred bucks is a hundred bucks, but we can't win 'em all in under two hours."

Avila: "Let's see, now. A hundred dollars times 154 ball games. Well. . .that would come to $15,400. That's a lot of pesos."

Lopez: "Okay."

But the club doesn't pay off on losses.

GULFPORT, Miss., March 17 (AP)—Personable Howie Johnson, a sharp-shooting Texan with his eye trained on the PGA circuit, pulled away from the field today to post a two-stroke lead at the half way point in the $5,000 Gulf Coast invitational golf tournament.

Brilliant sunshine and soft breeze off the Gulf of Mexico, played across the Great Southern's 6,006-yard course today, a marked contrast from the heavy rains that pelted the gulf coast earlier this week.

The 150-entry field was trimmed to the low 60 scorers for tomorrow's 36 holes. The two 18-hole rounds were scheduled when a downpour washed out the scheduled opening round Thursday.

Johnson, a St. Paul, Minn., native now living in Houston, posted a 32 for the par 35 front nine, but went two over on the last nine holes. He said he wasn't having any particular trouble, "but you can't beat par when those putts don't drop."

Johnson turned pro in January and plans to join the touring professionals in the Canadian Open early in July.

Morrow, now an Air Force officer stationed at England Air Force Base, Alexandria, La., said, all of his misery came on the first and third holes.

He three-putted the first and took a bogie when he landed in a trap on the third.

Bert Weaver, who recently rejoined the Louisiana State University golf team after a hitch in service, turned in a 69 today to take over the amateur pace setter's role. Weaver's 36-hole total of 72-69—141 gave him a tie for third place with professional Jack Peyton of Birmingham, Ala.

Fetchick, Vossler Crowd Into Third Spot 2 Blows Off

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 17 —UP—Billy Maxwell and Lionel Hebert dueled in a hole for hole match Saturday and it took all the skill Maxwell could muster to preserve a one stroke lead at the end of 54 holes in the St. Petersburg Open golf tournament.

Maxwell, the former national champion from Odessa, Tex., who started the blustery, cold day off with a three stroke lead over his Erie, Pa., opponent, enters the final round Sunday with a 204 total to Hebert's 205.

Both were in the same threesome Saturday and Hebert erased Maxwell's three-stroke advantage at the seventh hole. It was almost match play from there on with the lead see-sawing before a gallery of more than 1,000 persons.

The red-haired Texan took both the 14th and 15th holes, however, to jump into a one stroke lead which he held through the 18th. Hebert had a 69 to Maxwell's 71.

Ernie Vossler of Fort Worth, Tex., and Mike Fetchik of Mahopac, N. Y., tied for third with 206's and Ted Kroll of Fort Lauderdale and Dr. Cary Middlecoff of Dallas were next with 207s.

Middlecoff, the defending champion, had the best round of the day with a six under par 66. He shot four birdies and an eagle to jump back into contention for the final round.

Hebert, who held the opening day lead with a 65, lost the lead Saturday to Maxwell on the 15th hole where he hit his drive into the woods. Despite this setback, he made a remarkable recovery, shooting from between two trees and under overhanging branches. He could see only a corner of the green.

The Pennsylvanian, using a four iron, faded the ball to the right and it went for the pin, missing by an inch. His ball stopped 10 feet away. Maxwell, in the meantime, also lay 10 feet away.

But Hebert apparently had spent his luck. He missed the putt and Maxwell sank his. They halved the other three holes.

NEW YORK, March 17 —(AP)— Hank Greenberg, general manager of the Cleveland Indians has conceived an idea he hopes will speed up theIndians' all games this season. He has promised $100 to his team's players' fund for each game Cleveland wins in two hours or less during the regular campaign.

Joe Louis Contracts For Grappling Dates

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP) — Joe Louis was reported today to have decided to make at least a part-time career of professional wrestling.

A spokesman for Promoter Ray Fabiani said the 41-wear-old former Heavyweight Boxing Champion has agreed to combine "spot" performances as a grappler with his regular bits as a referee.

Terms of Louis' deal with Fabiani, who operates out of Philadelphia, were not disclosed. Louis previously had said Fabiani offered him a sure $150,000 to appear several times a week for the next year.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 17 (AP) — Defending champion Margaret (Wiffi) Smith and three newcomers to the North and South Ama-Stewart, Anne Quast, and Wanda Stewart, Anne Quast, and Wnada Sanches, survived two rounds today to advance to the semi-finals.

Miss Smith, after a 19-hole battle in the second round this morning, when she eliminated Mrs. A. H. Allen of Arlington, Va., 1 up, had an easier time during the afternoon. She ousted Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore, her Curtis Cup teammate, 3 and 2. Wiffi's opponent tomorrow will be Miss Stewart, the Canadian champion, who turned back Barbara Romack of Sacramento, Calif., 2 up.

Miss Sanches, former softball and basketball player from Baton Rouge, La., advanced at the expense of Ann Richardson, Columbus, Ohio, 3 and 2, the same score by which Anne Quast, a Curtis Cup alternate, defeated Jane Nelson of Indianapolis.

Wanda had raced to a 4-up edge over Greta Leone of Chicago at the turn and held that advantage to score a 4 and 3 decision during the morning round. Miss Quast had trimmed Sheila Moss of San Bernardino, Calif., 5 and 3.

Anne Richardson, a 6-foot blonde who is a sophomore at Rollins, stayed even through 12 holes with Wanda Sanches but lost three of the next four holes and the match.

Joe Gordon Still Threat To Make Bengals' Lineup

FT. MYERS, FLA., March 17 (AP) —Joe Gordon, who flashed into prominence as the New York Yankees' star second baseman in the early 40s, didn't crack the Detroit Tiger lineup today, but apparently it still is a possibility.

Gordon, starting his first year as a Tiger coach after three years of scouting, has been working out regularly with the Detroit club and Manager Bucky Harris indicated last night he was seriously considering using Gordon in his desperate hunt for a second baseman.

Gordon says he's willing and he has been sensational in hitting drills. But he is 41 years old and hasn't played in three season.

Supreme Court Rulings May Return Huge Sums To Consumers Of Gas

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP) — Recent rulings by the Supreme Court could have a far reaching effect on natural gas rates, possibly resulting in refunds to consumers totaling millions of dollars.

No authoritative estimate of the full effect of the decisions is to be had, but one gas company attorney figures the refund in one case alone would amount to 20 million dollars if the court's decisions are applicable to it. Multiply that several times and you get an idea of the possibilities.

Presumably, such refunds, if made — and the "if" is a big one involving the outcome of further proceedings before the Federal Power Commission and possibly further court action — eventually would find their way to consumers.

The question is whether the FPC has the authority to increase natural gas rates above those agreed upon by buyer and seller in contracts between them, unless the evidence is clear that the existing rates are unreasonably low.

The high court ruled on Feb. 27 that the FPC erroneously permitted United Gas Pipe Line Co., to increase its rates on gas sold to Mobile Gas Service Corp. for resale to industrial users. United was directed to make a refund to the Mobile company. On the same day the court also held that FPC improperly had granted Pacific Gas & Electric Co. higher rates for the electricity it sells to Sierra Pacific Power Co. this case was sent back to the FPC.

F. T. Searls, attorney for Pacific Gas & Electric Co. subsequently challenged, in an FPC proceeding, an increase in rates on gas which his company buys from El Paso Natural Gas Co.

"The court held," Searls said in a statement filed with FPC, "that a natural gas company cannot increase a contract specified rate by an unilateral filing with the commission."

Opposing an application by the El Paso Company for an additional increase, Searls cited the court decisions and said the court ruled that "where a rate is 'agreed upon with a particular customer' it can be changed 'only by mutual consent.' "

He said that if the court's decisions apply to Pacific's contract with El Paso for gas, it appears his company is entitled to refunds of more than 20 million dollars.

Also to be considered by the architect are composition, balance, scale, rhythm and contrast of texture and finish.

MRS. CHARLES ERNEST PIPES

A wedding of interest to friends in the Twin Cities took place Sunday, March 11, at 2:30 p.m., when Miss Martha Frances Coldwell, daughter of Mrs. Harriet E. Russell of West Monroe, became the bride of Charles Ernest Pipes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Pipes of Pampa, Texas.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Dr. Everitt R. Tilson in Stockham Chapel, Vanderbilt School of Religion, Nashville, Tenn. Only relatives and close friends of the couple were present for the ceremony.

Mrs. Warren R. Sealy presented nuptial music at the organ and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Ray Tribble, who sang "I Love You" and "A Wedding Prayer."

The chapel was decorated with white gladioli placed on each side of the gold cross on the altar table.

Miss Coldwell, given in marriage by her mother, was dressed in a traditional long white satin gown and veil. The long fitted bodice was topped by a lace yoke embroidered with seed pearls. A crown, also embroidered with pearls, secured the veil. The long fitted sleeves came to petal points over the wrist. She carried a large white orchid attractively arranged with white satin and long streamers.

The candles were lighted by James Miller, who also serve as usher.

Following the wedding ceremony a reception was held at the home of Miss Dorothy R. Chapman, 957 Draughon street. White iris, bridal wreath and King Alfred daffodils were used as decorations throughout the house. A pair of Japanese wedding candles in brass candle holders adorned the mantle.

The table was attractively laid with an embroidered linen cloth. A silver coffee and tea service were placed at each end. The tiered wedding cake centered the table.

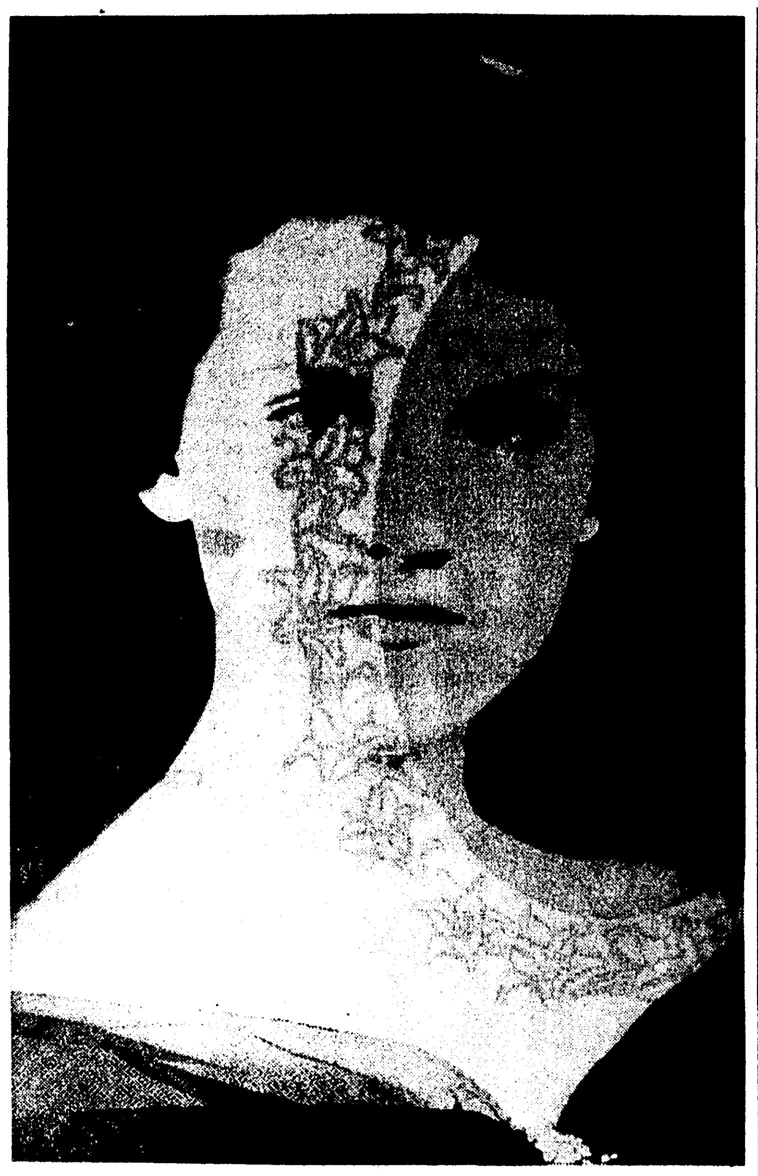
Mr. and Mrs. Pipes will reside at 2142 Capers avenue, Nashville, where Mr. Pipes will continue his studies in the Vanderbilt School of Religion. Mrs. Pipes is engaged in teaching kindergarten at the Lucy Holt Moore Center.

She is a graduate of Ouachita Parish High school and Northwestern State College at Natchitoches. Mr. Pipes is a graduate of Pampa High school and Texas Technological Institute at Lubbock, Tex.

Among the out - of - town guests at the wedding were Mrs. E. R. Landrum of Dallas, Tex., and the bride's mother, Mrs. Harriet E. Russell of West Monroe.



MISS ROSALIND LEE EBERTS' engagement and approaching marriage to Dewey G. Albritton, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Albritton of West Monroe, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Eberts of this city. The wedding will take place April 28 at St. Matthew's Catholic Church.

Mrs. Conger Will Head Delegates

Mrs. Edwin Conger, secretary of the Fifth District Louisiana Federation of Womens Clubs, will head the delegation of the Pierian Club to the district convention in Tallulah. With her will be Mrs. Norman McDuffie, chairman of youth Conservation, Mrs, R. E. Barham, Sr., Mrs. A. B. Conger, and Mrs. W. M. Nolan. Selections were made at the regular meeting of the Pierian Club at Oak Ridge Community Hall, Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. John Barr led the ritual that opened the meeting and Mrs. R. E. Barham, Sr. conducted the flag drill.

Mrs. LaFevre Speaks To Fort Miro Chapter, DAR

The Fort Miro Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution met Saturday at 3 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Guy P. Stubbs.

Hostesses were Mrs. W. K. Abington, chairman, Mrs. H. M. Butler, Mrs. W. Tom Davis, Mrs. Harry Frazer, Mrs. James Q. Graves, Mrs. Fred L. Hancock, Mrs. R. M. Hamberlin, Mrs. Clifford Johnson, Mrs. John B. Filhiol and Miss Marie Filhiol.

Mrs. H. Flood Madison, Jr., Regent, presided. She presented Mrs. Malcolm LeFevre, an American history teacher from the West Monroe High school, who spoke on "Thomas Jefferson, Father of Public Education.

Mrs. LeFevre said that July 4, 1956 will mark the 130th year since the death of one of America's greatest personalities. He was author of the Declaration of Independence and the Statue of Virginia for Religious Freedom and Father of the University of Virginia. These were the landmarks of his life. It was not his governorship of Virginia, nor his years as first secretary of state, nor his presidency, nor the purchase of Louisiana. His causes were freedom and liberty, she explained.

He believed that a properly educated people meant a free people, against whom tyranny will beat in vain. He introduced a bill named "Bill for the More General Diffusion of Knowledge." He believed to educate for leadership those whom nature endowed with genius and virtue. With these concepts Jefferson was laying the preliminary foundation for a system of free universal public education. But for the vast majority of the poor, education would end with the primary school. Only for the rigorously sifted few among them, those who gave solid evidences of fitness and talent — genius even— and whose better education would serve the purpose of the state, should higher education be available at the public expense. The present theory that all are entitled to a complete education — regardless of talents and ability to pass courses, would have been repudiated by Jefferson. (His bill did not pass but the seeds of his thought were sown). The ideas germinated and eventually most of them came to fruition. He was the forerunner of the public education and university systems of the United States of today, she pointed out.

Mrs. Madison called for report of Memorial committee; Mrs. Herbert Steed read the resolutions of love and respect on the loss of Virginia Beard Blower. The membership stood in silent prayer in memory of Mrs. T. O. Brown, one of the charter members of Fort Miro and Mrs. W. B. Clarke, who was serving as corresponding secretary at the time of her death. Mrs. R. L. Carson reported on the first days happenings at the state conference in Lafayette. Mrs. C. E. Buckley reported on the second day's activities. There are now 2,735 members of the D. A. R. in Louisiana.

Mrs. Madison gave recognition to Mrs. R. L. Carson for winning the D. A. R. Magazine advertising award and to the work done by Mrs. Jean Faulk and Mrs. C. E. Slade, Sr., which brought the Radio and TV award to Ft. Miro chapter. Fort Miro won the State Gold Honor Roll award also. Mrs. Madison reported that nine splendid resolutions were adopted at the state conference. One dealth with the lack of preparation of high school students to enable them to participate in the Good Citizenship examination and called on the Louisiana society, D. A. R. to ask for more training in American history and civics in the high schools of the state and for local chapters to take the matter up with the parish school boards.

The second dealt with a recommendation to the Continental Congress of the D. A. R. for a nation-wide program with substantial awards for high school students, which would call for the study of the Bill of Rights and the building of a bill of obligations. This is to make the youth of today realize that every right entails an obligation on his part to maintain the American way of life guaranteed under the Bill of Rights.

Miss Eleona Brinsmade gave the National Defense report and brought out the splendid work done by Herbert Philbrick, who will be a speaker at the Continental Congress.

It has been disclosed that millions of pieces of Communistic material has been arriving through the Port of New Orleans which is finding its way into schools and libraries each month.

Members present were Mrs. R. L. Carson, Miss Frances Flanders, Mrs. S. W. McLean, Mrs. C. U. Johnson, Mrs. J. Q. Graves, Mrs. Roland Brown, Mrs. J. B. Carlton, Mrs. Fagan Cox, Mrs. B. A. Trousdale, Jr., Mrs. C. E. Buckley, Mrs. David Garrett, Mrs. Duncan Cook, Mrs. George Hemphill, Mrs. A. E. Montgomery, Mrs. J. B. Filhiol, Mrs. Herbert Steed, Miss Jane Steed, Mrs. W. B. Matthews, Mrs. Henry Bernstein, Sr., Mrs. Ruby Stewart, Mrs. O. M. Grisham, Mrs. E. J. Brown, Mrs. Francis Dawson, Miss Mary Buckner, Mrs. Thomas Leigh, Mrs. Christine Moore, Mrs. C. E. Slade, Mrs. Kennedy Abington, Mrs. H. M. Butler, Mrs. Guy P. Stubbs, Mrs. W. Tom Davis, Miss Eleona Brinsmade and two guests, Mrs. Malcolm LeFevre, and Mrs. A. Shepherd.

Garden Tips And Shopping Guides

March is one of the biggest planting months and almost everything except a few very tender, sun-loving crops, such as okra, or cold weather plants such as spinach may be planted this month. Some of these are: Cucumbers, squash, pumpkin, lima beans, field peas, muskmelons, pole beans, vegetable pears, and sweet corn. A few tomato, pepper and eggplants may be transplanted for early production. Of course, you may have to cover these a few times because of cold weather but the early fruit will repay you for this work.

Insect Control

With the coming of planting time, comes insects of every description —so get ready to battle them. Some of the insecticides you will need are 5 per cent DDT, rotenone, 5 per cent chlordane — root maggot, 20 per cent sabadilla dust for harlequin bug, 50 per cent cryolite. You may ask why so many different kinds of insecticides. DDT cannot be applied to cucumbers, squash or melons and should not be applied to foliage or fruit that are to be eaten within ten days before harvesting time. Sabadilla dust is the best control measure for harlequin, southern green stink bug and squash bug. All of these insecticides should be used as directed by manufacturer. Read these on container. The Louisiana Home Garden Planting Guide can be obtained by calling 3-2251. This bulletin gives information of soil preparation, fertilization, and varieties of each vegetable recommended for Louisiana gardeners.

Shopping Guides

All of us will be shopping for that Easter frock. Here are some guides to help you in making a wise selection: Before you shop, know your size. Then don't accept something "near that size." Don't be persuaded, for example, to wear a half size or a junior size, if you require a full 16 or vice versa. Learn to judge good fit—it is essential to smartness, comfort, and durability. In the dress that fits there is no strain on the seams and it will hold its like-new appearance longer.

Before you shop, know the color that best fits into your wardrobe plan. Then search until you find it. If your selection is the right color, it will combine with more things in your wardrobe, increase its usefulness, and be smart longer.

Be honest with yourself and recognize the purpose and the occasion for which you are planning your purchase. A sturdy business dress requires different characteristics than does a soft, afternoon dress.

Recognize the limitations of your budget. Don't expect $25 quality in a $10 dress. Learn to recognize good design. Learn also to distinguish, in a particular price range, between the simply but smartly designed dress of good workmanship and the one where quality of designing, material, and workmanship have been sacrificed for showy trimming. Even the less expensive cottons and rayons of today can be depended upon to do the job they promise. The new finishes for crease resistance, washability, soil resistance, etc. have given a stability to fabrics unknown a few years ago.

Examine workmanship. Notice the depth of the seams, the evenness of the hem, the smooth fit of the shoulder, the set of the collar. These are quality tags. In higher-priced dresses, collars are tacked in, buttonholes handbound, cuffs tacked up, buttons firmly attached. These are labor costs, and at today's prices are found usually only in higher-priced dresses. In this era of "do it yourself," if the budget is limited you can go over the inexpensive dress and add the hand-finishing that means longer life, more comfort in wear, and add to your sense of well-being.

Be a considerate shopper—considerate of costs which must be passed on to you and other consumers. These include the privilege of returning merchandise, which is increased when you request pick-up service, unnecessary delivery of small packages, and the carying charge of accounts which are unpaid over an extended time.

Important Date

Just to remind you March 23rd is the day for reed work—be on hand at 9:00 a.m.

All clothing leaders and anyone interested in the clothing contest which is being sponsored by the State Home Demonstration Council plan to be at the training meeting March 27th at 9:30 a.m. Miss Brumby will be in charge of the instructions.

Card Benefit Planned By Book Club

The Welcome Branch Book Club plans a benefit dessert card party for Wednesday afternoon, March 21, at the YWCA buiding. The event is being featured by the club for the yearly donation to their permanent project, the G. B. Cooley Sanitorium library, and will begin at 1 p.m.

Welcome Branch Book club, which contributes considerable time and effort to community service, founded the library twenty years ago in behalf of the patients at the sanitorium. Each year, subscriptions to the major current magazines are supplied, as well as several books. Book carts are also provided in order that patients confined to their rooms may also be served. The club maintains a permanent library commission board of five directors which functions apart from other club activities.

This year's chairman of the Library Commission board, Mrs. Zell Smith, assisted by committee members Mrs. B. R. Oliphint, Mrs. O. O. Cummings, Mrs. James Horton and Mrs. E. Everett Lawson, are planning Wednesday's event in order that the general public may also share in this worthwhile project. An enjoyable afternoon is anticipated for those planning to be in attendance. Door prizes, in charge of Mrs. E. A. Porter, will be given.

The chairmen of other committees are Mrs. Ben R. Oliphint, tickets; Mrs. Henson Coon, flower arrangements; Mrs. O. O. Cummings, refreshments; Mrs. A. J. Speer, general arrangements; and Mrs. E. Everett Lawson, publicity.

The public is cordially invited to participate in this event. For reservations, contact Mrs. Zell Smith, chairman, by phoning 2-0441.

It's correct to place butter pats on bread-and-butter plates before guests sit down. A roll may also be placed on the plate.

News From The Public Library

Among this week's additions to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library are a number of fascinating new books. First of all lets take a look at the fiction titles. Probably the most important one is "The Last Hurrah" by Edwin O'Connor. It is the story of an Irish politician who controlled the city hall in a large Eastern city. It is written with humor and charm and will be very popular, especially with men. Garland Roark's latest story is called "The Outlawed Banner." It adds a new chapter to the story of the Confederate Navy and around a and the action centers around the Confederate Navy and around a cast of fascinating people. It is not another "Gone With The Wind" but it will appeal to many of those who loved the former book.

"The Island Players" by Ilka Chase has a Caribbean Island for its setting. It is a witty comedy of marriage, and theatrical manners. It is for the sophisticated reader and will appeal to a wide circle of readers. Another book with a modern setting is "Aspects of Love" by David Garnett, which has its locale in France and Italy. It will appeal to the same type of reader as the Chase book.

The non-fiction books cover a wide variety of subjects. "Long Day's Journey Into Night" by Eugene O'Neill is his last play and it is also autobiographical in nature. It is a sad play but a moving one and students of the theatre will want to read it. "How to Write a Story and Sell It" by Adela Rogers St. John is a down-to-earth enthusiastic discussion by a successful author of more than two hundred short stories. This is a wonderful book for those who are eager to begin a writing career.

A very different and unusual book is "The Search for Bridey Murphy" by Morey Bernstein. This is the true story of an experiment in hypnosis, how it came about and its amazing results. It is the story of how a modern young woman went back to another age and identity through the power of hypnosis. Everyone interested in the field of extra-sensory perception will want to read this book. "Your Rewarding Years" by Mrs. Clarence H. Hamilton is a book which tells midlle aged and older people how to make the most of the years of retirement. There have been many books written which tell children how to get along with their elderly parents, but this is the first one which tells retired people how to help themselves.

"Retreat From Learning" by Joan Dunn is a shocking indictment of our public school system. There is food for thought here for parents as well as teachers and administrators. While the situation she describes is far away from our locality, read it and ask yourself if you recognize any similarities.

Recently there has been a great interest in old automobiles. The latest book on this subject is "The Veteran Motor Car" by David Scott-Moncreif. This is a fascinating account of automobiles before 1905 and of the men who made them and drove them. It is profusely illustrated and contains a great leal of splendid information.

Books concerned with any phase of our health are always popular. Two new ones are available this week. "Arthritis and Common Sense" by Dan Dale Alexander is a startling revelation on arthritis and what you can do about it right in your own home. Another book concerned with our health is "Our Daily Poison" by Leonard Wickenden. It discusses the effects of chemicals on modern man. It is a frightening book and one which makes the reader stop and think.

"Right Dress" by Bert Bacharach is written for men and is a very valuable little book to the man who wants to be well-dressed. A most interesting new book is called "The Kitchen Garden Book" It is concerned with the growing of vegetables and with recipes for cooking them. It is one that will make every reader want to go out and plant a garden.

These and many other new books are waiting for you at the Ouachita Parish Public Library. Take advantage of its wonderful resources by registering as soon as possible to borrow books.

Girl Scout News

If you weren't present at the Girl Scout birthday program, last Sunday we missed you. It is always in spring to see a good representation of our members and their parents. You'll want to know that the various jars, boxes, and envelopes presented on stage contained $76.87 for the Juliette Low Friendship Fund. We know that several troops which were not represented have been collecting pennies and will soon turn them in to the office to swell the total. Marie Nelson presided graciously on the program, Lucy Huckabee arranged the flowers, and Betty Hines helped behind scenes.

Did you see the Girl Scouts on television? Nancy Breard, of Senior Troop 14, Diane McIntosh, of Troop 26, Intermediate Scout, and Becky Middleton of Brownie Troop 24 were the poised participants Monday. The typical Brownies who took part in Wednesday's program were Milan Gannaway of Troop 1, Linda Atkinson, of Troop 40, and Susy Cammack, of Troop 41. All are fourth-graders, which mean that they fly up in May. That was a luscious looking birthday cake that Mammy and Mildred Swift baked.

Those who attended the chartering meeting of the Silver Waters Council last Monday had the privilege of hearing Allyce Nelson, our regional director, speak on "Belong, Believe, Build." All found her a charming person and felt well repaid for coming out on such a rainy night. The Ouachita Parish Girl Scout organization is no more, for now we come under the large Silver Waters Council. Leaders and girls won't find much, if any difference, except that by setting up nighborboods we expect to give better service to the troops. Annis will be here to serve you the same as ever. Now our Girl Scout family includes eleven parishes and we are going to have some of the benefits and fun of a big family.

The girls from Troop 26 who did the flag ceremony Sunday afternoon, Charlotte Ford, Teddy Dixon, Brenda Cobb, Harriet Murray and Veronica Wilds, of Troop 36 did the opening ceremony Monday night. Dee Barksdale and Nancy Breard of Senior Troop 14 helped with hospitality for the meeting.

It was inspiring to have representatives of adjoining parishes at the meeting. All of us are looking forward to working with them. Cookie sale ended yesterday. Friday evening at 7:30 at Georgia Tucker School at the annual camp rally the pins and ribbons for cookie winners will be awarded to the best cookie sellers. See you there.

Mrs. W. H. Jones Entertains Woman's Club

The Baskin Woman's club held its regular monthly meeting March 3, in the home of Mrs. W. H. Jones with Mrs. Wiggers and Mrs. Eppinette as co-hostesses.

The meeting was called to order promptly at 7:30 by the group giving the pledge to the flag. Mrs. Goforth gave the devotional. She chose as her theme, "Making Your Life Count."

The club, having just passed its fifth birthday, February 27, Miss Kathlyn Goforth, the first president of the club, gave its history.

At this time, Mrs. Frellsen, speaker for the evening, rendered an account of the life of Albert Schweitzer who was a French Protestant clergyman, medical missionary, philosopher, organist, and writer on music. The life history as related was thoroughly enjoyed by every one present.

The club adjourned by those present repeating the club collect.

Delicious refreshments were then served to: Mrs. W. D. Morriss, an honored guest, Miss Hattie Brothers, Mrs. J. P. Frellsen, Mrs. Lou Jarrette, Mrs. Estelle Pepper, Mrs. Roger Miller, Mrs. Noah Miller, Mrs. Pauline Wiggington, Mrs. Marriana Reagan, Mrs. Lola Maude Eppinette, Mrs. Mollie Wiggers, Mrs. Janie Goforth, Mrs. A. M. Brand, Mrs. Lonez Shipman, Mrs. M. E. LeFevre, Mss Kathlyn Goforth, and Mrs. W. H. Jones.

Dogwood Festival Is Planned At Plain Dealing

PLAIN DEALING — Ten artististically designed and decorated floats and several bands and ROTC units will participate in the big parade which will follow the queen's coronations ceremonies of the Plain Dealing Dogwood Drive Saturday, March 27, according to J. T. Snyder, president of the Dogwood Association. The ceremonies will begin at 1:30 p.m. preceded by a tea for many distinguished guests at the Drive headquarters at the Roller Rink on South Highway 3.

State Representative Ford E. Stinson of Benton, will crown the new queen, and Al Bolton, announcer for TV Station KSLA of Shreveport, will be the master of ceremonies.

Two of the ten floats in the parade will be for the new queen and her court. The organizations entering floats this year are the Plain Dealing Home Demonstration Club, Lions Club, Phi Delta Club, the Kadelphians, American Legion and Auxiliary, Plain Dealing Athletic Association, FFA, Plain Dealing Chapter, and the First State Bank of Plain Dealing, according to Curtis Bellar, Jr., chairman of the float committee. The theme for the floats is "Tales of All Ages."

Mr. John Dole, Jr., and Mr. A. M. Wyche, Jr. are co-chairmen of the Dogwood Festival program committee, Mrs. John Doles, Sr. is chairman of the coronation ceremonies, and Clyde Lusk will direct the parade.

Invitations have been sent to officials and civic groups in many nearby towns and cities to attend and to send maids, bands and marching groups to participate in the ceremonies, according to Miss Athlene Cornish, secretary. Riding clubs have also been invited to take part in the parade. The visiting maids, including Miss Holiday is Dixie and Miss Louisiana, will compose the queen's court and will ride in the parade on the floats or in decorated convertibles.

The Drive will be open daily to tourists beginning Saturday, March 17, and car stickers and folders describing the route can be obtained at the Drive headquarters or along the route. The fee charged for the stickers is used for the upkeep and expense of the Drive. The sticker is good for the entire dogwood season.

M. R. Bolinger, road committee chairman, announced that three railroad cars of gravel for improving the roads on the drive had arrived and are being distributed. Arrangements have been made to sprinkle the roads to allay the dust.

The Drive is located northwest of Plain Dealing and markers will instruct tourists the route to follow, which is one-way most of the distance on the private roads. The Drive is about 13 miles long and several picnic grounds with tables and barbecue pits are located at the scenic points. The route is rugged and beautiful and contains many dogwoods and other blossoming trees and shrubs. The redbuds are in bloom now.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Do you have money problems at your house? Do they sometimes seem to threaten your marriage? Counselors say the answer to both questions is too often yes, in too many homes.

Here is a series of 10 loaded questions, drawn up by Dorcas Campbell, assistant vice president of New York's East River Savings Bank, designed to help you throw some light on your own relationship to a dollar bill. Maybe you'd better test yourself privately, lest some financial slips show. Each is to be answered yes or no.

1. When the monthly bills come in, are you usually shocked to see how much you owe?

2. When a major purchase looms—a new car, refrigerator or winter coat—have you anticipated the outlay and saved in advance?

3. Do you carry loose checks in purse or wallet—and frequently forget to fill in the stubs, thus losing track of the money?

4. Does an occasion like Christmas or an income tax deadline usually leave you flat broke for a month or more?

5. Does your spouse make too-frequent jokes about your carefree attitude with charge accounts and checking accounts?

6. Have you ever made a budget and stuck to it for a year without acute agony?

7. Does a dunning letter from a creditor worry you until the matter has been adjusted?

8. Do you really know how much it costs to run your house—and how much of your money goes for food? Do you know how much it costs to run your automobile?

9. Are you good enough with mental math to confirm the addition on a restaurant check or figure a 15 per cent tip without acting as if you were filling out your tax return?

10. Do you ever read the financial section of the newspaper?

ANSWERS:

As we said, these are loaded questions. Most of us, if we can bear to face the truth, will explain the score by saying that we've never been good at figures anyway.

Figure your score on the basis of 10 points for each correct answer. The paragon of financial virtue would come up with six "yes" answers and four "noes"—"no" to questions 1, 3, 4 and 5; yes to questions 2, 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10.

Thrifty, far-sighted souls (and liars) should be able to score 100 per cent. Even if you only pick up a 40, there's some hope for your solvent future, but you need to work on the subject. And if you can't figure out the scoring, says Miss Campbell, that's further evidence that it's time for a change of attitude.

Dr. Kittrell Named Head Of Staff In Jena

JENA, March 17 (Special)—Dr. J. M. Kittrell, chief of surgeons at the Jena hospital for the past several years, has been elected to the additional responsibility of chief of staff, it was announced this week by Bill Brasher, manager.

The honor comes on the heels of his recent election and installation as a vice president of the Rapides parish medical society.

Dr. Kittrell has been a member of the hospital's staff since it was opened in 1948 and has practiced as a physician and surgeon in this area some 25 years. He came here from Birmingham, Ala., where he was assistant surgeon at the Tennessee Iron and Coal Industrial hospital and is known among his fellow members of the profession as the "father of modern surgery" in LaSalle parish.

Believed to be the oldest practicing doctor, from point of service, in LaSalle parish, the operations he has performed over the past quarter of a century "number in the several thousands," according to Mr. Brasher.

It also was pointed out that "the number of births he has attended probably could not be counted but it is a fact that he is today assisting at the births of babies born to women whom he, himself, delivered."

FIGHTS

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A French quarter bar frequented by seamen posted this sign in its window proclaiming as an added attraction:

"We don't have a television set, but we guarantee a fight every night."

JUNIOR EDITORS

SAINT PATRICK

The son of a landlord in England, he was kidnapped by wild Irish sea raiders about 400 years after the birth of Christ and for more than six years herded swine for them in Ireland.

At last he managed to escape to France where he became a monk, and was given the name Patrick. A dream told him that the Irish were calling on him to return as a missionary, and he spent 14 years preparing for this.

Patrick returned to Ireland in 432 with the Pope's blessing and the title of bishop. He had to gain the good will of the tribal kings, and so well did he succeed that it has been said there were "no Christians in Ireland when he began, no pagans when he died."

He chose the humble little shamrock, which grew everywhere, as the symbol of his faith, and it is said drove all the snakes into the sea. He died at last on a March 17 and this became his feast day.

You can color this picture (make the shamrock green) paste it on cardboard, and cut it out. Now, fold it on the dotted lines and it will stand up.

JUNIOR EDITORS pays $10 for any usable ideas. Write your suggestion to "Junior Editors" in care of this newspaper; it cannot be acknowledged or returned. In case of duplication, the first will be accepted.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Do you have money problems at your house? Do they sometimes seem to threaten your marriage? Counselors say the answer to both questions is too often yes, in too many homes.

Here is a series of 10 loaded questions, drawn up by Dorcas Campbell, assistant vice president of New York's East River Savings Bank, designed to help you throw some light on your own relationship to a dollar bill. Maybe you'd better test yourself privately, lest some financial slips show. Each is to be answered yes or no.

1. When the monthly bills come in, are you usually shocked to see how much you owe?

2. When a major purchase looms—a new car, refrigerator or winter coat—have you anticipated the outlay and saved in advance?

3. Do you carry loose checks in purse or wallet—and frequently forget to fill in the stubs, thus losing track of the money?

4. Does an occasion like Christmas or an income tax deadline usually leave you flat broke for a month or more?

5. Does your spouse make too-frequent jokes about your carefree attitude with charge accounts and checking accounts?

6. Have you ever made a budget and stuck to it for a year without acute agony?

7. Does a dunning letter from a creditor worry you until the matter has been adjusted?

8. Do you really know how much it costs to run your house—and how much of your money goes for food? Do you know how much it costs to run your automobile?

9. Are you good enough with mental math to confirm the addition on a restaurant check or figure a 15 per cent tip without acting as if you were filling out your tax return?

10. Do you ever read the financial section of the newspaper?

ANSWERS:

As we said, these are loaded questions. Most of us, if we can bear to face the truth, will explain the score by saying that we've never been good at figures anyway.

Figure your score on the basis of 10 points for each correct answer. The paragon of financial virtue would come up with six "yes" answers and four "noes"—"no" to questions 1, 3, 4 and 5; yes to questions 2, 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10.

Thrifty, far-sighted souls (and liars) should be able to score 100 per cent. Even if you only pick up a 40, there's some hope for your solvent future, but you need to work on the subject. And if you can't figure out the scoring, says Miss Campbell, that's further evidence that it's time for a change of attitude.

JENA, March 17 (Special)—Dr. J. M. Kittrell, chief of surgeons at the Jena hospital for the past several years, has been elected to the additional responsibility of chief of staff, it was announced this week by Bill Brasher, manager.

The honor comes on the heels of his recent election and installation as a vice president of the Rapides parish medical society.

Dr. Kittrell has been a member of the hospital's staff since it was opened in 1948 and has practiced as a physician and surgeon in this area some 25 years. He came here from Birmingham, Ala., where he was assistant surgeon at the Tennessee Iron and Coal Industrial hospital and is known among his fellow members of the profession as the "father of modern surgery" in LaSalle parish.

Believed to be the oldest practicing doctor, from point of service, in LaSalle parish, the operations he has performed over the past quarter of a century "number in the several thousands," according to Mr. Brasher.

It also was pointed out that "the number of births he has attended probably could not be counted but it is a fact that he is today assisting at the births of babies born to women whom he, himself, delivered."

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A French quarter bar frequented by seamen posted this sign in its window proclaiming as an added attraction:

JUNIOR EDITORS

SAINT PATRICK

The son of a landlord in England, he was kidnapped by wild Irish sea raiders about 400 years after the birth of Christ and for more than six years herded swine for them in Ireland.

At last he managed to escape to France where he became a monk, and was given the name Patrick. A dream told him that the Irish were calling on him to return as a missionary, and he spent 14 years preparing for this.

Patrick returned to Ireland in 432 with the Pope's blessing and the title of bishop. He had to gain the good will of the tribal kings, and so well did he succeed that it has been said there were "no Christians in Ireland when he began, no pagans when he died."

He chose the humble little shamrock, which grew everywhere, as the symbol of his faith, and it is said drove all the snakes into the sea. He died at last on a March 17 and this became his feast day.

You can color this picture (make the shamrock green) paste it on cardboard, and cut it out. Now, fold it on the dotted lines and it will stand up.

JUNIOR EDITORS pays $10 for any usable ideas. Write your suggestion to "Junior Editors" in care of this newspaper; it cannot be acknowledged or returned. In case of duplication, the first will be accepted.

General Public Will Be Welcome At Ouachita River Meeting March 26

Reservations for the banquet meeting of the Ouachita River Improvement Conference to be held in the Virginia Hotel on March 26 are now being accepted, James Williams, secretary manager of the Monroe-West Monroe Chamber of Commerce, said yesterday. Reservations may be made by contacting Williams at the Chamber's offices.

The conference will be open to the public and it was pointed out that anyone who is interested is urged to attend.

Definite plans were made Friday by the Chamber's transportation committee for the afternoon and night meeting, at which work already done toward increasing river transportation on the Ouachita will be reviewed and further plans will be made for encouraging a nine foot channel in the river.

The Monroe-West Monroe Chamber of Commerce and the Monroe Area Industrial Corp. will jointly host the board of directors of the Ouachita River Valley Association and members of the U. S. Corps of Engineers at the conference. Also, many others from out of town are expected to attend.

Principal speaker on the conference's banquet program will be Maj. Gen. John R. Hardin, regional director of the U. S. Corps of Engineers.

Other noted speakers tentatively planned are U S. Senator Russell B. Long and Fifth District Representative Otto Passman.

Governor-elect Earl K. Long will be invited, Williams said, to attend or to send a representative.

The afternoon session, which begins at 2 p.m., will feature speakers who will present a history of the Ouachita river navigation, and a review of what has been in Congress so far to obtain a nine foot channel; a review of area industry's interests in a nine foot channel; and a picture of the outlook with suggestions for future action to increase the river navigation.

J. E. Wheeler, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce river and water committee, pointed out that the river is of vital interest to area industry not only because of the transportation phase but also because of the availability of water for industry.

Wheeler heads the Commercial Solvents plants at Sterlington, which has been a regular user of the river for transportation and he is a staunch supporter of a movement to obtain a nine foot channel.

It was also pointed out that although some industries might not now be in a position to use the river for shipping or receiving products, in the future they possibly will want to utilize water transportation on the river to a great extent.

President Sam A. Orchard of the Monroe Lions club announces that the next meeting in Hotel Frances, Tuesday noon, the Lions will have as guest speaker Wade O. Martin, Jr. He will be introduced by former Sheriff Milton Coverdale, a close friend of the speaker.

Martin, backed by twelve years of constructive service as Secretary of State, to which post he was recently again chosen at the polls, has for years played a highly essential role in the affairs of the State of Louisiana.

The secretary is one of the busiest officials at the capitol. Here are a partial list of his duties: He is keeper of the great seal; recorder of corporation charters; chief election officer; voting machine custodian; state insurance commissioner; printer of state documents; member of the state advisory board; keeper of state records and even still more important duties that devolve upon his shoulders

Thousands testify that Wade Martin Jr's service as secretary of state has been keynoted by the unchanging policy of placing the public's interest at the head of the list.

He will have an important message to deliver when he speaks here on Tuesday noon, and a number of special guests are being invited to attend.

Hollywood

Errol Flynn Family

HOLLYWOOD, March 17—When I rang the front-door bell of a bungalow at the Garden of Allah, a voice sang out, "Come in" I entered to find the lady of the house pulling a lot of clothes out of a closet.

"I'll be with you in just a minute," she said over her shoulder. "I've got to get rid of some of these things, or he'll keep them until Kingdom Come!"

The scene was typically domestic, but it took me by surprise. Because the lady of the house was Patrice Wymore — and the clothes she was piling up with neatness and dispatch belonged to her husband, Errol Flynn! You just don't expect a glamorous doll like this one to be working around the house!

"Errol hates to part with his clothes," she said. "Some of this junk dates back to 1938. I practically had to force him to try them all on and prove that they were worn out and old-fashioned, before he'd let me give a thing away . . . But believe me, I'm making a clean sweep now!"

"Making a clean sweep now" sums up the new design for living in the Flynn family, for they are back in Hollywood from a long absence abroad, starting his career all over again, from scratch.

Not that the flamboyant star has been out of work or in retirement. But his bankroll shrank with alarming rapidity as a result of all his financial entanglements. These went hand-in-glove with his romantic entanglements which led to marriage, divorce and alimony, down the years. At the last tabulation, Flynn told me he will pay off nearly a million dollars in overdue taxes and piled up debts to his ex-wives.

This is a staggering fortune which would break the spirit of any man — any man but Flynn. After talking with his wife, it is my opinion that without her he'd never have come back from abroad to face the music — never would have accepted the gruelling schedule of work which lies before him now, with such cheerful aplomb.

"Before I met Errol," Pat said, "I was just as shocked by all the scandalous stories people told about him, as everybody else. We worked together on a picture and until I got to know him, I was really scared. But after a while, I decided that he is really very much misunderstood. I know that sounds funny — it's the sort of thing they say about juvenile delinquents. But it's true. Errol is very easy going. He says what he thinks. And too often such remarks are misunderstood or misquoted.

"He played romantic, swashbuckling parts and people judged him by those reckless characters and he let them. He's the kind of man who doesn't pay any attention to gossip. He ignores it or laughs it off. So the legend about my husband grew and he didn't do a thing to stop it. He went with the tide.

"He sees things differently now. The first thing he decided and insisted upon, was to get away from costume pictures. He realizes that the fancy tights and white steeds belong in mothballs now. He's mature, he's a parent and he has a lot of responsibilities. We want to live the kind of normal life that other people live, for ourselves and the children. We're both young and strong enough to work and pay off our debts, no matter how long it takes, and we aim to do it."

Pat's almond-shaped eyes glowed with maternal pride, talking about the children. Three are Flynn's by a former marriage, and the youngest, a little girl of two, is theirs. "We want a family of five or six," Pat said. "We both love children."

"What about your acting career" I asked.

Pat smiled, "In Europe I learned that being a good wife and mother comes first. I've been keeping house, cooking and all the rest of it — because Errol and I like it that way. I want to go back to acting because we'll need the money — and because I believe a woman should do what she's equipped to do, whether she's married or not, providing it doesn't interfere with her family. Of course if my husband objected — I wouldn't do it, but he agrees with me."

"I'll take time out to have more children. We've got our entire life ahead of us. There's be plenty of time for everything."

Although Miss Wymore credits American heritage must have a lot to do with it. She comes from Kansas — her husband calls her "Cowpoke" — and it's almost axiomatic that the women from those wide open spaces find time for everything, without going into a tailspin over it.

Unless I miss my guess, Patrice Wymore won't go into a tailspin, and neither will her husband. Some of her easy-does-it philosophy has rubbed off on him. Errol Flynn has come of age at last!

'Nervous' Customer Forgets Golden Rule

DENVER (AP) — A nervous customer apparently forgot about the golden rule yesterday at, of all places, the Golden Rule Dry Goods Store.

Detectives said he left the store without paying $18.54 due on a clothing purchase but he didn't forget to empty the cash register of $75.

Salvation Army's Youth Holding Its State Meet Here

Fully one hundred and fifty young people of the Salvation army from all over the state, assembled Saturday morning in the First Methodist church, West Monroe, for a spring session which comprised planning for work to follow.

Directing the affair was Sr. Major Paul S. Thronburg, New Orleans, divisional commander, who was accompanied by his wife. Those attending expressed regrets that Capt. Louis Mockabee, in charge of Monroe's Salvation Army was unable to attend, being now in a hospital in New Orleans.

Major Thronburg stated that he learned in a visit to the captain yesterday that he will be returned to his home here in another week. However it will be some time before he will be able to resume duties.

Explorers' Club Will Meet Here; England Shown

The Monroe Explorers' Club will meet for its month's night session in the Cameo Room, Hotel Virginia, Tuesday, March 20 at 8 p.m.

At that time, "Elizabeth's England" will be stown in down-to-the-minute pictures by Bill Hadley, expert photographer, author, and lecturer.

By Josephine Lowman

Quell All Foolish Fears Of Menopause, Live Normally

A letter says, "Will you please write a diet for the average, normal, middle-aged woman? I understand that during change of life one has trouble with congestion, gas fluid and bloat. What diet is good for this?

"I also understand that it is not good to get oneself excited such as running around to clubs, being chairman of committees and so forth. I understand that rest periods in the afternoon are good and that one should rest a bit before preparing dinner in the evening after working in an office.

"Also, arthritis seems to come during change of life. Everyone seems to have a pain in the shoulder or neck, knee or back. If we all knew we were going through the same thing it would be easier just to stand it as cheerfully as possible. Does all this subside after menopause is over? There are all sorts of pills on the market. What about these?"

Distressing Attitude

I print this letter because it reflects an attitude which causes women much distress. If women think that they are going to have all those things happen at menopause no wonder they dread it! The dread and fear they must have of it are apt to give them many of the symptoms which they describe.

I myself never have known any woman who had gas and fluid and bloat and arthritis because of menopause. Remember that menopause comes at middle age when such weaknesss would show up regardless of change of life. If such troubles or tendencies to such troubles have existed before, they might give a little more trouble during the transition period, which does place some strain on the body.

Do not think of this period of life as an illness when all sorts of awful things will happen to you? Thousands upon thousands of women never miss a day's work during the whole time.

You may find yourself with a little less pep, temporarily, with a few symptoms such as emotional instability or restless sleep but these usually can be controlled with hormone treatment.

Don't make the mistake of giving up your activities and interests but do give yourself the treat of a little better care and do the things you should do anyway, such as taking rest periods and eating and exercising and sleeping properly.

Any medication should be prescribed by your doctor and you should see him more often than usual, at least twice a year.

REV. JAMES THORN

Rev. James Thorn Honored; Given Church Donation

Rev. James Thorn, pastor of Hill Ridge Baptist church, in Franklin parish, was pleasantly surprised when his congregation presented him with a handsome set of living room furniture. The donation was in recognition of the twenty-sixth anniversary of his ordination.

Incidentally, Reverend Thorn has been named to conduct a revival series in a French settlement Baptist church near Baton Rouge, March 25 to March 30. This announcement is made today by the pastor there who is Rev. Sidney McMorris.

Unity Chest Is Suppliment Of Wide Interest

Lowell Fillmore, president of the School and son of Charles and Myrtle Fillmore, late founders of the movement, has culled the most popular writings from such Unity publications as the Daily Word, Good Business, Unity, Weekly Unity, Wee Wisdom, and You.

Through his selections, Mr. Fillmore graphically demonstrates the Unity concept that the teaching of Christ is a practical, seven-days-a-week way of life. Also presented is the story of Unity, its founding its growth and its scope today.

Started formally in 1892 by the Fillmores, following their recovery from apparently fatal tubercular conditions, through constant prayer and meditation, the movement has grown from an idea into a world wide organization providing direct spiritual help through devotional services and class instruction.

Today, 15 million people are reached through Unity centers, books, pamphlets and radio programs. The five Unity magazines have 1½ million subscribers annually and an additional 650,000 Unity books and booklets are purchased each year through the Unity organization.

Today's YOUR GUIDING STAR Message:

0. I Kings 12:7. If you will be a servant to the people today, and speak good words to them, then they will be your servants forever.
1. Prov. 17:10. A rebuke goes deeper into a man of understanding than a hundred blows into a fool.
2. I Sam. 24:13. Out of the wicked comes forth wickedness; but my hand shall not be against you.
3. II Sam. 18:4. Whatever seems best I will do.
4. I Kings 8:33. When people are defeated because they have sinned against thee, if they turn again to thee, and acknowledge thy name; then hear and forgive the people.

QUESTION: Is it possible, practically speaking, for Christians to live by the high standards set by Christ? J. F. W.

ANSWER: One thing is sure, God never asks us to do anything that He will not give us the strength to perform. So often our trouble is that we try to live like Christians in our own wisdom and strength. This is no more possible than it is for you to lift yourself up by your boot straps. But, when we become Christians Christ comes into our hearts and gives us something we can never get in any other way. We fail when we forget to ask Him to help us, but, we can live on the high standard He has given us because He lives in us. Suppose you tried to walk a dark and lonely road at night. You would much prefer to have a friend, particularly one who knows the road, to go along and lead you by the hand. You have exactly that privilege as a Christian, and the one who walks with you is the Lord of glory Himself. Every morning, commit the day to Him: ask His help and His guidance. Put yourself in the way of His teaching by prayerfully reading your Bible before you start the day. Turn everything over to Him. If you will do this, you will find life completely and gloriously changed.

Trust Fund To Keep Up Grave Of St. Patrick

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—UP—A self-satisfied Illinois housewife quietly observed St. Patrick's Day Saturday, content that her trust fund is keeping the saint's northern Ireland grave neat and clean.

She found the paths to the grave were muddy, the grave itself was "untidy and covered with weeds," and there was no grave marker, she said.

So, returning to her home in Springfield, Ill., she started a $500 trust fund to maintain the grave, "keep the weeds cut and fix the paths so you don't have to walk in the mud."

"St. Patrick is probably laughing his head off at me," she said, "but I got his grave fixed up. I sure do feel better."

Inspection Of Tech ROTC Is Set Next Month

RUSTON, March 17 (Special) — Federal inspection of the Air Force ROTC unit at Louisiana Tech will get under way with a squadron inspection at 12:30 p.m., Tuesday, April 24, Maj. Doak Campbell, commandant of cadets, has announced.

Following the squadron inspection, at approximately 1 p.m., there will be a wing review at Tech stadium, to which the general public is invited.

It had formerly been announced that Col. Rex W. Beach would supervise the inspection, but a change in plans will bring Col. James F. Risher from AFROTC headquarters in Montgomery, Ala. to Tech as head of the inspection team which includes Lt. Col. William G. Dolan, and Maj Henry G. Gendreizig.

The inspection team's activities, April 24-25, will include a briefing of the cadet staff, an observation of classroom procedures, an inspection of cadets in rank, and a wing review.

REV. JAMES THORN

Rev. James Thorn Honored; Given Church Donation

Rev. James Thorn, pastor of Hill Ridge Baptist church, in Franklin parish, was pleasantly surprised when his congregation presented him with a handsome set of living room furniture. The donation was in recognition of the twenty-sixth anniversary of his ordination.

Incidentally, Reverend Thorn has been named to conduct a revival series in a French settlement Baptist church near Baton Rouge, March 25 to March 30. This announcement is made today by the pastor there who is Rev. Sidney McMorris.

Unity Chest Is Suppliment Of Wide Interest

Outstanding writings of the Unity School of Christianity, 65-year-old religious movement based on a practical approach to religion, are presented for the first time in one volume in "The Unity Treasure Chest," (Hawthorn), published Mar. 16th.

Lowell Fillmore, president of the School and son of Charles and Myrtle Fillmore, late founders of the movement, has culled the most popular writings from such Unity publications as the Daily Word, Good Business, Unity, Weekly Unity, Wee Wisdom, and You.

Through his selections, Mr. Fillmore graphically demonstrates the Unity concept that the teaching of Christ is a practical, seven-days-a-week way of life. Also presented is the story of Unity, its founding its growth and its scope today.

Started formally in 1892 by the Fillmores, following their recovery from apparently fatal tubercular conditions, through constant prayer and meditation, the movement has grown from an idea into a world wide organization providing direct spiritual help through devotional services and class instruction.

Today, 15 million people are reached through Unity centers, books, pamphlets and radio programs. The five Unity magazines have 1½ million subscribers annually and an additional 650,000 Unity books and booklets are purchased each year through the Unity organization.

Today's YOUR GUIDING STAR Message:

0. I Kings 12:7. If you will be a servant to the people today, and speak good words to them, then they will be your servants forever.

1. Prov. 17:10. A rebuke goes deeper into a man of understanding than a hundred blows into a fool.

2. I Sam. 24:13. Out of the wicked comes forth wickedness; but my hand shall not be against you.

3. II Sam. 18:4. Whatever seems best I will do.

4. I Kings 8:33. When people are defeated because they have sinned against thee, if they turn again to thee, and acknowledge thy name; then hear and forgive the people.

Lambdin, secretary of the Southern Baptist Training Union department; Miss LaVerne Ashby, director of primary work, Baptist Sunday School Board; Miss Nora Padgett, director of beginner work, Southern Baptist Training Union department; and Mrs. J. E. Lambdin, editor of junior and intermediate Training Union materials, Nashville.

DR. K. OWEN WHITE

The convention will open at 9:30 a.m. Other sessions will begin at 2:00 and 6:25 p.m.

QUESTION: Is it possible, practically speaking, for Christians to live by the high standards set by Christ? J. F. W.

ANSWER: One thing is sure. God never asks us to do anything that He will not give us the strength to perform. So often our trouble is that we try to live like Christians in our own wisdom and strength. This is no more possible than it is for you to lift yourself up by your boot straps. But, when we become Christians Christ comes into our hearts and gives us something we can never get in any other way. We fail when we forget to ask Him to help us, but, we can live on the high standard He has given us because He lives in us. Suppose you tried to walk a dark and lonely road at night. You would much prefer to have a friend, particularly one who knows the road, to go along and lead you by the hand. You have exactly that privilege as a Christian, and the one who walks with you is the Lord of glory Himself. Every morning, commit the day to Him: ask His help and His guidance. Put yourself in the way of His teaching by prayerfully reading your Bible before you start the day. Turn everything over to Him. If you will do this, you will find life completely and gloriously changed.

Trust Fund To Keep Up Grave Of St. Patrick

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—UP—A self-satisfied Illinois housewife quietly observed St. Patrick's Day Saturday, content that her trust fund is keeping the saint's northern Ireland grave neat and clean.

Mrs. Carl Sorling, whose ancestors sprang from the green sod of Kilkenny, was "heart broken" when she visited St. Pat's grave at Downpatrick in 1953.

She found the paths to the grave were muddy, the grave itself was "untidy and covered with weeds," and there was no grave marker, she said.

So, returning to her home in Springfield, Ill., she started a $500 trust fund to maintain the grave, "keep the weeds cut and fix the paths so you don't have to walk in the mud."

"St. Patrick is probably laughing his head off at me," she said, "but I got his grave fixed up. I sure do feel better."

Inspection Of Tech ROTC Is Set Next Month

RUSTON, March 17 (Special) — Federal inspection of the Air Force ROTC unit at Louisiana Tech will get under way with a squadron inspection at 12:30 p.m., Tuesday, April 24, Maj. Doak Campbell, commandant of cadets, has announced.

Following the squadron inspection, at approximately 1 p.m., there will be a wing review at Tech stadium, to which the general public is invited.

It had formerly been announced that Col. Rex W. Beach would supervise the inspection, but a change in plans will bring Col. James F. Risher, from AFROTC headquarters in Montgomery, Ala. to Tech as head of the inspection team which includes Lt. Col. William G. Dolan, and Maj Henry G. Gendreizig.

The inspection team's activities, April 24-25, will include a briefing of the cadet staff, an observation of classroom procedures, an inspection of cadets in rank, and a wing review.

Crabapple Trees In Full Bloom

It seems to me the crabapples have been prettier this year than ever before. Maybe it's because the young trees are just large enough to show up well. We didn't get the craze for this flowering tree until a few years ago. Some gardeners have full grown ones. Drive up North Fifth street to 1608, the Clyde Brown home. Turn down the street by the side of the house and go down North Sixth. You'll see the crabapples from the front and back view. In the garden of Margaret Downings, 1600 Island Drive, the flora bundas and hoppas are in bloom. In the Whitaker yard (on neutral ground), 102 Auburn, the owners have planted crabapples on two sides. They were all beginning to bloom last Sunday and this is a treat worth driving to see. I can't remember now, but I believe they're the flora bundas, too.

The crabapple is a tree that grows about the size of a red bud, with life span about the same. Mammie Davis grew one of the first in this area. It lived it's life and departed several years ago. They grow in most any kind of soil and will use lots of fertilizer. It's too late to plant them this year, as they're put out bare rooted. Just add these to your list to plant next winter.

In the Ray Rhymes garden, 2307 Myrtle, Monroe, there's the most unusual candy striped flowering peach. This was a seedling given to Sara by Mrs. Weaks.

All of the above are the opinions of the writer and in no way reflect the views or actions of the weather man, whatever he may do between now and Sunday.

The freeze was rather freakish. There's no damage in my garden except new leaves on Japanese magnolias. I put the sprinkler on these the next day and they look like they'll revive. Yet — in some yards the owners tell me the damage was heavy. Dogwoods are opening and some were not smitten. Camellia blooms turned brown but the buds are opening in good shape. Our peach crop will be much shorter due to freeze injury.

Planting

Sprig St. Augustine and Centipede as fast as you can. The spring rains will get it off to a good start. Continue to plant gladiolus. Set dahlias and stake when you plant. Work a little lime around the roots of clematis. Keep compost pile stirred. Fertilize sweet peas with side dressing of nitrate of soda. Dissolve this in water (1 cup to 1 gallon water). Divide and reset cannas now.

Seed you can plant this month are: Sweet Alyssum, Arctotis, gaillardia, zinnia, portulaca, salvia, scabiosa, early cosmos, sunflower, four o'clock, nasturtium, ageratum, balsam, marigold, moonflower, periwinkle, torenia.

Food News

Did you know that sliced bacon at the wholesale market averages about seventeen cents a pound less than last year? With a substantial share of this markdown passed to you the consumer, bacon ranks high as a thrifty meat for any meal. Much of the bacon now on the market comes from the new type of hog — the hog with a higher proportion of lean meat.

The fact that this lean bacon is preferred by most of you homemakers has been proven. When the lean and the ordinary fat bacon are placed side by side in the food stores — the lean bacon priced a dime per pound higher is preferred by most.

Bacon is the trimmed cured and smoked pork belly. The best quality is dry cured. The slab or unsliced bacon keeps better than the sliced. Bacon of high quality if firm and the fat is white and well streaked with lean. The lean is bright pinkish in color. Quality bacon has a good flavor which varies with the type of cure and smoke.

You can store this meat in your refrigerator at 38 degrees for three or four weeks, but you should use it within ten days to get it's best flavor. Cooking bacon is an art that calls for patience, because it should be started in a cold frying pan under a slow flame and turned frequently.

SOUTHERN GARDENER—
By William Lanier Hunt

Daffodil Notes For The Gardner

It is always interesting to note just how many days flowers will last and make a good show in the garden. There is a lot of difference between the daffodil varieties in this respect. Of course, the little early yellow trumpets come in the very coolest part of the season at its beginning. Everybody knows that they are the toughest and best daffodils one can have. This year, they lasted their usual ten days to two weeks. The little "swan's neck" white trumpets always open a little later and run the yellow trumpets a close second in their lasting ability. This little white trumpet with the down turned trumpet is probably the true musk daffodil of old books and gardening literature.

If you have a garden with several exposures, it will pay you to plan daffodils in all parts of it because these wonderful spring bulbs are very sensitive to slight differences of temperature in soil and air. On a south facing slope away from the western cold winds, the early varieties — both old fashioned and recent will bloom as much as a whole week ahead of those planted in sight of them but under trees and exposed to cold winds.

The daffodil, Fortune is a never failing joy to gardeners because of its earliness and ability to stand up to bad weather. It flowers from several days to a week ahead of King Alfred and still lasts as long or longer than this old tried and true kind. Ada Finch, the stunning early white trumpet is another kind which stands up well to the weather. It was able to take the alternating hot blast from the South and nights of freezing in your columnist's garden this year and still looks like the handsome thing it is!

Some daffodils are just not worth the space to grow them. The double Texas, seldom opens in warm southern gardens. The heat comes upon us too fast. For some reason, Golden Goblet does not seem to flower very much in any garden. Nothing as stingy with its flowers as that can have space in my garden.

Some daffodils just naturally look better in the landscape than others. Quirinus continues to be a good one in this respect. Like the perfect Fortune, it holds its face up as soon as it is grown. It is no wonder that it commanded the Award of Merit in Haarlem in 1944. It also got the Forcing Award in 1950. This means that it behaves well when planted in pots and forced into bloom during the winter months in the house or greenhouse. Lady Kesteven is another good landscape variety. You can count on her to make a clear show. By contrast, the beautiful Thalia that everyone loves so much as a cut flower hides its flowers a bit down in the foliage like the coy thing it is. Of course, it is a perfect cut flower.

Spring Time Is Seed Time For Garden Lovers

As a harbinger of spring, the ground hog, robin and first crocus each has its advocates. But to many people there's no more enticing promise of spring than simple garden seed.

Since dreary January, gardeners have been thumbing through their seed catalogues where, as one helplessly addicted reader admits, "all melons are monster, all asters are giant, all petunias double-fringed." The magic of the dreambooks dissolves all memory of past failures. And hope for this year's gardens rises like sap in the trees.

For their 1956 gardens, an estimated 30,000,000 Americans will buy flower seeds and about half as many, vegetable seeds, says the National Geographic Society. Seed sales have never been better. One large mail order company alone puts out as many as 1,500 varieties.

Another company, which sells through racks in stores, offers 1,100. One of its most loyal customers, an elderly lady who trades at a Philadelphia department store, arrives with her chauffeur each spring and buys one packet of every single variety.

Not all buyers are so easily persuaded. Most are especially wary of new vegetables. One catalogue once devoted a whole page in praise of a newly developed vegetable called tampala. A Chinese import, it resembled spinach but withstood heat better and didn't collect sand. Now, a decade later, tampala is relegated to a back-page mention and good old sandy spinach holds down its traditional place in the book.

Even yellow sweet corn had to be given away at first. People wouldn't buy anything that looked like "horse corn." Broccoli also had a hard time catching on. Since 1940, however, its sales have tripled. Such success augurs well for purple cauliflower, an old vegetable now being revived. It turns green when cooked and tastes like broccoli.

Nationwide, the best seller continues to be the radish, followed in order by lettuce, beets and cucumbers. Gardeners' tastes vary enough according to tradition and geography, however, that one company sends its seeds to stores in special assortments. Northern state gets such quick-growers as carrots, beets, lettuce and radishes. The S (South) assortment features white radishes, collards, okra, turnips and mustard greens.

Petunias produce seeds so minute that some of the more expensive hybrid varieties are worth many times over their weight in gold. One ounce, containing more than 275,000 seeds, wholesales at $350.

Garden Club Exhibit Held Despite Storm

By CARRIE McKENZIE

Do you know that Mary Margaret Jardine is in New York City judging at the International Flower Show? It is being held in the John Wannamaker Building, March 11 through the 17th. Mary Margaret is being entertained by Esther Wheelen and at the Waldorf-Astoria by the New York Federation. We are all very proud of her.

Do you know that rain and storms do not stop our exhibitions? The Marion Garden club, in spite of Tuesday's downpour, was here on time with three lovely arrangements and a beautiful display of narcissus.

Mrs. Jimmie Allen placed second and for a container chose a black classical urn. She placed it on a black base. Stripped pine was used to form the most beautiful of all lines, the Horgath curve, with the pine white daffodils were used, making a very dramatic effect.

Do you know that Mr. Truman Quiton, the dirt gardener's best friend, will be available to you March 27th through April 2nd? He knows all the answers for good growing treatment of soil, disease and insect control. He comes to you free of charge, so make a date for him to visit your garden at the Garden Center.

Do you know we are planning a Fifth District Flower Show? You will be hearing from us.

Do you know we are doing an outstanding job of the Center. At this time as Garden Center director, I want to thank all of the clubs, judges, flower shops, newspaper, radio and television stations, our sponsors and Mary Margaret, our very efficient hardworking secretary, for your cooperation in making this a very pleasant worthwhile work.

MUSIC

The Metropolitan Opera's new production of Mozart's "The Magic Flute" is a dream. But its current efforts with Verdi's "Il Trovatore" is a hands-in-pockets travesty. Better to listen to it come from a phonograph, with the singers invisible.

So affairs go at 40th Street and Broadway, but it should, in fairness, be noted that "Il Trovatore" was the first "turkey" of the Met's current season. Such mockeries of opera presentation have been increasingly rare under manager Rudolf Bing's regime.

But "The Magic Flute" was something to behold. It was in English, the singers were more or less ideal for their roles and were all Americans and so sang English projectively, and Bruno Walter, the conductor, conjured freshness and light and love.

Speaking of opera, Puccini's "The Girl from the Golden West" is scheduled for an American revival by the Chicago Lyric Theatre at the opening of its next season, on Oct. 10. Eleanor Steber will sing the girl in this wild west cowboy-gold miner drammer, Italian style.

Noel Coward will make his only New York appearance this season at the final "pops" concert of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony, with Andre Kostelanetz conducting, on April 7. He is to recite the satirical verses which Ogden Nash wrote to go with Saint-Saens' "Carnival of Animals."

Wilhelm Backhaus appeared with the orchestra at three concerts on March 15, 16, and 18, playing Beethoven's fourth piano concerto. It was his first appearance in New York with an orchestra in some 30 years. He played in this country first in 1912, toured the country annually until 1926, and then stayed away until 1954.

Crabapple Trees In Full Bloom

It seems to me the crabapples have been prettier this year than ever before. Maybe it's because the young trees are just large enough to show up well. We didn't get the craze for this flowering tree until a few years ago. Some gardeners have full grown ones. Drive up North Fifth street to 1608, the Clyde Brown home. Turn down the street by the side of the house and go down North Sixth. You'll see the crabapples from the front and back view. In the garden of Margaret Downings, 1600 Island Drive, the flora bundas and hoppas are in bloom. In the Whitaker yard (on neutral ground), 102 Auburn, the owners have planted crabapples on two sides. They were all beginning to bloom last Sunday and this is a treat worth driving to see. I can't remember now, but I believe they're the flora bundas, too.

The crabapple is a tree that grows about the size of a red bud, with life span about the same. Mammie Davis grew one of the first in this area. It lived it's life and departed several years ago. They grow in most any kind of soil and will use lots of fertilizer. It's too late to plant them this year, as they're put out bare rooted. Just add these to your list to plant next winter.

In the Ray Rhymes garden, 2307 Myrtle, Monroe, there's the most unusual candy striped flowering peach. This was a seedling given to Sara by Mrs. Weaks.

All of the above are the opinions of the writer and in no way reflect the views or actions of the weather man, whatever he may do between now and Sunday.

The freeze was rather freakish. There's no damage in my garden except new leaves on Japanese magnolias. I put the sprinkler on these the next day and they look like they'll revive. Yet — in some yards the owners tell me the damage was heavy. Dogwoods are opening and some were not smitten. Camellia blooms turned brown but the buds are opening in good shape. Our peach crop will be much shorter due to freeze injury.

Planting

Sprig St. Augustine and Centipede as fast as you can. The spring rains will get it off to a good start. Continue to plant gladiolus. Set dahlias and stake when you plant. Work a little lime around the roots of clematis. Keep compost pile stirred. Fertilize sweet peas with side dressing of nitrate of soda. Dissolve this in water (1 cup to 1 gallon water). Divide and reset cannas now.

Seed you can plant this month are: Sweet Alyssum, Arctotis, gaillardia, zinnia, portulaca, salvia, scabiosa, early cosmos, sunflower, four o'clock, nasturtium, ageratum, balsam, marigold, moonflower, periwinkle, torenia.

Food News

Did you know that sliced bacon at the wholesale market averages about seventeen cents a pound less than last year? With a substantial share of this markdown passed to you the consumer, bacon ranks high as a thrifty meat for any meal. Much of the bacon now on the market comes from the new type of hog — the hog with a higher proportion of lean meat.

The fact that this lean bacon is preferred by most of you homemakers has been proven. When the lean and the ordinary fat bacon are placed side by side in the food stores — the lean bacon priced a dime per pound higher is preferred by most.

Bacon is the trimmed cured and smoked pork belly. The best quality is dry cured. The slab or unsliced bacon keeps better than the sliced. Bacon of high quality if firm and the fat is white and well streaked with lean. The lean is bright pinkish in color. Quality bacon has a good flavor which varies with the type of cure and smoke.

Bacon with a high percentage of fat shrinks greatly when cooked but when too lean may not be tender.

You can store this meat in your refrigerator at 38 degrees for three or four weeks, but you should use it within ten days to get it's best flavor. Cooking bacon is an art that calls for patience, because it should be started in a cold frying pan under a slow flame and turned frequently.

SOUTHERN GARDENER—

Daffodil Notes For The Gardner

It is always interesting to note just how many days flowers will last and make a good show in the garden. There is a lot of difference between the daffodil varieties in this respect. Of course, the little early yellow trumpets come in the very coolest part of the season at its beginning. Everybody knows that they are the toughest and best daffodils one can have. This year, they lasted their usual ten days to two weeks. The little "swan's neck" white trumpets always open a little later and run the yellow trumpets a close second in their lasting ability. This little white trumpet with the down turned trumpet is probably the true musk daffodil of old books and garden ing literature.

If you have a garden with several exposures, it will pay you to plan daffodils in all parts of it because these wonderful spring bulbs are very sensitive to slight differences of temperature in soil and air. On a south facing slope away from the western cold winds, the early varieties — both old fashioned and recent will bloom as much as a whole week ahead of those planted in sight of them but under trees and exposed to cold winds.

The daffodil, Fortune is a never failing joy to gardeners because of its earliness and ability to stand up to bad weather. It flowers from several days to a week ahead of King Alfred and still lasts as long or longer than this old tried and true kind. Ada Finch, the stunning early white trumpet is another kind which stands up well to the weather. It was able to take the alternating hot blast from the South and nights of freezing in your columnist's garden this year and still looks like the handsome thing it is!

Some daffodils are just not worth the space to grow them. The double Texas, seldom opens in warm southern gardens. The heat comes upon us too fast. For some reason, Golden Goblet does not seem to flower very much in any garden. Nothing as stingy with its flowers as that can have space in my garden.

Some daffodils just naturally look better in the landscape than others. Quirinus continues to be a good one in this respect. Like the perfect Fortune, it holds its face up as soon as it is grown. It is no wonder that it commanded the Award of Merit in Haarlem in 1944. It also got the Forcing Award in 1950. This means that it behaves well when planted in pots and forced into bloom during the winter months in the house or greenhouse. Lady Kesteven is another good landscape variety. You can count on her to make a clear show. By contrast, the beautiful Thalia that everyone loves so much as a cut flower hides its flowers a bit down in the foliage like the coy thing it is. Of course, it is a perfect cut flower.

Spring Time Is Seed Time For Garden Lovers

As a harbinger of spring, the ground hog, robin and first crocus each has its advocates. But to many people there's no more enticing promise of spring than simple garden seed.

Since dreary January, gardeners have been thumbing through their seed catalogues where, as one helplessly addicted reader admits, "all melons are monster, all asters are giant, all petunias double-fringed." The magic of the dreambooks dissolves all memory of past failures. And hope for this year's gardens rises like sap in the trees.

For their 1956 gardens, an estimated 30,000,000 Americans will buy flower seeds and about half as many, vegetable seeds, says the National Geographic Society. Seed sales have never been better. One large mail order company alone puts out as many as 1,500 varieties.

Another company, which sells through racks in stores, offers 1,100. One of its most loyal customers, an elderly lady who trades at a Philadelphia department store, arrives with her chauffeur each spring and buys one packet of every single variety.

Not all buyers are so easily persuaded. Most are especially wary of new vegetables. One catalogue once devoted a whole page in praise of a newly developed vegetable called tampala. A Chinese import, it resembled spinach but withstood heat better and didn't collect sand. Now, a decade later, tampala is relegated to a back-page mention and good old sandy spinach holds down its traditional place in the book.

Even yellow sweet corn had to be given away at first. People wouldn't buy anything that looked like "horse corn." Broccoli also had a hard time catching on. Since 1940, however, its sales have tripled. Such success augurs well for purple cauliflower, an old vegetable now being revived. It turns green when cooked and tastes like broccoli.

Nationwide, the best seller continues to be the radish, followed in order by lettuce, beets and cucumbers. Gardeners' tastes vary enough according to tradition and geography, however, that one company sends its seeds to stores in special assortments. Northern state gets such quick-growers as carrots, beets, lettuce and radishes. The S (South) assortment features white radishes, collards, okra, turnips and mustard greens.

In flowers, tastes are more universal. Zinnias are the favorites; petunias, nasturtiums and sweet peas, the runners-up. . .

Petunias produce seeds so minute that some of the more expensive hybrid varieties are worth many times over their weight in gold. One ounce, containing more than 275,000 seeds, wholesales at $350.

Garden Club Exhibit Held Despite Storm

By CARRIE McKENZIE

Do you know that Mary Margaret Jardine is in New York City judging at the International Flower Show? It is being held in the John Wannamaker Building, March 11 through the 17th. Mary Margaret is being entertained by Esther Wheelen and at the Waldorf-Astoria by the New York Federation. We are all very proud of her.

Do you know that rain and storms do not stop our exhibitions? The Marion Garden club, in spite of Tuesday's downpour, was here on time with three lovely arrangements and a beautiful display of narcissus.

Mrs. Jimmie Allen placed second and for a container chose a black classical urn. She placed it on a black base. Stripped pine was used to form the most beautiful of all lines, the Horgath curve, with the pine white daffodils were used, making a very dramatic effect.

Do you know that Mr. Truman Quiton, the dirt gardener's best friend, will be available to you March 27th through April 2nd? He knows all the answers for good growing treatment of soil, disease and insect control. He comes to you free of charge, so make a date for him to visit your garden at the Garden Center.

Do you know we are planning a Fifth District Flower Show? You will be hearing from us.

Do you know we are doing an outstanding job of the Center. At this time as Garden Center director, I want to thank all of the clubs, judges, flower shops, newspaper, radio and television stations, our sponsors and Mary Margaret, our very efficient hardworking secretary, for your cooperation in making this a very pleasant worthwhile work.

MUSIC

The Metropolitan Opera's new production of Mozart's "The Magic Flute" is a dream. But its current efforts with Verdi's "Il Trovatore" is a hands-in-pockets travesty. Better to listen to it come from a phonograph, with the singers invisible.

So affairs go at 40th Street and Broadway, but it should, in fairness, be noted that "Il Trovatore" was the first "turkey" of the Met's current season. Such mockeries of opera presentation have been increasingly rare under manager Rudolf Bing's regime.

But "The Magic Flute" was something to behold. It was in English, the singers were more or less ideal for their roles and were all Americans and so sang English projectively, and Bruno Walter, the conductor, conjured freshness and light and love.

Speaking of opera, Puccini's "The Girl from the Golden West" is scheduled for an American revival by the Chicago Lyric Theatre at the opening of its next season, on Oct. 10. Eleanor Steber will sing the girl in this wild west cowboy-gold miner drammer, Italian style.

Noel Coward will make his only New York appearance this season at the final "pops" concert of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony, with Andre Kostelanetz conducting, on April 7. He is to recite the satirical verses which Ogden Nash wrote to go with Saint-Saens' "Carnival of Animals."

Wilhelm Backhaus appeared with the orchestra at three concerts on March 15, 16, and 18, playing Beethoven's fourth piano concerto. It was his first appearance in New York with an orchestra in some 30 years. He played in this country first in 1912, toured the country annually until 1926, and then stayed away until 1954.

MARK HARRIS

BOOKS

BANG THE DRUM SLOWLY. By Mark Harris. Knopf.

Henry Wiggen, of Perkinsville, N. Y., and of the Mammoths, is the best pitcher you ever read a novel by—which is something like the way he'd put it himself. He stepped into two old fame when he won the series for the Mammoths and when he was the inimitable narrator of his own story in "The Southpaw," Harris' last novel.

This time again he inimitably narrates a new story about Bruce Pearson, his buddy and roommate, Romeo and Juliet to their somewhat mystified, and wholly irreverent clubmates.

Henry, though he's still a champion baseball player, has been earning extra money selling insurance. He gets a telephone call from Bruce who has taken out his best paying policy, and lucky for him he did, too. The doctors say he will die sooner rather than late of an incurable disease, and he summons Henry to advise and console.

Henry loyally takes over Bruce's problem. A catcher, Bruce has never lived up to his promise; he isn't so good in a game as he looks in practice. Dutch, the manager would like to trade him, but Henry says no. As in "The Southpaw" we worried till Henry won his series and his girl, so now we worry about whether Henry can keep Bruce's fatal malady a secret.

"The Southpaw," by a writer with a unique gift for comedy and pathos, still makes me chuckle as I bring it to mind. This novel moves at a slower pace and appeals more directly to the baseball fan than the general reader. But on many pages Harris' ballplayers again speak their vigorous, colorful, ballpark speech, and at times they'll have you in stitches. Henry himself is priceless and good for a dozen novels; this happens not to be the best of the possibilities.

Record Reviews

Popular Records

Two new record companies — Bally and Wing — have entered the field with a splash.

Bally's first issue should catch on quickly if it is not a hit overnight on the jukeboxes. It's a banjo version of "Waiting for the Robert E. Lee" and features Lou Breese on the strings.

This is a superior high-fidelity record and could easily become a classic for collectors of banjo music. Breese slows down his tempo on the flipover, "Mexicali Rose," but it, too, is a hit candidate.

Wing, a subsidiary of Mercury, makes its bow with a number of listenable records. For instance, "I Should Care" and "Man With the Golden Arm" by Buddy Morrow is good dance music, and Dotty Malone sounds like a veteran on "Everything But You" and "I Oughta."

Other good singles — "Some of these Days" by Eileen Rogers (Columbia), "Tippin' In," an old swing standard, by Georgia Auld (Mercury), "Langer Awhile" by Ralph Fay and his orchestra (M-G-M), and "The Blues Is Man" by Harry Belafonte (RCA-Victor).

Columbia's latest item on its House Party series is a 10-inch compression of Cole Porter's "Anything Goes" score. Mary Martin gets good support from Lehman Engel and she is particularly in fine form on "I Get a Kick Out of You" and "Blow, Gabriel, Blow."

Dinah Shore

Mary Martin

Dinah Shore's latest RCA-Victor album, "Holding Hands at Midnight" is a mixture of old and fairly new tunes, fast and slow. Miss Shore is consistently warm, even on the cooler blues numbers, such as "Under a Blanket of Blue."

—William D. Laffler

Concert Music

La Scala's newly recorded complete "Rigoletto" has just about everything that even the most ardent admirer of the opera could want, but more particularly it has Maria Meneghini Callas in the role of Gilda. This reviewer recalls no Gilda of recent years who could match her affecting and effective singing.

You are much impressed, too, with the ringing tenor of Giuseppe Di Stefano, who not only pronounces the piece's great tenor arias brilliantly but sings them without detaching them from the action's flow. You hear all the evidences of close study and careful rehearsing — the cast has that oneness, and Maestro Tullio Serfin's conducting is the rich icing of the cake (Angel-3537).

And here is a recording of Friedrich von Flotow's opera "Martha" source of the indestructable arias, "M'appari" and "The Last Rose of Summer." It isn't the first complete recorded "Martha," but it is the best one, although that can't be too much of a compliment since "Martha" in toto hardly seems worth all the effort.

On the other hand, it has times and lusty choruses. For one listening, it's pleasurable enough. And some uncommonly good voices were mustered for the recording, including those of Ferruccio Tagliavini, Elena Rizzieri, and Pia Tassinari. The orchestra and choras were those of the Italian Radio-Television of Turin and the conductor was Francesco Molinari Pradelli (Cetra-B1254).

CAMERA NEWS

SPRING is in the air and it can go to a young lady's head. Try the candid camera technique of shooting when it happens: Easter antics will become permanent treasured memories.

Easter Pictures

The approach of Easter starts a new season for many a camera fan — the open shooting season. It's the time when we turn to the fresh outdoors where we watch Mother Nature and our families both blossoming out in their new spring finery. It's a natural picture — in black-and-white and in color.

There's lots of action in Easter activities and action always makes for better pictures. For instance the family, all spruced up in new duds, is usually posed somewhat stiffly with the emphasis on the new clothes. How much better it would be to shoot a walking action — the family's own Easter parade!

The proper camera angle would be one in which the subjects are coming toward the camera. A snapshot speed of 1-25th second is enough to stop normal action headed toward the camera at a distance of from 12 to 15 feet. When the direction of walking is across the picture area, it would take a speed of about 1-200th to stop the action.

A very low camera angle is also often recommended. For one thing, it tends to eliminate some of the background which might be confusing and is apt to get more sky area. Secondly, it usually makes for taller, fashion figures.

The right instant for shooting is the moment between steps when one foot is poised and the other is ready to step out. If a group is being shot, all should be in step and the action should be rehearsed several times. They should walk towards a predetermined spot and beyond it, but the picture is snapped when they reach the spot. Try it several times and take a few shots to get a choice final picture.

If the camera is loaded with transparency color film, make sure it's the type for artificial light. If it is, put a number 5 clear flachbulb in the flashgun, get as close to the subject as you can (six feet away for box - type cameras) set your shutter opening between f 11 and f 16, your speed at 1-50th and flash away at an expressive moment.

If you have only daylight type color film, use blue flashbulbs and open up the shutter to f 8. If you're using the new Kodacolor film (a negative type color film from from which color prints are made later) you can shoot with clear flashbulbs and set the shutter to just past f 16.

If you've never experimented with fast black - and - white film, this is the time to become a candid cameraman. It would be helpful to set the stage for the youngster's pastime with as much available light as can be maneuvered. If there's a sunny spot in the room, shift the scene to that area, otherwise add light by turning on lamps, ceiling and wall lights. It's even cricket to put a photoflood bulb in a bridgelamp and bounce the light off the ceiling.

With Tri-X film, a speed of 1-25th second and the lens wide open, there's a good chance of capturing some of the Easter spirit to add to the family album.

South, Pass; West, Pass.

Opening lead: Two of diamonds.

West had been subjected to all the standard sermons cautioning against the indiscreet doubles of slams. "This is different, however," he asserted. "This time I have a cashable ace and a sure trump trick." He was soon to have a rude awakening and to learn that he had no trump trick even against a four card suit. But even if he felt that six diamonds could be defeated beyond the preadventure of a doubt, his double might prove ill-advised if, for example, the adversaries decided to run to six no trump, against which there was no defense.

West decided to forestall the possibility of a cross-ruff by opening a trump, and on the very first trick declarer received the shocking news that West had no more trumps than he did.

While prospects were dim, all hope need not be abandoned if declarer could cash a sufficient number of club tricks. When East showed out on the second lead of clubs, West became marked with ten cards in the minor suits. His other three would soon be determined. But one thing was certain: if West had no hearts, the hand could not be won. It was probable, however, that West's remaining cards were distributed two and one.

In order to plan his campaign with delicacy, declarer must determine precisely how West's spades and hearts were divided; whereupon he led a heart to dummy's queen and cashed the ace and king of clubs, discarding two small hearts from his hand. A spade lead to the queen forced West's ace and the trump return was taken in the South hand. Now the king of spades was played. If West had no more spades, he would have to ruff and dummy would over-ruff, and since West's remainng card would have to be a heart, North could safely cash the king of hearts and cross-ruff the balance of the tricks.

But actually West followed to the king of spades and declarer criss-crossed the rest of the tricks.

TV Notes

This is how 14-year-old George L. Wright III split up the $100,000 he won on NBC's "Big Surprise": a check to the federal government for $52,500, estimated income tax, $7,500 for immediate use of his family, $10,000 to the Madison Square Boys' Club, $30,000 into a trust fund for education of himself and his sister and brother.

Nancy Olson and Julie Andrews had never met until both appeared in the CBS spectacular, "High Tor," but they already had a mutual link. Miss Olson is the wife of Alan Jay Lerner who wrote the lyrics for the new Broadway musical, "My Fair Lady," in which Miss Andrews is starred.

Errol Flynn's first TV show since his recent return to this country will be coming up April 4 on the NBC "Screen Directors Playhouse." It's a swashbuckler entitled "Sword of Villon."

Guy Lombardo and his orchestra, which have been on TV so far this season only with their filmed syndicated half hour of music, will become a live attraction again March 20 for CBS: Tuesdays at 9 p.m. instead of "Meet Millie." There will be an audience participation gimmick based on letters detailing how a certain song has been important in a person's life.

The TV "Landmark" series, based on the volumes in the juvenile historical library of that name published by Random House, is now in production in Hollywood. CBS has the property.

Ray Milland is directing as well as appearing in the "G. E. Theater" production, "That's The Man" on CBS April 15. It will be on film.

ABC is going to step out next season with big - time "specials," including one or two Metropolitan Opera productions and six one-hour programs put together by the Theatre Guild. ABC expects to get into color by September, 1957 — "as soon as there are sufficient sets in the country."

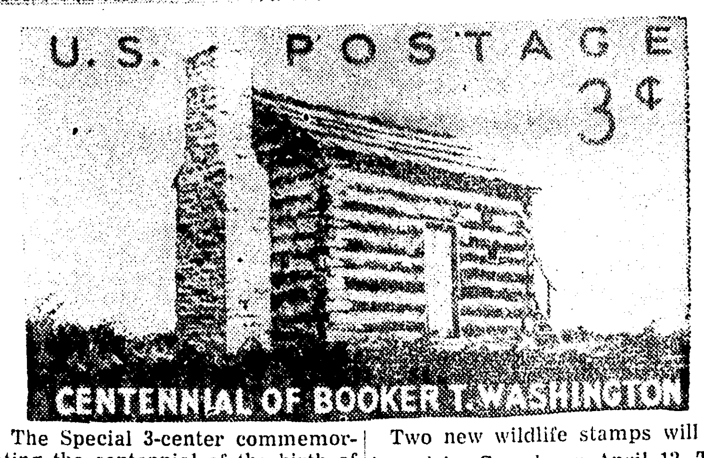
Stamps In The News

AP Newsfeatures



The Special 3-center commemorating the centennial of the birth of Booker T. Washington, noted American educator, will depict a log cabin similar to the one in which he was born as a slave. No picture of him, however, appears on the stamp.

This new adhesive will be placed on sale at Booker T. Washington Birthplace, Va., on April 5.

Stamp collectors desiring first day covers may send their addressed envelopes to the postmaster at Booker T. Washington Birthplace, Va., prior to April 5 with money order remittances covering the cost of the stamps to be affixed. The outside envelope to the postmaster should be endorsed "First Day Covers."

Two new wildlife stamps will be issued by Canada on April 12. The stamps will publicize Canada's "National Wildlife Week." The 4 cent purple shows the head of a caribou. The 5 cent blue depicts a mountain goat.

Two new books on philately should interest newcomers to the hobby. "Stamp Collecting For Boys and Girls" by L. N. and M. Williams, serves as an introduction to stamp collecting. Suggestions in the book should help the new collector avoid pitfalls in the early stages of the hobby.

MARK HARRIS

BOOKS

By Mark Harris, Knopf.

Henry Wiggen, of Perkinsville, N. Y., and of the Mammoths, is the best pitcher you ever read a novel by—which is something like the way he'd put it himself. He stepped into two old fame when he won the series for the Mammoths and when he was the inimitable narrator of his own story in "The Southpaw," Harris' last novel.

This time again he inimitably narrates a new story about Bruce Pearson, his buddy and roommate, Romeo and Juliet to their somewhat mystified, and wholly irreverent, clubmates.

Henry, though he's still a champion baseball player, has been earning extra money selling insurance. He gets a telephone call from Bruce who has taken out his best paying policy, and lucky for him he did, too. The doctors say he will die sooner rather than late of an incurable disease, and he summons Henry to advise and console.

Henry loyally takes over Bruce's problem. A catcher, Bruce has never lived up to his promise; he isn't so good in a game as he looks in practice. Dutch, the manager would like to trade him, but Henry says no. As in "The Southpaw" we worried till Henry won his series and his girl, so now we worry about whether Henry can keep Bruce's fatal malady a secret.

"The Southpaw," by a writer with a unique gift for comedy and pathos, still makes me chuckle as I bring it to mind. This novel moves at a slower pace and appeals more directly to the baseball fan than the general reader. But on many pages Harris' ballplayers again speak their vigorous, colorful, ballpark speech, and at times they'll have you in stitches. Henry himself is priceless and good for a dozen novels; this happens not to be the best of the possibilities.

W. G. Rogers.

Record Reviews

Popular Records

Two new record companies — Bally and Wing — have entered the field with a splash.

Bally's first issue should catch on quickly if it is not a hit overnight on the jukeboxes. It's a banjo version of "Waiting for the Robert E. Lee" and features Lou Breese on the strings.

This is a superior high-fidelity record and could easily become a classic for collectors of banjo music. Breese slows down his tempo on the flipover, "Mexicali Rose," but it, too, is a hit candidate.

Wing, a subsidiary of Mercury, makes its bow with a number of listenable records. For instance, "I Should Care" and "Man With the Golden Arm" by Buddy Morrow is good dance music, and Dotty Malone sounds like a veteran on "Everything But You" and "I Oughta."

Other good singles — "Some of these Days" by Eileen Rogers (Columbia), "Tippin' In," an old swing standard, by Georgia Auld (Mercury) "Linger Awhile" by Ralph Fay and his orchestra (M-G-M), and "The Blues Is Man" by Harry Belafonte (RCA-Victor).

Columbia's latest item on its House Party series is a 10-inch compression of Cole Porter's "Anything Goes" score. Mary Martin gets good support from Lehman Engel and she is particularly in fine form on "I Get a Kick Out of You" and "Blow, Gabriel, Blow."

Dinah Shore

Mary Martin

Dinah Shore's latest RCA-Victor album, "Holding Hands at Midnight" is a mixture of old and fairly new tunes, fast and slow. Miss Shore is consistently warm, even on the cooler blues numbers such as "Under a Blanket of Blue."

—William D. Laffler

Concert Music

La Scala's newly recorded complete "Rigoletto" has just about everything that even the most ardent admirer of the opera could want, but more particularly it has Maria Meneghini Callas in the role of Gilda. This reviewer recalls no Gilda of recent years who could match her affecting and effective singing.

You are much impressed, too, with the ringing tenor of Giuseppe Di Stefano, who not only produces the piece's great tenor arias brilliantly but sings them without detaching them from the action's flow. You hear all the evidences of close study and careful rehearsing — the cast has that oneness, and Maestro Tullio Serfin's conducting is the rich icing of the cake (Angel-3537).

And here is a recording of Friedrich von Flotow's opera "Martha" source of the indestructable arias, "M'appari" and "The Last Rose of Summer." It isn't the first complete recorded "Martha," but it is the best one, although that can't be too much of a compliment since "Martha" in toto hardly seems worth all the effort.

On the other hand, it has tunes and lusty choruses. For one listening, it's pleasurable enough. And some uncommonly good voices were mustered for the recording, including those of Ferruccio Tagliavkni, Elena Rizzieri, and Pia Tassinari. The orchestra and chorus were those of the Italian Radio-Television of Turin and the conductor was Francesco Molinari Pradelli (Cetra-B1254).

CAMERA NEWS

SPRING is in the air and it can go to a young lady's head. Try the candid camera technique of shooting when it happens; Easter antics will become permanent treasured memories.

Easter Pictures

The appraoch of Easter starts a new season for many a camera fan — the open shooting season. It's the time when we turn to the fresh outdoors where we watch Mother Nature and our families both blossoming out in their new spring finery. It's a natural picture — in black-and-white and in color.

There's lots of action in Easter activities and action always makes for better pictures. For instance the family, all spruced up in new duds, is usually posed somewhat stiffly with the emphasis on the new clothes. How much better it would be to shoot a walking action —the family's own Easter parade!

The proper camera angle would be one in which the subjects are coming toward the camera. A snapshot speed of 1-25th second is enough to stop normal action headed toward the camera at a distance of from 12 to 15 feet. When the direction of walking is across the picture area, it would take a speed of about 1-200th to stop the action.

A very low camera angle is also often recommended. For one thing, it tends to eliminate some of the background which might be confusing and is apt to get more sky area. Secondly, it usually makes for taller, fashion figures.

The right instant for shooting is the moment between steps when one foot is poised and the other is ready to step out. If a group is being shot, all should be in step and the action should be rehearsed several times. They should walk towards a predetermined spot and beyond it, but the picture is snapped when they reach the spot. Try it several times and take a few shots to get a choice final picture.

If the camera is loaded with transparency color film, make sure it's the type for artificial light. If it is, put a number 5 clear flachbiub in the flashgun, get as close to the subject as you can (six feet away for box - type cameras) set your shutter opening between f 11 and f 16, your speed at 1-50th and flash away at an expressive moment.

If you have only daylight type color film, use blue flashbulbs and open up the shutter to f 8. If you're using the new Kodacolor film (a negative type color film from from which color prints are made later) you can shoot with clear flashbulbs and set the shutter to just past f 16.

If you've never experimented with fast black - and - white film, this is the time to become a candid cameraman. It would be helpful to set the stage for the youngster's pastime with as much available light as can be maneuvered. If there's a sunny spot in the room, shift the scene to that area, otherwise add light by turning on lamps, ceiling and wall lights. It's even cricket to put a photoflood bulb in a bridgelamp and bounce the light off the ceiling.

With Tri-X film, a speed of 1-25th second and the lens wide open, there's a good chance of capturing some of the Easter spirit to add to the family album.

South, Pass; West, Pass.

Opening lead: Two of diamonds.

West had been subjected to all the standard sermons cautioning against the indiscreet doubles of slams. "This is different, however," he asserted. "This time I have a cashable ace and a sure trump trick." He was soon to have a rude awakening and to learn that he had no trump trick even against a four card suit. But even if he felt that six diamonds could be defeated beyond the preadventure of a doubt, his double might prove ill-advised if, for example, the adversaries decided to run to six no trump, against which there was no defense.

West decided to forestall the possibility of a cross-ruff by opening a trump, and on the very first trick declarer received the shocking news that West had no more trumps than he did.

While prospects were dim, all hope need not be abandoned if declarer could cash a sufficient number of club tricks. When East showed out on the second lead of clubs, West became marked with ten cards in the minor suits. His other three would soon be determined. But one thing was certain: if West had no hearts, the hand could not be won. It was probable, however, that West's remaining cards were distributed two and one.

In order to plan his campaign with delicacy, declarer must determine precisely how West's spades and hearts were divided; whereupon he led a heart to dummy's queen and cashed the ace and king of clubs, discarding two small hearts from his hand. A spade lead to the queen forced West's ace and the trump return was taken in the South hand. Now the king of spades was played. If West had no more spades, he would have to ruff and dummy would over-ruff, and since West's remainng card would have to be a heart, North could safely cash the king of hearts and cross-ruff the balance of the tricks.

TV Notes

This is how 14-year-old George L. Wright III split up the $100,000 he won on NBC's "Big Surprise": a check to the federal government for $52,500, estimated income tax, $7,500 for immediate use of his family, $10,000 to the Madison Square Boys' Club, $30,000 into a trust fund for education of himself and his sister and brother.

Nancy Olson and Julie Andrews had never met until both appeared in the CBS spectacular, "High Tor," but they already had a mutual link. Miss Olson is the wife of Alan Jay Lerner who wrote the lyrics for the new Broadway musical, "My Fair Lady," in which Miss Andrews is starred.

Errol Flynn's first TV show since his recent return to this country will be coming up April 4 on the NBC "Screen Directors Playhouse" It's a swashbuckler entitled "Sword of Villon."

Guy Lombardo and his orchestra, which have been on TV so far this season only with their filmed syndicated half hour of music, will become a live attraction again March 20 for CBS; Tuesdays at 9 p.m. instead of "Meet Millie." There will be an audience participation gimmick based on letters detailing how a certain song has been important in a person's life.

The TV "Landmark" series, based on the volumes in the juvenile historical library of that name published by Random House, is now in production in Hollywood. CBS has the property.

Ray Milland is directing as well as appearing in the "G. E. Theater" production, "That's The Man" on CBS April 15. It will be on film

ABC is going to step out next season with big - time "specials," including one or two Metropolitan Opera productions and six one-hour programs put together by the Theatre Guild. ABC expects to get into color by September, 1957 — "as soon as there are sufficient sets in the country."

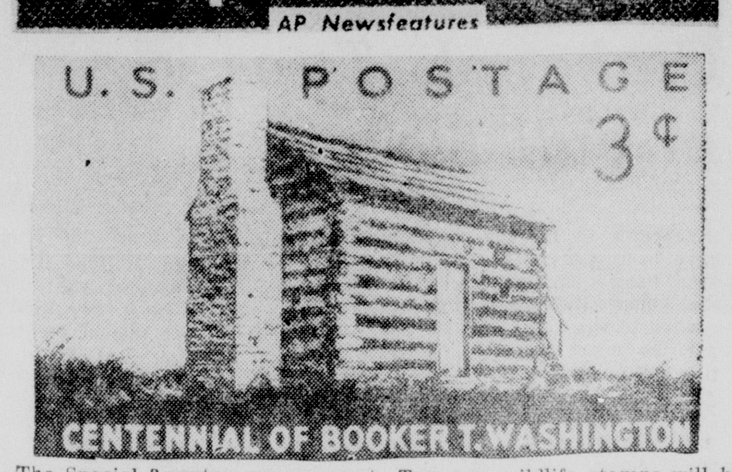
Stamps In The News

AP Newsfeatures



The Special 3-center commemorating the centennial of the birth of Booker T. Washington, noted American educator, will depict a log cabin similar to the one in which he was born as a slave. No picture of him, however, appears on the stamp.

This new adhesive will be placed on sale at Booker T. Washington Birthplace, Va., on April 5.

Stamp collectors desiring first day covers may send their adressed envelopes to the postmaster at Booker T. Washington Birthplace, Va., prior to April 5 with money order remittances covering the cost of the stamps to be affixed. The outside envelope to the postmaster should be endorsed "First Day Covers."

Two new wildlife stamps will be issued by Canada on April 12. The stamps will publicize Canada's "National Wildlife Week." The 4 cent purple shows the head of a caribou. The 5 cent blue depicts a mountain goat.

Two new books on philately should interest newcomers to the hobby. "Stamp Collecting For Boys and Girls" by L. N. and M. Williams, serves as an introduction to stamp collecting. Suggestions in the book should help the new collector avoid pitfalls in the early stages of the hobby.

YOU CAN expect bedlam whenever Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz get together in a romantic comedy, and their latest, "Forever Darling," is no exception. James Mason co-stars in the hilarious story of a bored bride whose marriage is brightened with the help of a Guardian Angel.

Ball, Arnaz, Mason In Comedy 'Forever Darling'

Hold on to your hats and let the laughs boom — Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz, filmdom's funniest couple, are back in a new feature-length picture, "Forever Darling," their first since the highly successful "The Long, Long Trailer." Co-starred is James Mason, with Louis Calhern heading an all-laugh supporting cast.

The new Jim Theatre attraction is the first of producer-actor Arnaz' newly formed Zanra Productions (Arnaz spelled backward) and is released by M-G-M It is a howl from start to finish.

The trials, tribulations and comic mishaps of matrimony (probably the world's most familiar subject) forms the basis of "Forever Darling," with a novel twist added. When Lucille Ball, as Susan, finds that the rosy hue of the honeymoon with her scientist spouse, Larry (Arnaz), is beginning to fade, she finds unexpected resources in the advice and protection of her Guardian Angel (James Mason).

Through this ephemeral counsellor, she is persuaded that the reason for her floundering marriage is due to lack of interest in her husband's career. So Susan determines to accompany him on a camping expedition in which Larry is to make field experiments on a new insecticide formula. The trip provides the most hilarious satire of what can happen when a city-bred girl gets caught up in sleeping bags, inflated rubber boats, outdoor cooking utensils and various other difficulties of living in the Great Outdoors that has ever been devised for a rib-tickling screen script. (Helen Deutsch, who wrote "The Glass Slipper," takes the bows for the screen play).

The millions of Lucille Ball-Desi Arnaz film fans, to say nothing of their legion of "I Love Lucy" television viewers, need no reassurance regarding the quality of entertainment they offer in "Forever Darling." And James Mason, in his first all-out laugh role, following on his memorable performance in "A Star Is Born," is a happy edition to this sparkling couple. As the Guardian Angel, with a halo invisible to all except Susan, he has some of the picture's most delightful scenes.

Louis Calhern also wins laughs as Susan's amiable father, with other important roles played by John Emery as a baffled psychiatrist, John Hoyt as Larry's business partner, Natalie Schafer as a trouble-making society gossip, and Mabel Albertson as a gushy society reporter. Alexander Hall directed this uninhibited joy fest "Forever Darling" is just what the doctor ordered for a loud and lusty laugh tonic.

"Remember when this was a real tough course - before we got a compass in the News-Star—World Want Ads?"

THE STRANGEST, wildest courtship a woman ever knew is the bold subject of Hal Wallis' "The Rose Tattoo," which stars Burt Lancaster and Italy's great Anna Magnani. Arriving today at the Paramount Theatre, the Tennessee Williams drama, Miss Magnani's first American film, also stars Marisa Pavan and Ben Cooper and was directed by Daniel Mann.

Behind the shuttered windows of a brooding Gulf Coast house lies a strange and moving story—the tale of the indelible mark of love, "The Rose Tattoo."

To the house's occupant, living a cloistered existence with only the memory of a lost but mighty love for company, the mark meant all she had ever wanted from life, but to each of the three people branded with it, it had a meaning all its own. One died with it on his chest, a dance hall hostess flaunted it shamelessly, and the last tried to bury the memory of his rival with it. Beneath the rose tattoo beat the raw emotions of love itself.

Written by the author of "A Stretcar Named Desire," Pulitzer Prize winner Tennessee Williams, "The Rose Tattoo" achieved a resounding success on Broadway, and now Hal Wallis and Paramount Pictures have brought it to the screen, where the Vista Vision camera can give full range to a story that runs the gamut from vivid, fiery drama to earthy human comedy.

The superb cast of "The Rose Tattoo," which opens today at the Paramount Theatre, is headed by Burt Lancaster and Italy's magnificent Anna Magnani, one of the world's great actresses. Starring with them are Marisa Pavan and Ben Cooper, with Virginia Grey, Jo Van Fleet, Sandro Giglio and a colorful group of supporting players featured. From the day of the first advance showing, critics and audiences alike have continued to mention the great star performances, the brilliant direction of Daniel Mann, the production wizardry of Hal Wallis and the thunderbolt quality of Tennessee Williams' startlingly frank screenplay in the same breath with "awards" and "highest honors."

To Anna Magnani, honors are no new experience. She is famed throughout the world for her memorable roles in such films as "Open City," and this, her first American film, looms as her most memorable. For Burt Lancaster, this is the most powerful of his off-beat roles, a portrayal guided by the same Hal Wallis and Daniel Mann who created "Come Back, Little Shelba."

The shapely and darkly beautiful Marisa Pavan and handsome young Ben Cooper share what promises to be one of the most tender yet bold love stories ever filmed in a courageous masterpiece that is destined to be talked about for many years to come.

YOU CAN expect bedlam whenever Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz get together in a romantic comedy, and their latest, "Forever Darling," is no exception. James Mason co-stars in the hilarious story of a bored bride whose marriage is brightened with the help of a Guardian Angel.

Ball, Arnaz, Mason In Comedy 'Forever Darling'

Hold on to your hats and let the laughs boom — Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz, filmdom's funniest couple, are back in a new feature-length picture, "Forever Darling," their first since the highly successful "The Long, Long Trailer." Co-starred is James Mason, with Louis Calhern heading an all-laugh supporting cast.

The new Jim Theatre attraction is the first of producer-actor Arnaz' newly formed Zanra Productions (Arnaz spelled backward) and is released by M-G-M It is a howl from start to finish.

The trials, tribulations and comic mishaps of matrimony (probably the world's most familiar subject) forms the basis of "Forever Darling," with a novel twist added. When Lucille Ball, as Susan, finds that the rosy hue of the honeymoon with her scientist spouse, Larry (Arnaz), is beginning to fade, she finds unexpected resources in the advice and protection of her Guardian Angel (James Mason).

Through this ephemeral counsellor, she is persuaded that the reason for her floundering marriage is due to lack of interest in her husband's career. So Susan determines to accompany him on a camping expedition in which Larry is to make field experiments on a new insecticide formula. The trip provides the most hilarious satire of what can happen when a city-bred girl gets caught up in sleeping bags, inflated rubber boats, outdoor cooking utensils and various other difficulties of living in the Great Outdoors that has ever been devised for a rib-tickling screen script. (Helen Deutsch, who wrote "The Glass Slipper," takes the bows for the screen play).

The millions of Lucille Ball-Desi Arnaz film fans, to say nothing of their legion of "I Love Lucy" television viewers, need no reassurance regarding the quality of entertainment they offer in "Forever Darling." And James Mason, in his first all-out laugh role, following on his memorable performance in "A Star Is Born," is a happy edition to this sparkling couple. As the Guardian Angel, with a halo invisible to all except Susan, he has some of the picture's most delightful scenes.

Louis Calhern also wins laughs as Susan's amiable father, with other important roles played by John Emery as a baffled psychiatrist, John Hoyt as Larry's business partner, Natalie Schafer as a trouble-making society gossip, and Mabel Albertson as a gushy society reporter. Alexander Hall directed this uninhibited joy fest. "Forever Darling" is just what the doctor ordered for a loud and lusty laugh tonic.

THE STRANGEST, wildest courtship a woman ever knew is the bold subject of Hal Wallis' "The Rose Tattoo," which stars Burt Lancaster and Italy's great Anna Magnani. Arriving today at the Paramount Theatre, the Tennessee Williams drama, Miss Magnani's first American film, also stars Marisa Pavan and Ben Cooper and was directed by Daniel Mann.

Behind the shuttered windows of a brooding Gulf Coast house lies a strange and moving story—the tale of the indelible mark of love, "The Rose Tattoo."

To the house's occupant, living a cloistered existence with only the memory of a lost but mighty love for company, the mark meant all she had ever wanted from life, but to each of the three people branded with it, it had a meaning all its own. One died with it on his chest, a dance hall hostess flaunted it shamelessly, and the last tried to bury the memory of his rival with it. Beneath the rose tattoo beat the raw emotions of love itself.

Written by the author of "A Stretcar Named Desire," Pulitzer Prize winner Tennessee Williams, "The Rose Tattoo" achieved a resounding success on Broadway, and now Hal Wallis and Paramount Pictures have brought it to the screen, where the Vista Vision camera can give full range to a story that runs the gamut from vivid, fiery drama to earthy human comedy.

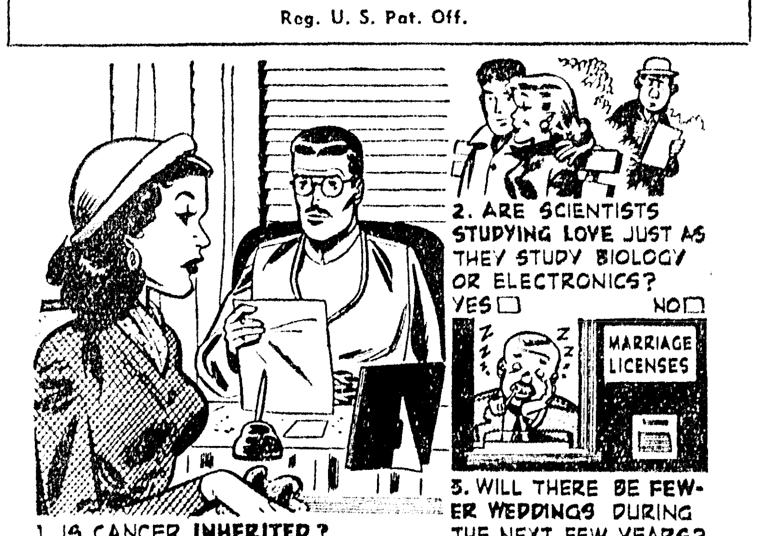
LET'S EXPLORE YOUR MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. Sc.

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.



Answer to Question No. 1

1. Not directly as such. Biologist Philip Goldstein says that in tests made with mice one strain nearly always develops one type of breast cancer, while another strain rarely develops it. However, if offspring of the cancer-prone mice are suckled by a low-cancer foster mother, they rarely develop this type of breast cancer. Something in the milk of the cancer-prone strain is necessary to "trigger" breast cancer development. It raises the suspicion that something like this may be true of human beings.

Answer to Question No. 2

2. Yes, for the first time in history. In his fascinating book "The Ways and Power of Love," Harvard sociologist Pitirim Sorokin has assembled an immense number of scientific facts on what love is doing and has done for individuals, communities, and nations. It holds families, socieities, and nations together, lengthens life, and has prevented many wars. Our booklet, "What Teenagers Should Know About Life and Love" helps young people get the right angles on dating, infatuation, and real love. Nonprofit, 20c (coin only) and stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Answer to Question No. 3

. Yes. First, because of the enormous number of marriages during the war years, which almost exhausted the marriage pool. Second, the low birth rate during the depression has resulted in a smaller supply of marriageable persons. The marriage rate will be low for several years to come, says the American Institute of Family Relations of Los Angeles, the largest group of engagement and marriage counselors in the world.

Little Theatre Curtain Call

By FLETA D. LATHAM

The second week of rehearsal for "The Tender Trap" has come and gone. When Joan Magruder, Milly Middelton, Frances Whitfield, Jo Ann Ussery, Stan Richards, Harrell Lary, Dick Troy, Jr., and Joe Costa go into rehearsal Monday evening they won't be using scripts. All dialogue will have been memorized and the second phase of rehearsals can start.

It's always a high point of rehearsals when the business of learning lines is accomplished and the important work of characterization can begin. From that time on the play rapidly takes shape. It comes to life minute by minute.

Rehearsals will really be interesting now. If you're not doing anything, c'mon out to the playhouse. We know you'll enjoy it.

Random notes: If someone doesn't telephone and give us some news, this will be a short column. We are at the bottom of the barrel as far as news is concerned. . .

In case anyone is planning to be in New Orleans and would like to see a play, Gallery Circle Theatre's presentation of "Miranda" opened March 16 and will run through March 24. To our knowledge this is the first time this season that two or more of the community theaters in New Orleans haven't had plays running simultaneously. . .

Following rehearsals on Thursday night, the cast and crew of "The Tender Trap" met in the home of Pat and Harrell Lary for coffee and conversation. . .

Howard Lance and Ivan had their heads together the other day discussing color schemes for the set of "The Tender Trap". We can hardly wait to see the completed set. It's going to be so attractive. .

Little Theaterite Kay Causey acted as "stand-in" director for Ivan on Friday night so that he might attend the Little Theatre Board of Directors' meeting which was held in the home of Bessie and Chick Foster. . .

Well, we did get a few items of news together before the deadline. If you have any information for "Curtain Cal", give us a ring. . .

LITTLE THEATRE SKETCH

MILDRED MIDDLETON, . Sylvia Crewes in "The Tender Trap" is an attractive brunette and, if you saw her in "Dial M for Murder", it isn't necessary for us to tell you she is quite a talented actress.

Milly, as she prefers to be called, is a flower enthusiast — loves spring and likes to wander through the woods in the early spring. She enjoys cooking outdoors and barbecued chicken is a specialty with her.

Having noted Milly's attractive wardrobe, (She has excellent taste) we were surprised to learn that she is not particularly interested in clothes — does admit to a fondness for shoes.

Milly loves children — an advantage in her work as speech therapist at the Cerebral Palsy School. She does camp work in the summer with emphasis on arts and crafts. Is staff member of a Crippled Children's Camp which is located near Nashville, Tennessee.
